Funds Sought By McCarran To Give Aged A New Home

District Committee Chairman of Senate Calls Blue Plains' Plight 'Appalling'

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Chairman Pat McCarran, of the Senate District Committee, last night recommended that the District Commissioners ask Congress immediately for funds to build a new Home for the Aged and Infirm to replace the "appalling" institution at Blue Plains and promised to "go to any length" to help them get the money.

The Senator's concern for the plight of the home's 580 inmates, aroused by reports from an inspection of the institution yesterday by Renah F. Camalier, committee counsel, quickly brought a sympathetic response from Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, new chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Conditions at Blue Plains should be remedied "promptly and adequately," declared Cannon, who also heads the Deficiency Appropriations subcommittee which would be called upon to consider first any supplemental request from the Commissioners for funds for the home.

Protested by Mrs. Roosevelt

Recalling that when chairman of the District Appropriations subcommittee several years ago he visited Blue Plains, Cannon added he "would be glad to cooperate in every way" to improve conditions at the home that nearly two years ago brought protests from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt resulting in a Congressional investigation.

McCarran, who is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, recommended that the Commissioners take at once "any steps to make the home habitable until a new institution can be erected. The recommendations were drafted as soon as Camalier returned to the Capitol from his inspection of the home with the observation:

"I did not know a thing like this could exist in America."

Calls for Clean-Up Men

The recommendations, to be forwarded to the Commissioners today follow:

One—A "gang of clean-up men" should be sent to the home at once to "scour" the building from top to bottom, to remove splotches of discoloration from walls, cobwebs from corners and to clean out toilets and baths where Camalier found water standing on the floor.

Two—The Health Department should make an "immediate" survey of health conditions and an inspection of food and kitchen facilities.

Three—The Commissioners should appeal to other District institutions and the community at large for china to replace the nicked cups and cracked plates which, Camalier was told, the home inherited from Government dormitories of World War I vintage.

Four—Steps should be taken at once to acquire new table and bed linen. Camalier said soup kettles in the kitchen were the

Stambaugh Chosen To Head Legion

Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. Dak., was elected national commander of the American Legion at the Milwaukee legion convention yesterday.

The delegates formally reiterated opposition to communism, fascism and nazism, but refused to go on record in favor of conscription of capital, labor, industry and property, as well as fighting manpower.

Northern Light Show Visits South

Nature put on one of her most spectacular shows last night when the aurora borealis—northern lights—pierced the sky with white, yellow, green, rose and lavender rays.

It was one of the most brilliant displays of its kind, if not the most brilliant, ever seen as far south as Washington. It was visible throughout most of the United States, even to Florida, which is most unusual.

But the magnetic storm which caused the heavenly fireworks played hob with short-wave radio and telegraphic communications, and the public's reaction was reminiscent of two years ago when Orson Wells panicked the Nation with his radio play of a martian invasion of earth.

Broadcasts Interrupted

Broadcasts from foreign radio correspondents and transatlantic short-wave communications were interrupted during the height of the display, some long-distance telephone lines in the United States were put out of commission temporarily and telegraphic communications through most of this country were affected.

Telestypewriters in newspaper offices showed a disconcerting volume of garbled copy which looked

Rent-Fixing Bill Decision Due Next Week

Prettyman Favors Freezing Figure at September, 1940, Level

The special District Defense subcommittee may reach a decision next week on proposals for legislative control of Washington rents following a final public hearing on the question at 10 a. m. Tuesday, Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, announced last night.

Randolph said the subcommittee of which he also is chairman, will be called into executive session after the hearing for the purpose of determining a course of action. He declined to forecast which of three bills before the committee might be accepted or whether any form of control legislation will be approved.

Provisions and intent of the latest rent bill were detailed at a subcommittee hearing by E. Barret Prettyman, president of the District Bar Association. Prettyman appeared as counsel for organized real estate interests here which are backing a measure to freeze rents in Washington at the level of September, 1940.

Encourages Building

The bill, said Prettyman, takes cognizance of the possibility that increased operating costs or dwelling improvements might justify rent increases by authorizing rises in those circumstances.

It also recognized, he explained, that one of the major factors governing rent levels is the quantity of new dwellings available. The measure does this, he stated, by offering new builders a premium by permitting them to charge whatever they will allow for the first month of occupancy and then freezing their rents at that level.

Prettyman testified as a representative of the Joint Defense Housing Committee. The committee, he said, has the backing of the Washington Real Estate Board, the Building Owners and Managers Association, the Operative Builders Association, the District Building and Loan

U. S. Seizes 3 Ships Tied Up in Strike

Supplies for Army Bases Halted; Union Threatens Walkout 'Up and Down Coast'

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 18.—The United States Maritime Commission today took the unprecedented action of requisitioning three ships strikebound by a labor dispute—a move which the Seafarers International Union (A. F. L.) had threatened would precipitate a general shipping strike.

Six hours after the union had rejected a Government ultimatum to arbitrate its war-bonus demands, Capt. Granville Conway, manager of the North Atlantic District of the Maritime Commission, posted notice at Weehawken, N. J., that the commission was taking over operation of three freighters, the Alcoa Banner, Alcoa Trader and Alcoa Scout of the Alcoa Steamship Co.

Two of the ships were loaded with supplies for an American offshore base.

Conditions for Arbitration

Conway said he did not know when the ships would sail, but added, "I hope it will be soon."

The Government could operate the ships with Government crews if the union refused to supply the men. The commission could draw officers and seamen from the Government's training schools and the Army and Navy transport services, maritime sources said.

The union announced later tonight it was willing to allow arbitration "on certain conditions."

The conditions, Union Spokesman Leonard Tir said, were that the arbitrators take into account the union's proposal to the Alcoa Lines that the company apply a $30-a-month top war bonus to seamen employed on vessels plying the West Indies.

Tir said his offer would not hold good unless Harmon Lewis, president of Alcoa, included the West Indies in the "war zone," as are Canadian waters where Alcoa seamen now receive $1 daily as a war bonus.

Conway said requisitioning of the vessels marked the first time such action had been taken by the commission as a result of a maritime labor dispute.

Firm's Head Approves

Lewis earlier said he thought the seizure was a "reasonable move inasmuch as the commission made every effort to make a settlement before taking this action."

Lewis said he believed the requisitioning to be the forerunner of seizure of 55 ships owned or operated by Alcoa.

The Government acted after Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, commission chairman, delivered an ultimatum directing that the war-bonus dispute be submitted to arbitration by noon (E. S. T.) today. The union rejected the ultimatum after a morning conference with Alcoa officials.

Conway indicated further action might be expected with regard to 11 other ships tied up by the strike.

The Government was understood to consider the three vessels to be vital to the movement of lease-lend supplies to American bases along the Atlantic and in the shipment of bauxite ore, for aluminum manufacture, from Caribbean ports to the United States.

John Hawk, union secretary-treasurer, had said earlier that "it doesn't make any difference how many ships are eventually tied up—we're going to win and get our war bonuses."

Rise in Milk Price Threatens To Curtail WPA Lunches

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Danger that the WPA school lunch program may have to be curtailed this fall because of higher milk prices arose yesterday.

Roland M. Brennan, municipal purchasing officer, reported to Commissioner Guy Mason that it would cost District taxpayers $1000 a month additional to supply an estimated 9000 needy youngsters during the next three months.

This is due to the cent-a-quart price increase which went into effect September 6. When bids were opened Tuesday for the contract of supplying the half-pint bottles for the three-month period beginning Monday, the lowest figure was 3½ cents a bottle. This compares with 3¼ cents for milk furnished with WPA free school lunches this summer.

There were two bidders on the new contract, which Brennan said will be awarded in a day or two. They were Embassy-Fairfax Dairy, which submitted the lower bid, and Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase.

It is estimated that 606,000 half-pint bottles will be served during the next three months as part of the free lunches given 9,000 undernourished boys and girls. Accordingly, a half-cent increase means an added burden of $3040.

If the District's sponsor contribution toward the WPA nutrition project cannot stand the cost increase, it may be necessary to extend the lunches to a smaller num-

Roosevelt Asks $5,985,000,000 More to Speed Lease-Lend Aid

(Text of Roosevelt Message on Page 11.)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress for $5,985,000,000 more in lend-lease appropriations to continue uninterrupted for two years "the flow of aid to those countries whose defense is vital to our own."

A brief letter to Speaker Rayburn and accompanying budget estimates were turned over to a reorganized House Appropriations Committee, which prepared to move the new bill to the floor within ten days.

Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, serving his first day as Appropriations chairman, took over control of the deficiencies subcommittee and announced a conference this morning with Administration officials to expedite the program.

Hearings Set for Tuesday

Cannon set subcommittee hearings for Tuesday and predicted a report by the end of next week. He indicated Edward R. Stettinius, jr., lend-lease administrator; Donald Nelson, executive director of SPAB, and high Army and Navy officials will be called.

Leaders predicted passage of the bill without substantial change, as prominent Republicans maneuvered to avert any party-line opposition. Influential minority members of the House Appropriations Committee were expected to line up with the majority in support of the policy.

Anticipating the measure will reach the Senate in a fortnight, Senate managers ordered continuation of the recess until October 6. The House was expected to mark time until September 29, when the bill may be ready.

Aid to Russia Possible

Broken down into the same nine categories of aid as the original seven-billion-dollar appropriation, the bill recommended by the President left aid to Russia possible by specifying only nations "whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

Any effort to ban lend-lease assistance to Russia will be vigorously opposed, although the Administration has decided to assist the beleaguered Soviet separately, through Treasury and RFC loans. Bulk of the new appropriation, as of the old, would go to Britain, her dominions, as well as China and fighting units of conquered nations resisting the Axis and Western Hemisphere nations arming for defense.

Biggest single item in the President's estimate called for $1,875,-

British to Fly 200 to 300 Planes Built in America To Arctic Russia

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Between 200 and 300 combat planes, many of them bombers, that were manufactured in the United States for Great Britain, have been rushed recently to Russia in response to urgent pleas for more concrete assistance.

This disclosure of the increased tempo of aid to Russia came yesterday as officials concerned with the program met with Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle, jr., in an effort to gear it up even more.

Meanwhile, Secretary Morgenthau revealed that the Treasury began giving Russia financial aid August 15 by advancing that country 10 million dollars against gold shipments to be made in 90 days. Morgenthau's statement followed announcement Wednesday by Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, that he is making 100 million dollars available to Russia in exchange for future deliveries of strategic minerals.

Planes Flown to Front

Most of the 200 to 300 planes were flown by way of Great Britain and the fog-shrouded northern route over the North Sea, the Arctic Ocean and the White Sea. The delivery point on Russian soil, though its exact location is a military secret, was probably in the Murmansk-Archangel region, informed officials said.

Bombers can fly nonstop from British soil to a Russian landing field along the route used to ferry officials, such as Harry L. Hopkins, between London and Moscow.

The task in delivering pursuit planes has been more difficult, it was said, for these smaller craft cannot make the England-to-Russia hop by air. They have to be shipped by sea through waters that have often been the scene of German naval action.

Other Routes Undeveloped

Little use has yet been made, it appeared, of the air route which it is planned to set up between Alaska and Russian Siberia. Similarly, the conquest of Iran is too recent for the Iranian supply route to Russia to have been put to important use.

Informed officials said that they plan to develop the following four lines of supply to Russia:

By air from Nome to a landing field in Soviet Siberia and thence by air to the fighting fronts in European Russia.

The water route across the Pacific to Vladivostok.

By sea to the Persian Gulf and then overland through Iran to southern Russia.

By sea and air across the

Unite Behind Foreign Policy, Dirksen Asks

House Applauds G. O. P. Leader's Call for Adjournment of 'Hate'

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, an influential sub-leader of the Republican minority, yesterday appealed in a House speech for unified support of the Administration foreign and national defense policies.

Dirksen's speech, carefully worded and delivered after consultation with leading Congressional Republican "moderates," asked for a "moratorium on hate" and acceptance of the logic that permanent peace will come quickest through defeat of the Axis.

Significantly, the speech followed Sunday's address by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, like Dirksen a frequent critic of the President's policies, declaring the country "must and will support" the President's naval order to "shoot first."

Willkie Acts for Harmony

Coincidentally, Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican Presidential nominee, was moving to avert a party line split on the President's foreign course by disclosing through his friends that he would not support any Hous Republican for reelection who opposed the President's foreign policy, including a strong national defense.

"The President has announced," Dirksen told the House, "a policy of patrolling and clearing the waters which are deemed necessary to our defense and for the maintenance of freedom of the seas.

"That policy is now known to all the world. To disavow or oppose that policy now could only weaken the President's position, impair our prestige and imperil the Nation."

A round of applause followed his 20-minute speech, including a hand from Republicans, who outnumbered Democrats in the chamber at the time.

At the outset he said that two words, "isolationist" and "interventionist," have worked great harm to this country in the 15 months since Republican and Democratic parties

Power Union Calls Strikers Back to Work

Pickets Withdrawn In Kansas City Tieup But Soon Reappear

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Sept. 18.—Striking electrical workers were called back to work tonight after a [illegible] walkout that blinded and paralyzed Kansas City at its outset, but a misunderstanding between union and company officials foreboded prolongation of the dispute.

The strikers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.), were instructed by their local officers to report back to work for the 11 p. m. shift. Pickets were withdrawn, but an hour later reappeared without explanation.

W. B. Petty, I. B. E. W. organizer, said the back-to-work order was issued on his understanding that it was agreed the Kansas City Power and Light Co. would replace all employes in the status which they occupied prior to the strike, without discrimination.

Charges Placed Against Six

H. A. Kuhn, vice president of the power company, said he had a very definite understanding with George Stocking of the Defense Mediation Board, which engineered the truce, that men accused of sabotage would not be reinstated unless they were exonerated.

Five of 15 men arrested during the strike have been charged with malicious destruction of property. Albert F. Wright, an organizer sent out by Petty, was charged with trespass.

The back-to-work order was issued hours after the Mediation Board's formula was announced in Washington.

Jurisdictional Dispute

The plan, approved by Edward J. Brown, president of the I. B. E. W., George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L., and Kuhn, provided that the Mediation Board send an investigator to look further into the controversy and make recommendations to the board for expediting its early disposition.

The strike was called after the

BULLETIN

Moscow (Friday), Sept. 19 (AP).—German forces have reached the gates of Kiev, a Soviet information bureau communique reported early today.

(Detailed Stories on Pages 2 and 3.)

By the Associated Press

The Soviet island fortress of Kronstadt, Russia's principal naval base, which guards the water approach to Leningrad, was reported yesterday to have been silenced by shattering German dive-bomber attacks.

Finnish army correspondents on the Karelian shore reported that the Russian guns had been still for several days and said thick smoke enveloped the Soviet batteries after prolonged German raids.

In Berlin, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, said Kronstadt's big guns had been silenced by German Artillery pounding and steady Luftwaffe attacks.

The reports came amid assertions that the Red troops were suffering severe reverses on the whole front.

Crimea Cut off

The Russians appeared to have suffered a major defeat in the isolation of the Crimean peninsula by the Nazi Ukrainian forces and were said in Allied Britain actually to be in a perilous position everywhere through the cumulative effects of enormous losses, particularly in materials of war.

A competent London source, giving from the Allied viewpoint the most melancholy estimate of the Soviet situation yet made public, declared plainly that only a veritable and immediate "Niagara" of supplies from Britain and the United States could save the Red armies from disaster.

Moreover, he warned that lacking quick and effective replacements in equipment the Russians might have to give up—to respond to overtures for a separate peace which he predicted Hitler would make.

Leningrad Reported Starving

Meanwhile claims of new successes were made in both Moscow and Berlin. On the Leningrad front the Red army asserted it had made an advance of nearly 10 miles.

The Nazis, however, claimed Leningrad, a city of three and a half million, is starving—the high command said radio appeals to Moscow for food had been intercepted, but that there was no possibility of supplies being sent into the steel-encircled city.

One of the most authoritative military publications in Russia, the army organ Red Star, asserted that the fogs of autumn already had closed in to swallow up "the dreams of Hitler's general staff for a blitzkrieg in the east."

Reports to Ankara, Turkey, said indications of a considerable spread in the fighting were seen in the mobilization of 350,000 men in Bulgaria and feverish activity by German experts in the Balkan country to construct highways which would be useful for a land-and-sea drive to Suez.

Million-Dollar Fire Near Boston Navy Yard Curbed

Boston, Sept. 18 (AP).—Flames that destroyed four Boston & Maine Railroad freight sheds, forced the evacuation of nearby tenements and finally crept almost to the State prison walls were controlled tonight after a two-hour battle that brought hundreds of fire fighters to the crowded Charlestown section.

Fire Commissioner William A. Reilly estimated the loss at one million dollars and said the cause was undetermined. Five casualties were reported.

All available fire fighting equipment was called from several metropolitan communities.

Chile Studies Nazi Reprisal Arrests

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 18 (AP).—Chile asked its ambassador in Berlin today for a quick report on the arrest of several Chileans in Germany in what the press termed reprisal for Chilean arrest of some 30 Nazi leaders of the military Landesgruppe organization.

Nazis Clamp Curfew on Paris, Ban Night Traffic

Vichy, France (Friday), Sept. 19 (AP).—The Germans announced today that new severe restrictions would be applied to the entire population of Paris as reprisals for attacks on German occupation troops.

The German military authorities imposed a strict curfew to extend for three days.

Traffic anywhere in the Seine department was prohibited from 9 p. m. to 5 a. m. All theaters, restaurants and places of amusements are required to close at 8 p. m. during the same three-day period beginning Saturday.

German military police ordered that any violators of regulations be arrested and held as hostages. German army units were ordered to patrol all streets.

Sit-Down Strike Hits British War Plant

London, Sept. 18 (U.S.).—Three thousand workers in a London factory making war supplies were on a sit-down strike tonight over a proposal to transfer 20 men to another factory. Negotiations for a settlement are going on.

5 Schoolboys Cross Channel In Canoes to Join Free French

By the United Press

Eastbourne, England, Sept. 18.—Five French schoolboys, cold, wet, hungry and carrying their schoolbooks, arrived today from across the choppy English Channel in two frail, 12-foot canoes to join the Free French army.

The ages of the boys—two pairs of brothers and a friend—ranged from 17 to 19. They could not speak English, but they carried letters to English friends.

They said they had spent two nights and days at sea after their escape Tuesday night. The Germans who saw them paddle out into a river thought they were going for a pleasure junket and did not molest them.

Using the stars for guidance, they headed West. An adverse current held their tiny craft back and the waves tossed them perilously near to doom. They put up improvised sails but made such little headway that at dawn Wednesday they were still in view of the French coast and the peril of pursuit was added to their troubles.

They took down the sails, to lessen their visibility from shore, and paddled all day.

Wednesday night they unfurled the sails again and made good time. Today, approaching the beach, one canoe struck a rock and sank and the occupants had to swim ashore. The other canoe made shore safely.

Exhausted but obviously happy, the boys were taken in custody by security police. They said they had brought their schoolbooks to continue their studies while waiting to be of use to the Free French forces.

Kronstadt Forts Reported Silenced

Stukas Stilled Guns at Red Naval Base, Finns Say, Leaving Smoking Ruins

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Sept. 18.—Finnish army correspondents reported today that the Soviet island fortress of Kronstadt which guards the sea approach to Leningrad and is Russia's main naval base had been silenced.

An army dispatch said that after ceaseless day and night bombardment by the Germans the fort suddenly went dead and has not fired a shot for several days.

Thick smoke was said to have enveloped the Russian batteries after tremendous blasting by many Stukas.

The Finns were able to see that the great cathedral and many factory chimneys on Kotlin Island, where Kronstadt is situated, were still standing, the dispatch said. Kronstadt is only 15 miles from the Finnish shore.

Dispatches from the front said that ship traffic between Leningrad and Kronstadt had been "extremely lively" recently and that a large fleet of Red warships was on constant patrol in waters near Leningrad itself.

A number of Red naval sallies against Finnish coast positions were said to have been repulsed by shore batteries.

Report Nazis Hurled Back 10 Miles at Leningrad

By the United Press

Moscow, Sept. 18.—Soviet military dispatches said today that defenders of Leningrad, freshly reinforced with the city's best citizens and soldiers, in a series of successful counterattacks had driven the Germans back nearly 10 miles and recaptured three villages.

"We are dealing blow after blow on the enemy, who is suffering bloody losses," a broadcast from the besieged city of 3,200,000 reported.

It said also that the Germans had brought up fresh crack divisions. The Red army countered by pouring into the front line trenches and fortifications a new lot of warriors, both troops and the civilian volunteers swelling the Soviet ranks.

The Soviet Information Bureau said the Red army had retaken the town of "N" after 28 hours of stubborn fighting in which the Germans lost 600 officers and men, 12 guns and seven mine throwers. Forty-seven soldiers were captured, it said.

Other reports told of a Soviet success in an unidentified sector of the Leningrad front, where a unit commanded by one Tikhonov rushed the enemy back 9.3 miles and inflicted heavy losses on them.

Tass, the official news agency, said that in the last few days the Red army forces in the Leningrad area had undertaken a sequence of counter-thrusts at the enemy forces pressing in on the city. Nearly 600 Germans were killed or wounded in the attacks retaking three villages, while stores of guns and other war booty fell into Russian hands.

The Baltic fleet's air arm sent bombers over the enemy lines, the high command reported in a war communique Wednesday, where they destroyed 16 tanks, 21 cars, and one field battery.

It said the Red air fleet rained a telling series of blows on enemy troops and destroyed planes aground on enemy airdromes.

In the region of Dnieperopetrovsk, the communique said, Soviet planes blew up a German munitions train, several oil trucks, five cars, and a number of guns, and killed "a company" of Germans.

In the last two days, the high command said, bombers of the Black Sea fleet destroyed in the Odessa area a field battery, 60 tanks, some cars, and shot down two enemy fighters.

Guerrillas in the Smolensk area, were reported to have killed 171 Germans and destroyed three tanks and other vehicles, guns and mortars.

Russians to Assemble 25 Million Reserves

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Sept. 18.—The Soviet Union began assembling its almost illimitable man power today for the creation of the greatest reserve military force in history—estimated unofficially at not less than 25 million men—while early autumn fog and rain were declared to be swallowing Hitler's last hope of quick and decisive victories.

Announcement of Premier Stalin's new conscription of every man between 16 and 50 not already in service was accompanied by declarations that for Russia the struggle just had begun.

Asserting that the German general staff faced the approaching winter with no further hope for a blitzkrieg in the East, the official organ of the Soviet armies, Red Star, nevertheless warned:

". . . But we must realize that the war will be long and severe."

"Realization of this measure (for conscription) is of enormous significance in the entire course of the people's war against German fascism," Red Star added. "Our nation never was the slave of the Germans or any other enemies and shall not become a slave now."

(Regular Soviet troops already in the field against the Nazis are estimated at nine million and, the British have said, Moscow also has another four million trained and equipped and ready to go into action at any time.)

By the Associated Press

Vallejo, Calif., Sept. 18.—Army officials expressed keen interest today in a strange-looking, radio-controlled aerial torpedo developed by a Mare Island Navy Yard engineer.

They watched his experiments with a 6-foot working model in a field near Vallejo and recommended that he continue tests and make a complete report. Such a torpedo could open up a totally new branch of aerial warfare.

The winged torpedo, which operates on a gyroscope principle, is designed to fly at an altitude of 30,000 feet. Carrying a load of bombs, it would be set at the sending point to power dive at terrific speed into a designated enemy target, spraying bombs over a wide area.

John Hodgdon, former professor of engineering with the United States Insular Service, developed the torpedo at his home after experiments which he said began 30 years ago. He said he was one of the inventors of wing flaps which aid in decreasing an airplane's landing speed.

His working model, with a 6-foot body, has a wingspread of 8 feet and an unusually large tail assembly, some 6 feet across. The ship is powered with three gasoline motors.

While the torpedo might not prove critically accurate on long-distance flights, it would be highly effective in bombing large objectives, Hodgdon said.

"For instance, somebody with this machine could do a lot of damage to the Mare Island Navy Yard, but the torpedo might not be accurate enough to pick out a battleship at sea."

Planes, Tanks Enact Battle in Louisiana

Army Employs Fighters' Cannon On Armored Forces for First Time

By the Associated Press

With the Third Army in Louisiana, Sept. 18.—The Louisiana war games today became an air-ground slugging match with airplanes, armored forces and weary soldiers putting everything they had into the Second vs. Third Army training exercises now seemingly approaching a decisive stage.

Before dawn, Third Army planes dropped brilliant flares over forces of the Second Army, driving southwestward with mighty armored fighting teams as its spearhead. Immediately the Third air task force began sending over wave after wave of bombing and fighting planes to blast the fast, steel-protected Second Army columns hitting between the Red River on the east and the Sabine River in the west.

For the great airplane-tank fight, the Army threw into action cannon-firing fighting planes that in war would fire explosive armor-piercing shells. It is the first time the planes—swift, single-seater fighters—have been used for anything except attack upon other planes.

Full Forces Used

They mount 37-millimeter guns, the same size as the Army's principal anittank weapon, and fire through the propeller hub. This plane has had a successful baptism of fire in Europe, where it is known as the "Caribou." The Army calls it P-38.

Each side used its full forces in the continued conflict that was launched Monday. It was a grueling test of men and equipment for rarely have maneuvers progressed more than 72 hours without rest.

Today's spectacle of about 600 planes in constant bombing raids and aerial dog fights was the greatest display of air might that the Army has put in the field since the defense program started.

Even the Third Army's 400-mile-an-hour pursuit planes were equipped, theoretically, with 500-pound bombs in the assault of the Second Army's two armored divisions. As fast as they reached their targets they sped back to their bases, reloaded and were off again.

The Third Army had an edge of about 55 pursuit craft in the air battle. The Second Army had to concentrate its aviation over the armored divisions to protect them from bombers so they could get set for a "break through."

Plane Strength Praised

New Orleans, Sept. 18 (AP).—Two high-ranking United States air officials expressed the belief in an interview today that this Nation's air power is great enough to withstand any assault.

They were Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, and Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air forces, who arrived here yesterday after an inspection trip of air facilities in the vital Louisiana-Texas maneuver area.

Both refused to be quoted directly, on the United States' air power, but were emphatic in the belief that its equipment is as good as any in the world and that its personnel is superb.

The President's Day

By International News Service

FLAG DOWN: The flag over the White House came down at sunset and late last night the President left for a weekend of settling the estate of his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt, at Hyde Park. As executor as well as beneficiary Mr. Roosevelt will straighten out certain details, clear up others. He is expected to return early next week.

DIANA AND FALA: While the President worked steadily through the day, soothed some ruffled feathers, dressed down others, Diana Hopkins, a playmate, and F. D. R.'s bright-eyed Scottie Fala played noisily and lustily outside the office windows. Fala barked, the little girls whooped and hollered, the President smiled. Finally a staff member slipped out, persuaded the two girls and small black dog to play elsewhere. A few minutes later passers-by on the Pennsylvania side of the Executive Mansion gathered to watch two barefooted, shorts - and - sweater clad youngsters having a wonderful time running the squirrels on the White House front lawn ragged. The Secret Service stepped in, removed the little Hopkins and friend to the south lawn—in sight of the President's office again.

MESSAGE UP, CONGRESS DOWN: Up to Congress early in the morning went the Presidential request for $5,985,000,000 lend-lease funds and down to the White House dribbled three Congressmen. First in was Speaker Rayburn. Later Lyndon Johnson, the Texan defeated for Texas Senatorship, came around for 15 minutes with the boss. Ten minutes before lunchtime, the silk-stocking New York Republican, Representative Joseph C. Baldwin, arrived at the request of the President, probably talked over Candidate Fiorello La-Guardia's chances as a third-term Mayor of Manhattan.

HULL & NAVY: Officially unlisted and unannounced, Secretary Hull and Admrial Harold Stark showed up to see the Big Chief. Stark came and went first, followed in both instances by Hull. Both were ultrasecretive, even for the State Department and the Navy, went so far as to refuse to admit directly that they had been in the President's office at the same time. They had.

Two Frenchmen Executed for Treason in Algiers

Vichy, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Official reports from Algiers said today that two Frenchmen were executed by a firing squad for treason. They were convicted by a court martial on May 27.

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 18 (AP).—Penalties ranging up to death for acts which "disturb or endanger security, economic life and labor peace" are provided in a decree published in the official Norwegian Gazette today.

Strikes, lockouts, industrial sabotage and agitation and "wanton decrease of work" are included among the list of acts for which severe penalties are provided.

A second decree extends the jurisdiction of the German S. S., or Elite Guards, and of the German police throughout Norway.

11 Belgians Sentenced to Die For Anti-German Activities

Berlin, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Eleven Belgians have been sentenced to death by a German field court martial for espionage, printing of pamphlets against Germany, and "assisting the enemy," the German language newspaper, Brusseler Zeitung, said today.

At the same time the Krakauer Zeitung reported that a special court in Warsaw had sentenced to death a Pole accused of butchering 20 pigs and 15 calves and selling the meat at "black market" prices.

"The crime against the food supply is so serious that it can be avenged only by the death penalty," the court was quoted.

The field court martial which heard the 14-hour trial of the Belgians specified that there would be no appeal from the extreme penalties, the Brusseler Zeitung said. It did not say whether the court's sentences had been carried out.

One of the 11 Belgians received two death sentences. A twelfth person was sentenced to seven years imprisonment "for assisting others in assisting the enemy" and a thirteenth was freed for lack of evidence.

Crimea Cut Off

British Fear Red Disaster Unless Aided

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 18.—An ominous warning that Russia must have a swift floodtide of war supplies or face military disaster and, perhaps, capitulation, came tonight from a London source in a position to speak with authority.

[An International News Service dispatch called its informant "a cabinet spokesman."]

With the Crimea apparently cut off by Germany's Ukrainian advance and the Red Army's losses in men and tanks described as astronomical, this informant said a Niagara of British and American materiel is essential to continuation of Russian resistance.

He went so far as to predict that Adolf Hitler would offer the Russians a separate peace and that the Russians—failing to get equipment—might be forced to lay down their arms.

"The whole history of the world turns on the outcome of this battle," said this source. "We will fight on even if Russia is beaten, but our task then will become much harder."

Crisis at Hand

Now, he averred, the battle is "swaying either way"—toward Russian disaster or success.

He cited figures to the end of August as showing the Russians had lost three million men and the Germans two million. Moreover, he hinted that Red army losses in tanks constituted one of Russia's serious blows, and he disclosed that the Germans were repairing captured tanks and using them in their offensive.

The British, the informant continued, have opened an effective railway and highway route to Russia through Iran, and this can be turned into a supply artery for the Russians, once the supplies are forthcoming.

These expressions of authoritative opinion coincided with the gloomiest of surveys of the Russian military position in the south.

Crimea Report Believed

Isolation of Crimea, now regarded here as fact, means the loss to the Russians of service on Crimea's only railway across the Perekop Isthmus. Thus, it was explained, Crimea cannot easily be reinforced when the Germans bring to bear the full force of their attack.

This, the London sources expected, would come soon in a land-air-sea offensive to seize not only Crimea but the industrial Donets basin. They considered the present threat to Crimea to be more grave than that to Leningrad, on the north, because "every vantage point to Leningrad has to be won by extremely hard fighting through a very heavily fortified area."

Only such fortifications protect Crimea, on which the Germans are reported advancing on a broad front. The peninsula is connected to the mainland by two narrow strips of land, the wider barely 5 miles across, and contact with the mainland would have to continue by sea, probably by way of Rostov, which is exposed to all the dangers of German air and naval attack.

Pessimistic Officials

London sources were pessimistic, too, about the effect Russia's counteroffensive in the center sector will have on the German Ukrainian drive or the siege of Leningrad on Russia's counteroffensive in the central sector of the long eastern front.

The Red Army successes in the center, they said, are too far distant from either the Leningrad or the Ukrainian salients to constitute a real threat to the flanks of the advancing Nazis.

Official British quarters received in silence a new press campaign for a British offensive in western Europe to relieve pressure on the Russians. The official view is considered to be that no continental invasion is feasible as long as both Britain and the United States are sending considerable parts of their own armaments to the U. S. S. R.

City Left Flaming As Nazis Press On In Eastern Ukraine

By Hugo Speck

International News Service Staff Writer

Berlin, Sept. 18.—Shattering blitzkrieg attacks in the Ukraine in which Luftwaffe bombs and German "speed troops" have opened huge gaps in the Soviet battle ranks guarding Kiev, Odessa and the Crimean Peninsula were revealed by a Nazi military spokesman tonight.

In the wake of a high command communique claiming new gains in the seige of Leningrad, the capture of Maj. Gen. Pavel Chistoff, one of Stalin's closest advisers, and naval victories in the Baltic and Black Seas, tonight's announcement added new successes.

Odessa was battered from dusk to dawn Wednesday night and early today in the worst "blitz" raids of the war, the spokesman said. Moscow, too, suffered heavily from German bombs during this period. And a Soviet destroyer of the Leningrad class was sunk in the Black Sea with a 5000-ton transport and a 1000-ton supply vessel severely damaged.

Industrial City Taken

[The capture of a key city of the Soviet armament industry in a drive so swift that the Russians had no chance to dynamite the water and electric plants as they had arranged to do was claimed by the Germans, according to the Associated Press.

[Identity and location of the city, said to be of 30,000 population, were not disclosed by D. N. B., official German news agency, but the high command reported that in the Ukraine "offensive operations east of the Dnieper are progressing irresistibly." That region is highly industrialized.]

Announcement of the sinking of the Leningrad class destroyer brought to a total of eight the number of naval vessels reported sunk or damaged within the last 24 hours. Twenty merchant vessels of varying size were sunk or damaged in the same period, it was claimed.

The German high command also asserted that the steel ring around Leningrad was threatening that great city's inhabitants with starvation.

One hundered and nineteen Russian pill-boxes, concrete and steel fortifications guarding the northern industrial center's inner defenses, fell before the German onslaught, said the high command communique.

A military spokesman, however, elaborating on the communique, stated that radio messages from Leningrad's defenders, urging Moscow to rush foodstuffs to the city, had been picked up.

"The people of Leningrad are unable to starve longer," the Leningrad radio station was quoted as stating.

Moscow, said the military spokesman, was trying to comply with these urgent requests but thus far has been unable to break through the iron ring of Nazi troops encircling the city.

Mention in the communique that several Soviet counterattacks in the Leningrad area had been repulsed with heavy losses to the attackers tended to confirm the spokesman's claims.

It was asserted that these counterattacks were led by strong forces of Red tanks, most of which were destroyed. Great quantities of war material were taken and a large number of prisoners captured, the communique added.

Kronstadt Under Fire

The high command earlier announced two submarines and four motor torpedo boats had been sunk, presumably in the Leningrad area where the great Soviet naval base of Kronstadt was reported under direct shellfire.

The earlier claims were augmented by tonight's announcement that 11 transport vessels were sunk or damaged in Lake Ladoga.

Odessa was turned into a flaming ruin with hundreds of tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs raining upon the Black Sea port's harbor facilities all night long, the Nazi spokesman asserted.

Observers reported numerous explosions among the city's warehouses and wharves and said huge conflagrations were burning when they returned to their bases.

No details of the night blitz on Moscow were given, but it was claimed that 69 Soviet planes were shot down while only four German bombers were missing.

(From London came a statement that Nazi troops were taking an "adventurous short cut" through the Crimea to the rich Caucasus oil fields. A cabinet spokesman declared that unless a great stream of American and British aid was poured into Russia at once, Hitler might win a political victory before spring.)

Capture of Maj. Gen. Chistoff was put forth by a Nazi military spokesman as an indication of the speed with which blitz troops were crashing through the shattered troops of Marshal Budyenny's armies of the Ukraine.

Chistoff was captured September 3, it was revealed, about 5 miles from the vital Kiev-Moscow railway town of Bryansk while inspecting ground intended for a new defense line between Bryansk and the Dnieper, following roughly the line of the Desna River, which flows into the Dnieper near Kiev.

The Red general, wearing the medal of the Order of Lenin, the Soviet's highest military honor, was reported to have said that the new line was being built at the order of Dictator Stalin.

Apparently, the blitzkrieg is attaining its full powers in the Ukraine. The military spokesman declared that Nazi motorcycle units were smashing through Budyenny's shattered troops so fast and to such a depth that in one place they attacked Red troops boarding trains to take them to the front.

29th's War Games Revealed Lack of Trucks, Reckord Says

By the Associated Press

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Sept. 18.—Transportation difficulties arising during the Twenty-ninth Division's mock war exercise game added emphasis to the division's continued demands for more trucks, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding officer, said tonight.

"The striking force of the Blue's invasion of Red territory was lessened materially," he said, "when tactics tactics directors were forced to employ slow, shuttle movements in carrying troops 50 miles to the attack sectors. The problem called for an initial, hard-hitting impact by the entire force at once. But as it developed, not all of the 12,000 men were in attack positions at the zero hour. Many were still moving to the front."

Gen. Reckord also asserted that effective troop movement was impeded by an inadequate number of radio patrol cars, which are used chiefly to ascertain enemy positions.

His only criticism of officers and men during the three-day maneuver was that reconnoitering patrols did not function aggressively and messages from scouting patrols were not relayed to headquarters in the rear with sufficient speed. Shortage of equipment was partially responsible for the delays, he added.

Several radio cars, scheduled to arrive next week, will relieve the problem of relaying messages, but no solution is in sight for the transportation problem, he said.

All other phases of the action were termed "very satisfactory" by Gen. Reckord. He stressed that the Regular Army Seventy-first Coast Artillery antiaircraft batteries and searchlights "did a very effective job in reinforcing the invading Blues."

Problem directors from the Second Army Corps headquarters assembled officers this afternoon for a general critique and were in session two hours as umpires pointed out plans in the tactics employed by both forces.

The mock war, which ended this morning at 9 after only about three hours of conflict between the main bodies, was the opening exercise of a preliminary training period at A. P. Hill. Staff officers stated that no other long field maneuvers were planned for the division before it leaves next week—probably Thursday—for two months of maneuvers with the First Army this fall in North Carolina.

Contrary to a previous order, the men will be granted leaves this weekend extending from Friday until Saturday, headquarters officers said.

Insane Radioman Blamed for Ship's Report of Piracy

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Shanghai, Sept. 18.—A radio appeal for help picked up here last night from the British-owned Wheelock & Co. steamer Boyaca, flying the Panamian flag, which left Shanghai yesterday morning for the Netherlands East Indies. The ship's radio reported that ten Chinese deck passengers had "pirated" the vessel.

While local naval and commercial shipping circles expressed concern over the incident, the Japanese navy dispatched two rescue vessels. The "piracy" was explained today when it was announced that the Boyaca's radio operator had become insane just prior to the appeal for help. The nationality of the operator was not given.

Marshall Field 3d Snaps Fingers at Money

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Marshall Field 3d is the possessor of one of the Nation's greatest fortunes and, he said today, he doesn't know what is going to happen to his money, and he doesn't care.

Addressing a regional conference of the American Public Welfare Association, of which he is the chairman of the committee on defense, he said:

"I don't know what is going to happen to me. I happen to have been left a great deal of money. I don't know what is going to happen to it, and I don't give a damn.

"If I can't make myself worthy of three square meals a day, then I do not deserve them."

He said he did not believe the country ever again would "see the situation where there is a shortage of food in one place and it is being destroyed in another."

"If that starts to happen because some selfish interests try to get in the way," Field said, "they will be pushed out of the way so quickly you won't be able to see their dust."

Reds Sink One Of Finland's Biggest Warships

Stockholm, Sept. 18 (INS).—Sinking of the 3900-ton Finnish coast defense ship Ilmarinen—presumably in a battle with the Soviet battle fleet—was confirmed tonight by the Finnish Legation in Stockholm.

Out of the crew of 330, about 250 men were feared lost.

The Ilmarinen was one of Finland's two largest war vessels, her sister ship being the Vaeinamoeinen

British Rush Planes Built Here to Reds

Arctic Ocean to the Murmansk-Archangel region.

As the Administration pushed its efforts to help Russia, President Roosevelt, just before leaving for a weekend at his Hyde Park (N. Y.), home, conferred with his naval and diplomatic advisers.

The President met in a late afternoon conference with Secretary of State Hull, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, which directs disposition of the fleet.

It was presumed that their conference had to do with ways of implementing the President's pledge to defend the freedom of "American defensive waters."

Reds Also Get Tanks

The 200 to 300 planes that have been sent to the Russians do not represent the full amount of aid already delivered to them. In addition, oil has been landed at Vladivistok and a substantial number of tanks have been turned over to the Soviets, officials said.

The planes, however, were expected to be a considerable factor in helping the Soviet air force maintain its resistance. Informed quarters estimated that the Russians now have 5000 to 6000 airplanes aivalable as against 12,000 when the war with Germany began. Experts said that German losses have also been very great.

Though recent dispatches concerning the German drive in southern Russia have made official observers here pessimistic about Russia's near-term prospects, they still have every confidence that the Russians will be able to maintain organized resistance through the winter.

Their pessimism is limited to fear that further rich areas in the Ukraine may fall into the German hands, but they have not by any means given up hope that Russia may be able to wear out her attackers.

Fight for Supply Lines

One close observer said that the objective of the present German drive is to seize routes of water communication that can be used to supply German forces in northern and southern Russia during the coming winter. This is how he explained the determined German drive to clean up the Leningrad-Tallinn area and to capture Odessa and the Crimea before writer sets in.

A major German objective, it was said, is to seize Kharkov, Russia's third industrial city, an even richer prize than Kiev.

Morgenthau explained that his advance of ten million dollars to the Russians was made, at the request of Soviet Ambassador Oumansky, to enable the Soviets to make payment for goods already ordered. The cash was advanced after Oumansky said the gold would be delivered in 90 days.

The credit was extended after approval by the State Department, said Morgenthau.

The Treasury Secretary said he did not know whether any of the gold had arrived here yet and Commerce Department figures show no imports of gold from Russia since August 13.

Asked whether Russian credit was good, Morgenthau replied:

McCarran Urges New Aged Home

only equipment he could find in the home that was not second hand. The old iron beds and cots, he reported, are discards from police and fire stations and table cloths "looked like a machine gun had been fired through them."

Five—The home urgently needs more nurses and attendants. Only one graduate nurse and a physician are available for the care of 580 inmates. The home, it was pointed out, has funds for three nurses, but one has retired and another resigned. McCarran urged that the positions be filled without delay.

Six—Modern equipment should be installed in the kitchen where the steam table, like the china, was new in 1917.

Seven—Toilet and bathing facilities, which Camalier called "indescribably filthy," should be modernized and made sanitary and there should be more of them. Camalier said he found only five bathtubs in the home, four stationary and one on wheels. He expressed amazement at finding that the barber shops are without water facilities and that water for shaving is obtained from a water cooler nearby.

Sterlizing Equipment

Eight—The kitchen should be supplied with sterilizing equipment for table and cooking utensils. Camalier said he observed bits of food on forks and knives, supposedly washed.

Nine—The Commissioners should make a survey of other city institutions which might be used for temporary quarters for inmates, in event funds are not immediately available to make Blue Plains habitable.

There seemed little likelihood last night that the Commissioners would be faced with this contingency. After their tour of Blue Plains Wednesday the Commissioners ordered department executives to search for funds which can be spent at once on the home.

District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton reported that a total of $5872 has been found, $5342 representing the profits of the 1889 inauguration of Benjamin Harrison and $530 from a trust fund set up by one William Hauer.

The surplus from the Harrison inauguration had been set aside for the purchase of food and clothing for the poor, Pilkerton explained. City officials could not immediately identify Hauer but reported that money from his estate could be spent on the home.

No Time to Wait, He Says

The money, Pinkerton said, will be used to buy food and clothing and thus will free funds, appropriated for that purpose, for the purchase of bed pans, adjustable hospital beds and dietetic food trays.

Describing conditions at the home as "indescribably filthy and unsanitary," Camalier reported to McCarran before the Senator left for Nevada last night, that by no means should Congress wait to remedy conditions until funds are appropriated for the District for another fiscal year starting next July.

"No human being should be asked to go through another winter in that place," Camalier declared. "Now is the time to do something.

"The Commissioners and Mrs. Roosevelt have not exaggerated conditions at Blue Plains, in the slightest. During my tour of the home I learned that none of Mrs. Roosevelt's recommendations has been adopted although nearly two years have passed since she made them."

Calls It a Fire Trap

Camalier described the institution as a "fire trap" and expressed concern at his inability to find any fire extinguishers in the place. He declared he was particularly shocked at conditions he found in the infirmary and in another room in which well but feeble aged persons lie on iron beds.

When Camalier came to one of the dormitories at Blue Plains he found it locked. He asked an attendant why and was told, he said, that the purpose was to keep the dormitories as clean as possible for inspection by visitors.

From the public, some curious, some anxious, others panicky, came thousands of telephone calls to newspapers, police stations, observatories and weather bureaus. The weather bureau here reported 600 calls in an hour.

One woman thought the world had come to an end. Another, from nearby Maryland, reported rays emanating from the moon, accompanied by the smell of burning sulphur.

Part of Defense?

Many were certain the display had something to do with national defense. "Is it an antiaircraft searchlight battery?" asked some. One thought Germany was invading the United States.

The lights were most plainly visible here from 6 to 7 p. m., although a faint glow could be discerned as late as 11 p. m.

The multi-colored streamers could be seen best in outlying sections, where there was no competition from city lights, but they were also clearly visible from the streets of Washington.

Observers climbed to the tops of apartment houses and office buildings to view the phenomenon. Along many streets of Washington, pedestrians stopped to gaze at the northern sky.

May Return Tonight

The aurora, which was first observed by some night owls about 2 a. m. yesterday, may return again tonight, scientists said. It is also possible, the National Geographic Society said, that the lights will be visible again in 27 or 28 days.

The last display to compare in brilliance with last night's occurred 10 or 12 years, according to Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and director of its astrophysical observatory.

The spectacle of shimmering lights, in changing patterns, covered the northern sky almost from east to west. At the beginning, multicolored rays shot up from the horizon and converged at a point high in the heavens. Later the waving rays took a fan-like formation, shooting outward and upward from an arc above the horizon. Then, as the aurora began to disappear clouds of colored lights moved upward from the horizon.

How It Happens

The cause of magnetic storms and auroras has never been definitely determined, but the National Geographic Society, which has directed a study of them for the last three years, last night outlined the most widely accepted theory like this:

Electrically-charged particles continually stream out of the sun, visible in what are known as sun spots, and strike the upper atmosphere of the earth.

The sun particles break up the molecules of the gas in this upper atmosphere and electrify them, rendering the moelcules susceptible to the earth's magnetic field. The molecules are therefore drawn to the earth's poles.

As they near the poles, the particles are agitated by magnetism more vigorously until they begin to glow with heat. This is something like the action of an electric current on the gas inside the tube of a neon or fluorescent light.

The magnetic storm caused by agitation of the molecular particles induces cross currents in land wires, disrupting communications.

Halts Short Waves

And in hitting the earth's upper atmosphere, the particles from the sun interfere with solar radiations which normally maintain an ionized layer in the earth's atmosphere. This layer forms a kind of mirror which reflects radio short waves back to the earth where they are picked up by receiving sets. When it is broken, the short waves go shooting off into space. Regular commercial broadcasting is not affected because long waves travel along the earth's surface and do not have to be bounched back from an ionized layer above.

The particles from the sun either come out of the sun's craters or from nearby points. When the craters face the earth, the magnetic storms result. This is expected to occur again, possibly, in 27 or 28 days, as the sun turns.

adopted similar platforms on foreign policy and defense.

He said he preferred a more definitive expression, "moderationist," avoiding both extremes.

Negotiated Peace "Remote"

Of three manifest means of achieving world peace, Dirksen said:

"Peace by agreement seems remote. If it were possible it could scarcely be more than a transitory and unstable interlude. . . . Exhaustion will come to the embattled nations but nobody knows when. There remains, therefore, a continuation of armed effort and the ultimate defeat of one party to the conflict. America has plumped for victory. That leaves but one result—the defeat of the Axis powers."

Union Would Deal With C.B.S. Head

Because of the deadlocked negotiations between the Columbia Broadcasting System and its union technicians, who are demanding wage and hour revisions, members of the American Broadcasting Technicians Union in a Nationwide poll yesterday declared themselves in favor of dealing directly with C. B. S. President William Paley. Previous parleys had been conducted with Leslie Atlass, vice president of the broadcasting company.

Spokesmen for local unions in the major cities flew to New York last night to decide what action should be taken as a result of the poll.

Kansas City Power Strikers Go Back

Defense Mediation Board referred back to the Labor Board and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals a dispute between the brotherhood and the Independent Union of Utility Employes over which should represent 200 overhead workers and a dozen employes in the steam department.

In Washington a Mediation Board panel renewed its efforts to settle a strike in "captive" soft coal mines in a series of separate conferences with operators and officials of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.).

John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, and a score of his associates waited in a board anteroom for more than an hour while William H. Davis, board chairman, conferred with the mine operators. Later the panel conferred with the union leaders. All participants were enjoined to secrecy by board officials.

The miners struck Monday to enforce their demands for a union shop. The mines, for the most part, are owned by steel companies.

Lewis was revealed yesterday to have warned that he might call 330,000 soft-coal miners in the Appalachian area out on strike for the second time this year because of the captive mine dispute.

It was learned that Lewis had sent to all Appalachian coal operators in the North and South a letter saying the union might take advantage of the clause in its contract under which the union reserved "the right to call and maintain strikes throughout the entire area covered by this agreement when necessary to preserve and maintain the integrity and competitive parity of this agreement."

Carpenters "Go Fishing"

Key West, Fla., Sept. 18 (AP).—Six hundred carpenters employed on four defense projects here—two of them for the Navy—"went fishing" today in protest against delays in considering their demands for higher wages.

About 1000 other workmen reported as usual and busied themselves on jobs which did not require carpenters.

Vanderbilt Estate Bid In for $22,000

Riverhead, N. Y., Sept. 18 (INS).—Idle Hour, the $1,500,000 estate built by the late William K. Vanderbilt 40 years ago, was sold at auction today for a mere pittance.

There were only three bids for the 24 acres of ground upon which sits the 110-room mansion which recently had been used as a "peace heaven" retreat for the Royal Fraternity of Master Meta-Physicians.

The estate was bid in for $22,000 by a lawyer representing a relative of the president of the Mortgage Holding Co.

350,000 Bulgars In Arms, Turks Say

On Old Scene

War Raises The Ghosts of 'Gallant 600'

Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die,
Into the jaws of death
Rode the six hundred.

Recalling the battle of Balaclava, news from London yesterday indicated the war was pressing swiftly toward the Crimea.

The British-French-Turkish campaign in the Crimea in 1854-56 was one of the most ridiculous fiascoes in military history, and "the charge of the light brigade," at Balaclava was one of its most futile episodes.

In the end, however, the Allies attained their main objective—which was to keep the Russians out of Constantinople.

The British and French massed a fleet at Varna—the Bulgarian port where the Axis now is said to be gathering an armada—for the invasion of the Crimea. In the meantime the first of a series of utterly incredible incidents took place.

Far away in London, the British cabinet took a look at a map of the Crimea. They say that the peninsula was linked to the mainland only by a narrow isthmus. They figured, on paper, that it could be cut off easily if a few warships were sent up to command the isthmus with their guns.

What they found out later was that the sea on either side of the neck of land was only 2 or 3 feet deep!

Then the British commander, Lord Raglan, had an unfortunate habit. Even when talking with his French allies, he kept referring to the enemy as "the French."

They take a Bow

Fifty-seven thousand strong, Lord Raglan's army sailed for the Crimea on September 7, 1854.

Seeking a place to land his army, Raglan sent his flagship so close to the shore that the British officers could see Russian officers peering at the ship through telescopes. And, said a contemporary account, "On seeing this, the English officers took off their hats and bowed."

Not so polite were the Russians, when the British sent an ultimatum to the Russian governor, he fumigated it before he read it.

The "Charge of the Light Brigade" occurred on October 24, 1854. Mistaking orders from Lord Raglan, his aide de camp, Gen. Nolan, sent the light cavalry brigade—the "Noble 600" straight into Russian artillery positions.

The Russians won the Battle of Balaclava—but the poem by Tennyson helped to sustain the British soldiers through the horrible winter which followed.

Largely through French efforts, Sevastapol finally was taken the next year, and peace came—principally because all concerned were fed up with the struggle—early in 1856.

Ankara Denies Report Sofia Has Requested Dardanelles Passage

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 17 (Delayed).—Balkan informants reported tonight that Bulgaria had mobilized 350,000 men in a continuing call to the colors and that German experts were feverishly constructing highways in south and southeastern Bulgaria which would be useful for any land-sea action directed toward Suez.

Three German divisions and other Nazi units also are in Bulgaria, these persons reported—in addition to the "organization todt" which is building the military roads under high pressure.

In old Yugoslavia, the same informants said, 600 German engineers are directing thousands of Serb laborers in repairing the Belgrade-Nis and Salonika-Sofia railroads, which are essential to eastern Mediterranean military movements. The former was destroyed by the Serbs.

British Move Guns North

On the other hand, a diplomatic observer just arrived from Syria said the British were moving artillery and other military units northward toward the Turkish frontier in a steady stream.

A reported Axis attempt to get Italian warships into the Black Sea via the Dardanelles by "selling" them to Bulgaria appeared doomed to failure, if, indeed, the attempt was seriously made.

Today the Turks informed the British that Bulgaria had made no proposal for transit through the straits of any Italian destroyers and submarines. It had been reported that the Axis was planning such a maneuver in order to strengthen its forces in the Black Sea, where Russian sea power is predominant.

Bulgaria Technically Neutral

In any event, a well-informed source said, the Turks would refuse flatly to permit the passage of any warship through the Dardanelles unless they were owned by "real neutrals."

Presumably, this would exclude Bulgaria, which is technically not at war with any of the present belligerents. The Montreux convention, which controls operation of the Dardanelles, bars the passage of belligerent warships unless they are on missions sanctioned by the League of Nations Covenant.

In a recent note, Russia accused Bulgaria of cooperating in German plans for an attack on the U. S. S. R. by way of Bulgarian soil, and there have been persistent reports of the assemblage for aggressive purposes of 100 to 200 small ships in the Bulgarian Black Sea ports of Burgas and Varna.

British Plan To Safeguard Vatican Rejected

Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 18.—Britain has put out the suggestion that Vatican City, instead of being blacked out, be brightly lit up so that in event of Royal Air Force raids on Rome, British fliers will not shower down bombs on the lighted area, it was said in authoritative circles here today.

However, Premier Mussolini is reported to have turned thumbs down on the proposal on the ground that Vatican lights would only serve as beacons guiding possible R. A. F. raiders to Rome.

Japanese Protest Terroristic Acts In Shanghai

Shanghai, Sept. 18.—Recent acts of terrorism in Shanghai and Nanking resulting in the killing of a large number of Japanese Nationals have brought a protest from the Japanese consulate here, it was revealed today. The protest was sent to the Shanghai municipal council, and charged that the terrorists were being paid by the Chungking government.

Coincident with general Japanese plans to celebrate the anniversary of the march into Manchuria, bombs exploded last night in Nanking, killing eight persons and wounding 35 others. Other bombs were reported to have exploded at Canton. Two Russians were among those killed in recent bombings in Shanghai.

Belvoir to Show Newest Weapons Soldiers Have

What the American soldier has to fight with and how well he knows how to use it will be demonstrated to members of Congress October 2 at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Announcement of an exhibit and demonstration at Fort Belvoir was made yesterday by Secretary of War Stimson in a letter to Representative Thom (Democrat), Ohio. Thom suggested several weeks ago that such an exhibition would remove from the minds of Americans any misgivings as to the competence of the Nation's Army.

Just what the demonstration of combat tactics would involve or what weapons would be placed on exhibit could not be learned at the War Department yesterday. Stimson assured Thom, however, that the Army's newest weapons would be on view.

"The First Army," he wrote, "will present a combat problem under simulated battle conditions and the chief of ordnance has arranged for the exhibition of ordnance from the Aberdeen Proving Ground, including the latest model tanks.

"The program will also include a visit to the Engineer Replacement Training Center during regular training periods and other special events. Lunch will be served in the field and transportation will be provided to and from Fort Belvoir by the War Department."

Price Controls Must Stand to Prevent Post-War Crack-up, Henderson Says

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday told the House Banking and Currency Committee that price regulation will be essential for a period after the war in order to prevent "the worst kind of demoralization in our economy."

Price regulation will be a powerful instrument in bringing about such adjustments as a shift from tank to automobile production, Henderson said.

He emphasized, however, that the Administration's pending price legislation does not contemplate permanent post-war price control, adding, "The sooner we could get rid of it the better."

End Is Provided

The bill now before the Banking and Currency Committee provides that the price-regulation authority will be terminated a year after a declaration by the President or by Congress in a concurrent resolution that such control is no longer necessary.

The committee today will hear Bernard M. Baruch, head of the War Industries Board in 1918 and a frequent White House caller since the beginning of the present emergency. The hearing starts at 10 a. m.

Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, last night predicted that the hearings would be completed within two weeks, though he opposed the suggestion of one committee member that the group should be bound by an agreement to close hearings by October 1.

The demand for an early vote on the price-control bill was made by Representative Kopplemann (Democrat), of Connecticut, who said Congress should act before the country faces "the disastrous inflation of the World War."

Questioning Drags Out

If the committee continues at the same pace it has set in questioning Henderson, Kopplemann said, "I doubt if we will report this bill by Christmas." The hearings started August 4 but were recessed for about a month while the House was in recess.

Steagall said he did not believe the committee should limit questioning of witnesses in view of the importance of the legislation. Henderson will be called back to the stand next week and the committee also expects to hear from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Henderson yesterday told the committee he has no plans for "policing individual tradesmen" to enforce the bill and believes that success of the legislation would depend chiefly on public recognition of the need for the law.

"Unpleasant Job"

When Representative Sumner (Republican), of Illinois, told the price administrator he would be "the most powerful man in the United States" if the pending legislation were passed, Henderson said: "I don't know about that, but it would be the most unpleasant job in the country."

In the course of a two-hour cross-examination by Representative Smith (Republican), of Ohio, Henderson repeatedly declined to be drawn into a discussion of monetary theories, insisting that the legislation would not put the Administrator "in charge of all factors affecting price regulation."

Meanwhile Senator Thomas (Democrat, of Oklahoma, demanded that farm-product prices "be permitted to rise in harmony with industrial prices and wages."

He issued a statement asserting that such a policy would eliminate the necessity for Federal farm subsidies and enable farmers to meet increasing taxes, debts and production costs.

Henderson yesterday invited producers, sellers and refiners of Pennsylvania-grade crude oil to attend a conference here Wednesday on production costs and prices.

A maximum price schedule was imposed on Pennsylvania-grade crude four weeks ago. Henderson said at the time that producers would be given an opportunity to show that "higher prices are justified in the public interest" but reported yesterday that his staff so far has received "very little material."

THE 'SEA OTTER' IS SHOWN UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT ORANGE, TEX.

'A new Bridge From This Country to the Free Nations of the World'

New Freighter, Sponsored by President, Hailed as Answer to Cry for Tonnage

Plans for mass production of a new small freighter of revolutionary design were announced yesterday by the Navy with the disclosure that its development was personally sponsored by President Roosevelt.

Although some ship experts consider the new type—named "sea otters"—to be still experimental and unproven, the Navy Department hailed it as a "new bridge from this country to the free nations of the world." The President and Secretary of the Navy Knox, it was said, are convinced that it is "the answer to the cry of the democracies for tonnage."

The new craft will carry only 1500 tons of cargo—about one-sixth that of the "ugly-duckling" freighters—but are cheap, of simple design and can be quickly built in large numbers, it was said.

"Engineers now believe a "sea otter" can be turned out, after the plans are standardized, in two months," the Navy said. "Using many yards, there is no reason why the tonnage produced could not offset the tonnage lost at sea."

Chief innovation of the new freighter is its propulsion. Sixteen standard gasoline marine engines, each of six cylinders and 110 horsepower, drive a 6-foot propeller sunk in the keel of the ship amidships, something in the manner of an outboard motor.

The ship itself has a very shallow draft, a feature that will permit it to be built on the Mississippi River and other inland waterways and sailed to the open sea. Its draft is increased by the propeller, but it can be hoisted up while the ship is under way.

Displacing 1900 tons, the "sea otter" is 270 feet long, has a speed of 12 knots and a cruising range of 7000 miles.

One of the freighters, built by the Livington Shipbuilding Co. of Orange, Tex., is now afloat and will begin its deep-sea tests next week. The Navy said, however, so much experimental work has been done with a model in the Carderock testing basin here and with a one-third scale craft that "its success is virtually a foregone conclusion."

"Work on the standardized parts can then proceed with every expectation that a large and mobile fleet of "sea otters" will be afloat within a year," the statement added.

A new Government-owned corporation, named Ships, Inc., is now being formed to provide the facilities for building the ships and to construct them. The RFC will finance the company in the beginning, with its funds coming from the lease-lend agency.

Ordinarily, the United States Maritime Commission handles the construction of Government merchant ships, but for reasons not disclosed this procedure was not followed in this case. The Maritime Commission participated in the early development of the type, but later the Navy took over the work.

Going to College Here This Fall . . . ?

Miner Teachers Opens Wednesday

By Earl J. Wilson

Miner Teachers College, today a component part of the public school system of the District, is the outgrowth of a work begun nearly 100 years ago by a Negro girl who hoped to end the slavery of her people by means of education.

In 1851, Myrtilla Miner, a native of New York, came here with $100 and in a small room founded the "Normal School for Colored Girls in the City of Washington."

After a long uphill fight the college on July 1, 1929, was organized as a four-year teacher-training institution authorized by the District Board of Education following Congressional enactment for the organization of two teachers colleges here, the Miner Teachers College and the Wilson Teachers College.

Eugene A. Clark, who has been president of the Miner Teachers College since its organization, said yesterday: "All of our efforts have had a singleness of purpose, the professional education of teachers. Our program seeks to set the stage whereby the individual student may develop as a person into a well-balanced individual and into a competent professional worker.

A MONUMENT TO MYRTILLA MINER

"It is built upon the belief that education at its best is self-education, under expert guidance. It is an evolving affair, growing out of the collective thinking of students, the college staff, and the administration, and changes as tested experience may dictate. Finally, it depends upon the active and constructive participation of the entire college community, for it is a great democratic enterprise."

This year 150 freshmen will enter the college which will have nearly 600 students in all. Classes begin Wednesday. The school is free to students and because of this there is a high degree of selectivity maintained, according to President Clark.

The factors determining selection are a good high school record, graduating in the upper three-fourths of the class, good moral character, physical fitness, the absence of any serious speech defects, and the personal qualities necessary for success in teaching.

The college confers the degree of bachelor of science upon graduates who complete 124 semester hours of work. Students may major in either elementary teacher-training or teacher-training for the junior high school field. An important part of the curriculum is student teaching at the Monroe School, where the students learn to carry the entire responsibility for teaching.

Argentine Nazis Formed Nation Within a Nation, Probe Shows

An investigating committee in Argentina, South America's most influential nation, has disclosed a far-reaching, closely-knit Nazi organization. John Lear, in this second of two stories, turns the spotlight on the activities of this organization.)

By John Lear
Associated Press Staff Writer

Buenos Aires, Sept. 18.—Hitler's representative in Argentina, South America's most influential nation, has been invited to go home.

That is the No. 1 sign as to how South America feels today about nazism.

The Argentina Chamber of Deputies this week adopted, by a vote of 79 to 1, a resolution censuring Ambassador Edmond von Thermann "for overstepping the functions of his office." It also requested the government to deport leaders of German organizations engaged in Nazi activities.

This action of the Argentine Chamber, which followed accusations against Nazi activities by the Argentine committee investigating subversive activities, had significance not only in Argentina, but also in neighboring nations which traditionally look to Buenos Aires for guidance.

Change in Policy Indicated

The Argentine Chamber resolution also strengthened indications that a change has been taking place recently in Argentina, which for years followed a policy of counteracting the major political moves of the United States, on the grounds of prestige and self-defense.

What the Argentine Chamber committee had previously said to Von Thermann covered more territory than Argentina; he was accused of being at least the paymaster of an organization sprawled all over Latin America, organized army-fashion, sworn to support Hitler and strong enough to enforce not just discipline but what the Argentine committee termed "blackmail."

In the reports it has submitted to date the committee included documents as evidence to show that the Nazi organization it is trying to smash in Argentina is connected directly across South American frontiers and indirectly through Berlin with five of the nine other countries of this continent.

Nazi political propaganda money comes from Berlin into Buenos Aires through German banks in Uruguay, Peru and Chile, the committee said, and goes out "all over America, especially that part of America which speaks Spanish."

Membership cards in German societies, whose headquarters in Buenos Aires were raided by the committee, were signed by persons giving Chilean addresses and listed them as units of "cells" in southern Argentina, across the Andes from Chile.

A short-wave radio transmitter which the committee seized in an airplane had been shunted from Brazil to Peru by way of Chile and back to Argentina by way of Bolivia.

The messenger who brought the radio back was not the same one who took it to Lima—a fact which the investigators interpreted to mean that the Nazis maintained a regular international messenger system.

Inside Argentina, the committee said the Nazi machine shaped up this way:

Sixty thousand men—practically the entire German-born male population of Argentina—each was registered by name, number and photograph in Buenos Aires and Berlin. The men were organized by tens in "cells," responsible to an eleventh man who was designated as "cell leader."

Unspecified numbers of these cells were organized into "blocks"—responsible to a block leader.

Had Secret Police

There was a special corps of "storm troopers" and a special "secret police," as well as a tax-collecting squad named by Von Thermann personally to deduct from the workers' pay checks, in advance, an assessment up to one third of their salaries to support the Nazi organization.

This organization was set up under the cover of outwardly genuine welfare societies, workers' unions and trade associations.

Organizations which did not exist prior to the time the Nazi party was outlawed in Argentina sprang up the day after the party ban, the committee alleges, occupying the same offies the party had used, having the same membership, electing the same officers.

Argentine-born sons of Germans also were catalogued as friendly or unfriendly to the Nazi regime, one committee report said, adding that a spy system was maintained to keep members in line and that punishments were meted out to those who strayed.

Some money contributed by these organizations was traced by the investigating committee to the German-subsidized, so-called news agency, Transocean. Other money went to German schools, where the committee charges that Argentine as well as German children were taught Nazi doctrines.

How the German leaders got special privileges which the committee says they guaranteed to organization members in matters relating to the Argentine government, officials have not yet disclosed.

Arms and the Man

Work Lags At Some Army Camps

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

Over Their Heads.—With the coming of summer much of the outcry about soldier housing was muted. Tenting on the old camp ground is no hardship when the breezes are balmy. But snow will fly again ere long and that's the time when soldiers, like other folks, prefer a roof over their heads.

I asked the War Department for a progress report on the housing bottleneck and was told that "depite unfavorable building conditions encountered last winter" 64 per cent of the 300 Army housing projects are now on or ahead of schedule.

That sounds fine offhand, but it's a little like trying to prove the value of a ragged purse by displaying the silk lining. There are two sides to every coin and the inescapable reverse to that 64 per cent on schedule is that the other 36 per cent, or 108 of the 300 projects, are behind schedule.

The situation is aggravated by the fact the old tennants aren't going to move out to make room for the new neighbors, as was indicated in the original one-year draft program.

Where Credit's Due.—Secretary Ickes has taken a lot of booing on his gasoline restriction proposals, which many felt were not imperative for national defense, but few will deny that he is the hero of an earlier "gas incident" which turned out handsome for our defense program. In the last year of European peace Germany put in a bid for a large supply of helium, on which America has a monopoly. All the necessary boards and big-wigs said yes except Ickes, who shouted no so loud that the helium stayed home. Now it's all available for the expanding United States Nevy blimp patrol fleet, which hunts for German submarines in American waters.

Balloon Boom.—There is every indication that the United States lighter-than-air fleet is going to mushroom into a large and important branch of national defense. Our projected gas bag Navy can't be matched anywhere on earth because of our corner on the non-inflammable helium lifting gas. Hydrogen dirigibles are allergic to incendiary bullets.

2 Boats Sunk, Japan Protests On Red Mines

By the United Press

Tokyo (Friday), Sept. 19.—Two Japanese fishing boats have been sunk by Soviet mines in Japanese territorial waters with a loss of nine lives, it was announced last night, and the foreign office has filed "a most categorical protest" in Moscow.

Both vessels were sunk along the eastern shore of northern Korea, a Japanese possession, according to the foreign office announcement.

Japan's protest, the foreign office said, warned the Soviet government that it has created a "most dangerout situation" in the Japan Sea forcing the Japanese navy to undertake mine-sweeping operations in its own waters.

Nine Fishermen Killed

Many floating mines already have been destroyed after having been positively identified as of Russian make, it was alleged.

The first of the Japanese ships, a Korean fishing vessel of 60 tons, was destroyed September 1 with a loss of five lives when it hit a Russian mine which presumably came from a field laid by Soviet naval forces off Vladivostok during July. A second vessel was sunk September 10 and four fishermen killed while attempting to bring ashore a mine which had been picked up.

It was emphasized that "both incidents occurred in Japanese territorial waters."

Navigation Stops at Night

Soviet mines are floating in the Japan Sea "in great numbers," the Tokyo note said, and it has been necessary to stop navigation of Japanese ships during darkness off Northern Korea pending a completion of Japanese mine-sweeping operations.

Despite repeated warnings from this country, Russia has not taken adequate measures to eliminate the dangers she has created, it was said.

"The Japanese government ardently desires peace and tranquillity in the Japan Sea and for this reason it is urgently necessary that dangers which have caused the destruction of Japanese vessels and endangered the shipping of third powers by mines must be eliminated," the note concluded.

Meantime the navy announced that Vice Admiral Soetake Toyoda, a former classmate but not a relative of Foreign Minister Vice Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, has been promoted to full admiral in command of the big Kure naval station. The appointment brings to 11 the number of full admirals in active service and, according to the newspaper Asahi, means the navy has completed preparations to deal with anything that may happen as result of the current international situation.

John H. Collier, Veteran Postal Inspector, Dies

John H. Collier, 63, veteran United States postal inspector, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. J. Haycraft, 1207 Linden Lane, Silver Spring, yesterday after an illness of several months. Funeral services are to be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Hines Funeral Home, and burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native and resident all his life of Washington, Mr. Collier had been an employe of the Post Office Department since 1892. Known as an expert on postal finances, he served in France as U. S. superintendent of finances for the Post Office Department during the World War. He lived at 3529 Warder Street Northwest.

In addition to Mrs. Haycraft, he leaves his wife, Mrs. Anna G. Collier, a second daughter, Mrs. Steven Porter, two brothers, Walter Collier and William Collier, and a sister, Mrs. Marie Rogers, all of Washington.

Rites Tomorrow For Dr. Barry, Orthopedist

Funeral services for Dr. Joseph F. Barry, 65, officer-in-chief of the Veteran's Administration Orthopedic Division, who died Wednesday in Emergency Hospital, will be at 11 a. m. tomorrow in Fort Myer Chapel, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Dr. Barry came to Chaptico, Md., from New York City, and joined in orthopedic work. He leaves besides his wife, Mrs. Clara Barry, of Chaptico, two brothers and three sisters: Frank Barry, of this city; John Barry, of Chicago; Mrs. Margaret Franey, of Waterbury, Conn.; Mrs. Irene M. Roach, and Miss Alice M. Barry, of this city.

Army to Fuse Guard, Regular Officer Corps

Men to Be Assigned Any Unit in Future; Reserves Included

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Stimson yesterday announced the inauguration of a new Army policy designed to break down existing barriers and distinctions between the National Guard and Regular Army and blend the Nation's military forces into a united fighting team.

Officers of the Regular Army, National Guard and Officers' Reserve Corps, it was said, hereafter may be assigned to any military unit without regard to their individual status. Guard officers may be put in command of Regular troops and Regulars over Guardsmen to further "the one Army idea."

Heretofore, officers of the Guard, with few exceptions, served only with the State troops. Approved policy permitted Regular officers to serve anywhere, but until recently few have been detailed to Guard units. With the militiamen's service now extended to 30 months, one policy will prevail.

"Although there already has been some intermingling of officers of the Regular Army, the Officers' Reserve Corps, and the National Guard, the new assignment policy will promote this fusion of the three components, and will increase the efficiency of the Army," Stimson stated.

He said he did not expect any "wholesale reshuffling" of officers between the regulars and guard, and that State units would be kept intact as far as was practicable.

To implement the new "intermingling" policy, commanders of the four field armies have been given authority to transfer officers within their units.

New age limitations for officers commanding troops will force out a considerable number of Guard officers during the coming months, including a large portion of Guard division commanders. There have been predictions that many of these posts will go to Regulars.

Secretary Stimson said yesterday that in order to "ease the blow," ranking Guard as well as Regular officers who are relieved by younger men, will be given administrative and staff posts.

The War Chief announced the strength of the Army as 110,810 officers and 1,487,000 men, including 710,000 selectees. He said that the tuberculosis rate among troops was the lowest in four years.

Kansas City Witnesses Favor Newspaper-Radio Tie-ups

By the Associated Press

Spokesmen for two Kansas City radio stations—one of them newspaper-owned and the other unaffiliated with any publication—contended before the Federal Communications Commission yesterday that newspaper ownership of broadcasting facilities should continue to be sanctioned.

The witnesses were Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star, which operates Station WDAF, and Donald D. Davis, president of Station WHB. Both appeared at commission hearings to determine what policy will be followed with respect to newspaper applications for radio licenses.

"Radio would be better off if we had more newspapers running radio stations," Roberts told the commission. "I think the two go hand in hand."

"I feel that newspaper radio operation is a logical development for dissemination of news in a community," Davis testified. He added, however, that "the point is whether the publisher takes undue advantage" through ownership of his newspaper in competition with other radio stations.

A Question of Fairness

Davis was questioned as to whether he thought it "unfair" of the Star on some occasions to list only WDAF as carrying a certain program, although competing stations also were carrying the same program.

"Not so much unfair to us, as to listeners," the witness said.

He told the commission that he thought his station had been given "fair treatment" in the columns of the Star with regard to publicizing his station.

H. Dean Fitzer, manager of Station WDAF, was asked about a Sunday radio page in the Star which carried a news story announcing that WDAF would broadcast the Third Inaugural of President Roosevelt but made no mention of a similar broadcast scheduled for other Kansas City stations. Likewise, other Kansas City stations were not listed in the regular program as broadcasting the event.

Fitzer observed that "we don't think the listener needs two radio stations to hear one program."

Special Deal With ASCAP

Fitzer told the commission that in 1932 a committee representing newspaper-owned radio stations succeeded in obtaining special terms for the use of music copyrighted by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Terms given the newspaper group were more favorable than "the standard" agreement offered by ASCAP to other radio stations, he testified, but were less favorable than some other agreements, including those made between ASCAP and the major networks.

Commission counsel submitted an ASCAP memorandum of the agreement which said that "ASCAP recognizes the substantial contribution to the promotion and development of the art and industry of music by newspapers in the way of general propaganda continuously appearing in their columns in support of various and sundry musical activities."

Fitzer said he believed ASCAP expected to receive "a great deal of good will and a friendly attitude" as well as "newspaper publicity" in return for the special agreement, but that the newspaper representatives told ASCAP officials they "bought nothing and got nothing" through the agreement.

The commission suspended the hearing until next Wednesday, when witnesses from Iowa are to appear.

England Bank Head, Now 70, To Stay on Job

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 18.—Owing to wartime conditions, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England since 1920, will continue to hold that office despite the fact that on the sixth of this month he reached the age of 70, which in recent years has been regarded as the normal retirement age for Bank of England officials.

Norman made an announcement to that effect today at the semi-annual meeting of the bank's directors. Ordinarily he would have retired next April, following the annual meeting of the directors.

Norman also said J. M. Keynes, the noted economist, will be proposed next month as a member of the bank's "court of directors," succeeding Lord Stamp, who was killed in an air raid on London several months ago.

No other governor of the Bank of England has held office as long as Norman, who was once a partner in the Anglo-American banking firm of Brown, Shipley & Co. However, there have been at least three bank governors who have filled the post after reaching their seventieth birthdays. One was Norman's maternal grandfather, Sir Mark Collet, and the others were Sir Gilbert Heathcote and Delillers Carbonelle.

Norman puts in many hours daily at his office and sleeps in the bank three times a week. He is younger than all the chairmen of the five joint stock banks, with the exception of Edwin Fisher, chairman of Barclays. His paternal grandfather was a director of the Bank of England for 51 years.

Syrian Offered Presidency He Held Twice

Copyright by New York Times

Damascus, Syria, Sept. 18.—Termination of the mandate over Syria and implementing of the joint decision by Britain and the Free French granting sovereignty and independence to Syria, which is to be ratified by treaty, has been announced by Gen. Georges Catroux, Free French commander in chief in Syria, in a letter published here.

Inviting Shiekh Mahommed Tajeddin Al Hassani to take office as President of the Syrian Republic—which he held twice under the mandatory regime—Gen. Catroux continued:

"In the proclamation I addressed on June 8 to the people of the Levant in the name of Gen. De Gaulle and in subsequent declarations, Free France, acting in association with Britain, undertook of its own free will to end the mandate and to accord Syria the status of a sovereign, independent state, this status being guaranteed by treaty.

"Today Free France believes the hour has come to fulfill the promise. The execution of this program is intrusted to the leading member of the Syrian community, who enjoys the confidence of the public, and he has the task and responsibility of organizing a new independent Syrian state. Taking my guidance from public opinion, which I carefully noted on every occasion, and having no end in view but the good of the country, I formed the conclusion that in the present circumstances you (Al Hassani) are better qualified than any one else to carry out this great task for Syria."

It was officially stated that decrees nominating new ministers of the Syrian government will be published tomorrow.

When Sheikh Ali Hassani was guest of honor at a reception in Damascus today, Gen. Catroux spoke briefly regarding his announcement of Syrian independence.

France might have made mistakes in the past, he said, but he hoped this gesture would wipe out everything, adding, "I hope war will not come to Syria, but if it does we shall deal with it."

George Declares Navy Has Broad Convoy Authority

Senator George (Democrat) of Georgia yesterday told reporters that the Navy can protect American shipping "wherever American ships might have a legal right to go."

He said that right would not extend to combat zones or belligerent ports unless the Neutrality Act is revised or repealed.

"I think it perfectly clear that we haven't any legal authority to convoy into the ports of belligerent nations listed in the President's proclamation under the Neutrality Act or into combat areas delineated in that proclamation without repealing or revising the Neutrality Act," George said.

Questioned on the Naval policy of convoying British and other flag ships as well as American as far as Iceland, George said that in making passage safe for American ships the Navy might justifiably make the route safe for all shipping.

'Welles Plan' Squeezing Axis

By James B. Reston.
Copyright by New York Times

The "Welles plan" to cripple the Axis war effort by cornering all strategic war materials in this hemisphere is making excellent progress. This became known last night when it was learned that the United States had virtually concluded a new war-trade agreement with Peru and had obtained important priorities on several essential metals from Chile, Bolivia and Argentina.

Under the terms of the agreement with Peru, it is understood, that country will undertake to make available to the United States her entire supply of copper, vanadium and lead.

Negotiations with the three other countries are not so far advanced, but, pending a favorable conclusion, Bolivia has agreed to sell to this country the entire supply of tungsten and all the Bolivian tin that is not now going to the British; Chile has contracted to export to us every year about 500,000 tons (nearly her entire supply) of copper and most of her manganese; and Argentina has promised to let us have half her tungsten.

Officials are confident that not only Peru but also Chile and Bolivia will cooperate in the "Welles Plan." Mexico and Brazil have guaranteed to export all their strategic materials to the United States in a plan designed, first, to expedite the United States defense program and, second, to keep these materials from going to Germany, Italy and Japan.

The economic warfare being waged by Britain and the United States has now reached a point where responsible officials here believe that the Germans are getting only four essential war materials out of Latin America—small quantities of industrial platinum, mica, mercury and quartz crystals. The latter are especially important to the Germans, because they are invaluable in building the delicate radio equipment with which the Nazis direct their mechanized divisions.

Most of these materials are getting out to Europe via the Lati Air Line, which flies from Brazil. Occasional attempts are made to run shiploads of essential metals and grain from Latin America through the British blockade, but these have generally failed. In the three summer months, for example, ten German ships tried to get through. Seven of them were intercepted by the Royal Navy, one is known to have reached territory occupied by the Germans and two of them are now long overdue.

'Tis a Big Birthday Party for the Capitol

Ann Sothern and Eleanor Powell Star in 'Lady Be Good' on the Screen; Sheila Barrett, Hal LeRoy Headline Stage

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

"LADY BE GOOD." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Jack McGowan, adapted to the screen by Kay Van Ripper, John McLain and Jack McGowan, costarring Eleanor Powell, Ann Sothern, and Robert Young, with Lionel Barrymore, John Carroll, Red Skelton, Virginia O'Brien, Tom Conway, Dan Dailey, jr., Reginald Owen, Rose Hobart, Phil Silvers, James, Warren and Nyas Berry and Connie Russell. Directed by Norman Z. MacLeod. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

WHAT A PRODIGIOUS birthday cake the Capitol Theater will be cutting itself a piece of four or five times a day for the next week! On the screen is a musical with five sock tunes you'll whistle for days, "Lady Be Good," while on stage there are Sheila Barrett with some new sketches, dancing Hal LeRoy and a 20-minute songfest with "The Chocolate Soldier."

ANN SOTHERN

With popular Ann Sothern in the lead, singing music of Gershwin and Jerome Kern, as well as a couple of newer chansons, it's easy to see why "Lady Be Good" should get so spontaneous a welcome as it received yesterday. In view of this, it's too bad "Lady Be Good" doesn't confine itself more fully to song and dance. It has quite a plot, or so it thinks, involving, in its profligate fashion, a couple of weddings and divorces for the SAME couple. And when, as the judge, Lionel Barrymore prepares to listen to Miss Sothern's troubles for a second time, you sort of think "This is where we came in."

But you'll love "Lady Be Good" when it's singing a la Miss Sothern or tapping a la Eleanor Powell. Lately it's been considered generous for a musical film to have more than two tunes you care to hear more than twice, but "Lady Be Good" avoids this paucity by picking the two hits from the original stage success in which the Astaires starred, "Fascinatin' Rhythm" and the title song; Jerome Kern's lovely "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and two new ones by Roger Edens and Arthur Freed, "Your Words and My Music" and "You'll Never Know."

It's quite something to hear the erstwhile "Maisie" warble these in the musical-comedy manner she employed so effectively when she was Harriette Lake of Broadway. She even makes palatable those awkward moments when called upon to "compose" Ira Gershwin's original lyrics in an offhand way on a 'kerchief. Even that incredible touch of genius is charming coming from likable Ann Sothern.

Miss Powell is pushed into a corner by the plot, but she takes the treachery graciously, emerging to do a beguiling dance with a pup and one of Busby Berkeley's finales that comes, of all things, as a blessed relief from too much plot. Those slick Berry brothers of vaudeville are on hand for a grand routine and Virginia O'Brien is evidently as bored as ever, a thing which one could scarcely be with Miss O'B. Red Skelton, too, is in there tripping. Robert Young plays the gent who's constantly being divorced and John Carroll is a foil for everyone.

Altogether, while's there's about a half-hour too much of "Lady Be Good," when she's good, she's very, very good.

Sheila Barrett Brings Some New Tricks

Of the stage performers—there seem to be hundreds—you'll be particularly taken with Sheila Barrett's new material—at least it's new to these unnight-clubbed eyes. She is properly merciless with those incredible radio serials of involved plots, though the finish of this invention might have a bit more bounce. She also has a Defense Bonds plea that combines sincerity of feeling with her pungent wit. Yes, it's wonderful to find Miss B. in such resourceful fettle.

Hal LeRoy's tapping is as show-stopping as ever. He isn't the only dancer on the bill, either, for both Byrnes and Swanson and Gomez and Minor have their turns, the first team dancing to Ferde Grofe's "Mississippi Suite," capitally played by Sam Jack Kaufman's Orchestra, and the latter duo graceful in their ballroom turns.

That compressed version of Oscar Straus' "The Chocolate Soldier" is particularly happy in its singing company, boasting Nina Varella, as the duenna, Lynn Allison, Nina Allen, the leading sopranos, and an able chorus. It could afford to ignore even more of Shaw's "Arms and the Man" than it does. One wishes, too, that the entire production was in the full stage the latter portion employs, leaving out the business of singing in front of dull black drapes. Once this gets under way, it's sock finale for a well-packed stage bill.

PRESS TIME: "The Little Foxes" opens—positively—Wednesday evening at RKO-Keith's. Gala trimmings of course, for this Bette Davis playing of the Lillian Hellman stage hit the author adapted for the films . . . Fred Mitchell, jr., 2019 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, won the "Navy Blues" Sextette Photo contest and thereby is $15 better off than he was a week ago . . . Harry Bratsburg, once of the Civic and long one of Washington's finer actors, rang the bell when he played Saroyan's "Hello Out There" in Hollywood last week. Syndicated writers are cheering him . . . Leonard Meakin, son of Keith's Manager Hardie Meakin and now an Army man, was married yesterday afternoon to Miss Betty Korbel. Congrats . . . Congrats, too, to Hedda Hopper for a swell column this morning. Don't miss it.

Stardust Nostalgia

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 18.—John Murray Anderson and his "Silver Screen" gave me a nostalgic night of memories, and I'll bet everybody in the audience over the age of 35, looking at those actors of a bygone year, had the same thought—"There, but for the grace of God, go I." The audience was as interesting as the performers.

BETTY COMPSON

On the stage it was Betty Compson who got my biggest hand. Betty looked grand and for not being a dancer, she did the Merry Widow Waltz in the grand manner. It was 20 years ago that I first met and played with Betty. We were in Miami doing the picture "Miami." Some scenes were on a private yacht. The captain grew careless, and we were stranded on a sandbar for five hours, had to wait for the tide to dislodge us. So we gathered together in the saloon for fun, when in a burst of confidence, Betty turned to me and said, "Why, you're a nice person, aren't you?"

Which surprised me out of a year's growth, because, having an insatiable curiosity about folks, it amazes me when people dislike me. I can't understand it because I like them so much. Then she explained that for two years while working with Director George Loane Tucker (you'll remember she did "The Miracle Man" with him) he held me up to her as a horrible example. "Why don't you act like Hopper?" Well, that would enrage anybody. And thus our friendship began and has gone on.

Those parties she used to give when she was Mrs. James Cruze, the nights of music and stories when they entertained Joe Hergesheimer, Henry Mencken, Aileen Pringle, Jim Tully, Walter Pidgeon, and a 20-piece orchestra. Betty's had her ups and downs, but if she isn't given a job on the screen after the big boys see her in this, they're plain nuts.

Bryant Washburn was perfect as an m. c. He's gained poise since he was a Cecil De Mille star. I thought of the time we did a picture together for Joe Rock before Joe went to England to produce. Bryant and I would finish a torrid scene, then go into a dissertation about how to bring up our sons—his two and my one . . . Clara Kimball Young I didn't know so well.

Betty Blythe I remembered as the "Queen of Sheba." She's still queenly. Funny when my son made his first appearance on any stage, in Pasadena, he did a love scene with Betty and was so nervous he knocked over a garden seat getting to her, which didn't soothe his nerves on the opening night. But sitting in front watching, all I could see were his socks which had gone collegiate 'cause I never could get him to wear garters—can't yet.

Sitting in the audience was Mae West, flanked on one side by Jim Timony and on the other by Andy Stone, who's just finished writing "International Spy" for her. Mae tells me she wants to do "The Queen of Sheba"—well, why not? She wouldn't do the Biblical version.

But the topper of the evening was when a young beautiful thing said, "I've never been abroad, and I love this evening, but I kept thinking of that famous museum in London which I've heard so much about." I asked, "You don't perchance mean Mme. Tussaud's Wax Works, do you?" Answer came back, "Yes. Jolly, isn't it?"

'My Life With Caroline' Opens at RKO-Keith's

"MY LIFE WITH CAROLINE." RKO-Radio-United Producers picturization of the play by Louis Verneuil, adapted by George Berr, starring Ronald Colman, with Anna Lee, Charles Winninger, Reginald Gardiner, Gilbert Roland, Katherine Locke, Hugh O'Connell and Murray Alper. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

Life with Caroline (the lovely nitwit) is just one ferocious chain procedure of yanking her out of goosey amours. Only a cinema husband of such incredibly varnished perfection as Ronald Colman would be bothered with Caroline for one little minute.

But if you yearn for some completely daft diversion, so relaxing that it'll leave you with a softened brain—and if all Ronald Colman pictures are "musts" with you—then "My Life With Caroline," flickering at R-K-O Keith's belongs on your movie menu.

Caroline cannot live without a new emotional interest every month or two. She goes for parties, palmistry, poetry, sculping, surrealism and skiing—anything—so long as it is explained to her by some tall, dark, handsome and handy young fellow. But at the point when these affairs are about to explode into an elopement or divorce, along comes husband Ronald Colman and gently deflates the whole business.

While only two of these bubbly dalliances are indicated in the picture, Ronald Colman takes the audience into his confidence in delightfully amusing offside speeches, tells how he takes things in hand every so often to prevent his dear little witch of a wife from making a complete fool of herself.

Actual happenings in "Life With Caroline" are pretty old chapeau. We see Caroline, played energetically by Anna Lee, falling for the lure of the pampas in the person of Gilbert Roland. The larger sentimental interlude deals with her ambition to become the wedded inspiration of Sculptor Reginald Gardiner (who acted as though he were about to drop off and have a good nap any minute). If we told you how Ronald Colman foiled all the foolish little plots of his wife and her boy friends it wouldn't spoil the show for you. But we just don't want to talk about that.

Ronald Colman always turns in a par score on acting, but he doesn't extend himself especially in "Caroline." Hugh O'Connell, in the role of Reggie Gardiner's gentleman's gentleman, is the only show-stealer in the cast, committing efficient movie larceny in every scene. As for Director-Producer Lewis Milestone, he should take a rest on his ranch and eat worms, but big, fuzzy ones.

The current March of Time concentrates on New England as a defense area, shows what the doughty Yankees are doing to prevent Der Adolf from flying over some evening and dumping Molotoff breadbaskets on Boston. The new Donald Duck shows him prancing around a penny arcade, getting his tail feathers amputated by an airplane prop. Pictures of the first advance of the German blitz into Russia are included in the newsreel. They were confiscated by the British from a captured Axis ship. A flash of Gen. Pershing at 81 shows "Black Jack" as handsome as he was in '18. He should tell the girls how he does it! MARY HARRIS.

Text of Roosevelt's Letter Asking $5,985,000,000 More for Lease-Lend Aid

The text of President Roosevelt's letter of transmittal and the lend-lease estimates sent to Congress follow:

Sept. 18, 1941.
THE WHITE HOUSE.
Washington.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives.
Sir:

I have transmitted to the Congress the second report of operations under the Lend-Lease Act. This report indicates the increasing amount of material aid we are rendering to the democracies. Of the 7 billion dollars appropriated six months ago, aid in the amount of $6,230,000,000 is now moving through the successive stages of allocation, obligation, production and delivery. Additional funds are now needed in order that there be no interruption in the flow of aid to those countries whose defense is vital to our own. I am, therefore, transmitting a supplemental estimate of appropriation in the amount of $5,985,000,000, the details of which are set forth in the accompanying letter from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget. I recommend its speedy enactment. Respectfully,

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Sept. 13, 1941.

Sir: I have the honor to submit for your consideration a supplemental estimate of appropriation to carry out the provisions of the act entitled "An Act to Promote the Defense of the United States," approved March 11, 1941, in the amount of $5,985,000,000, as follows:

Defense Aid

To enable the President, through such departments or agencies of the Government as he may designate, further to carry out the provisions of An Act to Promote the Defense of the United States, approved March 11, 1941, and for each and every purpose incident to or necessary therefor, there are hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, in addition to the sums appropriated by the "Defense Aid Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1941," the following sums for the following respective purposes, namely:

(a) For the procurement, by manufacture or otherwise, of defense articles, information and services, for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States, and the disposition thereof, including all necessary expenses in connection therewith, as follows:

(1) Ordnance and ordnance stores, supplies, spare parts and materials, including armor and ammunition and components thereof $1,180,000,000

(2) Aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spare parts and accessories ..$685,000,000

(3) Tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks and other automotive vehicles, spare parts and accessories $385,000,000

(4) Vessels, ships, boats and other water craft, including the hire or other temporary use thereof, and equipage, supplies, materials, spare parts and accessories $850,000,000

(5) Miscellaneous military and naval equipment, supplies and materials $155,000,000

(6) Facilities and equipment for the manufacture, production or operation of defense articles and for otherwise carrying out the purposes of the Act of March 11, 1941, including the acquisition of land, and the maintenance and operation of such facilities and equipment $375,000,000

(7) Agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles $1,875,000,000

(b) For testing, inspecting, proving, repairing, outfitting, reconditioning or otherwise placing in good working order any defense articles for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States, including services and expenses in connection therewith ..$175,000,000

(c) For necessary services and expenses for carrying out the purposes of the Act of March 11, 1941, not specified or included in the foregoing $385,000,000

(d) For administrative expenses $10,000,000

(e) In all, $5,985,000,000 to remain available until June 30, 1943.

(f) Each of the foregoing appropriations shall be additional to, and consolidated with, the appropriation for the same purpose contained in Sections 1(a), 1(b), 1(d), and 1(e), respectively, of the "Defense Aid Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1941:" Provided, That, with the exception of the appropriation for administrative expenses, not to exceed 20 per centum of any such consolidated appropriations may be transferred by the President to any other of such consolidated appropriations, but no such consolidated appropriation shall be increased more than 30 per centum thereby.

Section 2. The President may, from time to time, when he deems it in the interest of national defense, authorize the head of any department or agency of the Government, to enter into contracts for procurement of defense articles, information or services for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States, to the extent that such government agrees to pay the United States for such defense articles, information or services prior to the receipt thereof and to make such payments from time to time as the President may require to protect the interests of the United States; and, upon payment of the full cost, the President may dispose of such articles, information or services to such government.

Section 3. Any defense article procured pursuant to this act shall be retained or transferred to and for the use of such department or agency of the United States as the President may determine, in lieu of being disposed of to a foreign government, wherever in the judgment of the President the defense of the United States will be best served thereby.

Section 4. No part of any appropriation contained in this act shall be used to pay the salary or wages of any person who advocates, or who is a member of an organization that advocates, the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence: Provided, That for the purposes hereof an affidavit shall be considered prima facie evidence that the person making the affidavit does not advocate, and is not a member of an organization that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence: Provided further, That any person who advocates, or who is a member of an organization that advocates, the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence and accepts employment the salary or wages for which are paid from any appropriation in this act shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penalty clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law.

Section 5. This act may be cited as "Title II of the Defense Aid Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1941."

I recommend that the estimate be transmitted to Congress.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) HAROLD D. SMITH.
Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

000,000 for "agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles" indicating an increasing stepup in food shipments to Britain through the winter.

Billion for Ordnance

Next largest call came for $1,180,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores, including armor and ammunition. This is in addition to a request for a billion dollar ordnance appropriation the War Department is expected to ask for defense in forthcoming "over-all" appropriations.

The President asked that the new lend-lease money be made available through June 30, 1943, leaving inference that Mr. Roosevelt expects no swift conclusion of the war.

Included in the text of the bill was a provision apparently directed at Communists, specifying that no part of the appropriation be paid in salary or wages to any persons who advocate, or belong to an organization advocating, overthrow of this Government by force or violence.

Departures From Original

For the most part the bill followed the language of the original seven billion dollar measure but there were a few departures.

One new section authorized the President to empower department heads to contract with any government whose defense is deemed vital to our defense for procurement of defense articles or services, provided they are paid for in advance of delivery.

This cash provision would apply to South and Central American nations making defense purchases here. It could apply, were not other provisions made, to Russia as well, which has been placing cash orders.

Relieves Constipation Without Chemical Drugs
An excellent new laxative called TAM acts entirely through sun-ripened leaves and fruits. It tastes like a jam and acts like a charm. TAM indirectly helps to clear away headaches, bad breath, sallow skin, tiredness, gas and other conditions which frequently accompany constipation.
When you realize that so many laxatives today depend on chemical drugs, you can see why we are so enthusiastic about pleasant, tasty TAM. Buy it and try it. Large 16 oz. jar $1. 5 oz. jar.... 49¢

'When Ladies Meet' Continues For Second Week at Palace

With a gilt-edged cast and a story close to every woman's heart, "When Ladies Meet" yesterday began its second week at the Palace.

Joan Crawford, Greer Garson and Robert Taylor are the stars of this polite comedy, though it's not Bob the ladies do their civilized fighting for. He's just a bystander, not exactly innocent, to be sure, for he sets the stage for the female battle. What the girls are fighting for is the right to be life partner of Herbert Marshall, who somehow never has seemed less worth fighting for. He looks very bored and very unhappy.

Perhaps it's the talk that has Herbie down. Greer Garson is his wife and why he'd not pay attention to her every whim, we wouldn't know, but as a publisher he constantly is getting actively interested in his female authors. Joan Crawford plays his latest whim and by a coup of unrewarded boy-friend Taylor she becomes pals with her boy-friend's attractive wife. They talk it over almost as thoroughly as Joan talks about her incompleted book.

This somber situation is relieved by the banter of those charming people who, in the films, never seem to do a thing but banter. The wit is largely in the tongue of Spring Byington who created the role when it was a Rachel Crothers stage hit.

Miss Garson, of course, is particularly appealing as the dubious wife, merrily so as she plays at yachting with friend Taylor. He's in exceptionally uninhibited form for this one and Miss Crawford is kept busy appearing in unfamiliar, striking costumes. It's definitely a ladies' entertainment, this, and, at that, its excessive talk will mar it for many.

Arlen Shows Probe Of Records Wrong

When Dick Arlen wound up his work on the Bill Pine-Bill Thomas film, "Flying Blind," it was the completion for him of the seventeenth picture in which he has starred in two years, a perfect refutation for a recent trade-paper survey which said that no topflight player worked in more than seven films a year. The survey was supposed to have included all actors and actresses except "bit" players.

Columbia

After an extended run at the Palace, the Spencer Tracy telling of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" reponed on F Street yesterday morning at the Columbia.

This third screen version of the Robert Louis Stevenson story emphasizes a neo-psychological angle of split personalities et al. Ingrid Bergman plays the good doctor's fine influence and Lana Turner is the evil man's downfall. Both score emphatically in their rich roles, enhanced by novel photographic tricks.

ALL THE WORLD LOVES A "HAPPY BLENDING"!

1. Eustace was an Ambitious Elephant who saved his Peanuts and spent his evenings studying Memory Courses.
Yet Eustace was no mere Stodgy Grind. At heart, he was a Romantic Soul.
2. Maggie was a beautiful Circus Star who was bored with Pomp and Parades.
Secretly, she yearned for a Little Home in the Country... and an Adoring Hubby to Cook and Slave for.
3. When Eustace met Maggie it was Love at First Sight. They Belonged together—like Honey and Waffles.
And that's the Secret of CALVERT Whiskey... It's a mating of every desirable Whiskey Quality... a mellow triumph of Happy Blending.
4. Calvert skillfully "marries" the right Combination of Whiskey Virtues to give its blending a Happy Ending in finer taste and flavor.

American Hostages

The Senate committed an unspeakable blunder on Wednesday with the good intention of acting in the interests of better law enforcement in Washington. So strong was that belief that the bill in question slipped by—along with five others—with unanimous consent. Unless it is allowed to die in conference or is vetoed by the President, however, it will inflict grave injustice upon certain groups of law violators and will virtually destroy the District's excellent parole system.

In purpose the bill would stiffen the sentences of second, third and fourth offenders, and the purpose is excellent. Undoubtedly the courts have been too lenient in meting out justice to habitual criminals in the District during recent years. But in this same bill Congress (for it had previously passed the House) prescribes the same punishment for a youth who twice breaks into a store and steals a few cigarettes as for the armed bandit who twice commits robbery at the point of a gun. Both would go to prison for 15 years with no hope of parole. In the case of many hardened bandits, such harsh punishment would be fully justified. In the case of young men indulging in minor offenses, the bill is a throwback to the unenlightened practice of the Middle Ages. Surely gangsters, murderers and rapists can be made to pay for their depredations without committing such an outrageous offense against boys who are still susceptible to reform. In lesser degree this bill adopts the heinous Nazi practice of sacrificing hostages without regard for their offenses in a desperate effort to intimidate all groups into observance of the law.

If the conferees appointed to adjust minor differences between the Senate and House bills cannot see their way clear to abandon this dangerous measure in favor of a fresh start, it should be vetoed by the President. Washington urgently needs better law enforcement. But we don't want blind justice for the sake of having it more severe. We have not come to a point where we have to sacrifice hostages to make life safe in the American Capital.

Realistic Legion

If the horizon reader 18 months ago had prophesied that the American Legion would be in the forefront of the nonisolationists, he would have been laughed at. The Legionnaires used to be leading isolationists. But last year they emerged out of their storm cellar and began to resolve that the time had come to make our defense positive. There is a progressive realism in the wording of one of the pro-Roosevelt resolutions adopted at this year's convention that "if fighting is necessary to defend the United States, we insist upon being prepared to do the fighting outside the United States." There might not be any such necessity. But that would be only because of the boldness of our President's foreign policy in enlisting our Navy for the purpose of keeping the war away from our shores. If we are going to protect America, we have got to protect the approaches to America. The common sense of such a position is patent to the Legionnaires because they have that "spur in the head which is worth two on the heels." The isolationists will soon be left with only the movie inquiry committee room in which to nurse a Maginot Line complex which has already spelled the overrunning of a dozen nations.

Reorganized NLRB

Gerard D. Reilly will probably be a valuable member of the National Labor Relations Board. While still a young man, he has had a good deal of experience that will be useful in his new assignment. He appears to have earned a promotion from the post of solicitor of the Labor Department, but only time can tell whether he is enough of a statesman to make a name for himself in the difficult position the President has given him.

More significant than Mr. Reilly's appointment is the refusal of the President to give Edwin S. Smith a second term. Mr. Smith was the last remaining vestige of the old Labor Relations Board which had discredited itself in the eyes of the public. A great transformation came over the board when William M. Leiserson and Harry A. Millis took over control as its majority members. For months the voice of Mr. Smith has been a dissenting, negative factor. The confirmation of his successor will further help to clear the atmosphere and give the NLRB a greater hold upon public confidence than it has had since the bias of the original board became apparent.

Union Dues

It was a mistake for Secretary Knox to put the force of the Government behind the policy of "union maintenance." In effect he has instructed Admiral Bowen, who is in charge of the Kearny, N. J., shipyard recently taken over by the Navy, to fire any member of the C. I. O.'s Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers who fails to pay his dues and maintain his good standing. Each case will be referred to the National Defense Mediation Board to guard against arbitrary use of this enormous power granted to the union. But that does not change the effect of the policy. Secretary Knox has come very close to saying that men who lose their union membership have no place in industries contributing to naval defense.

That far-reaching policy stems, of course, from the decision of the NDMB recommending "union maintenance" in the Kearny plant before the Navy took it over. But Mr. Knox has gone much further than the Mediation Board went. He has agreed to fire union men who fail to pay their dues even while the Navy is temporarily operating the plant. More important is the statement that the union-maintenance policy will be upheld if the Navy decides to assign operation of the plant to "a corporation." This clearly implies that the strength of the Government is behind the use of coercion to collect union dues as a general policy. The Mediation Board had made its decision applicable to the specific circumstances existing at the Kearny plant under its former management. Mr. Knox says that any corporation which may be chosen to operate the plant—presumably that includes a Government corporation—will have to agree to discharge union members who fail to maintain their good standing in a private organization.

Here is, indeed, a far-reaching edict. A few years ago Congress laid down the rule that employers must not interfere with their employes in the exercise of the right to organize and bargain collectively. Many unions accepting the help of employers were outlawed as company unions. That law remains on the statute books, but now it has been partly superseded by a decree implying that the Government looks with favor upon employer interference with union affairs, at least to the extent of discharging workers who fail to pay their union dues. Today employers doing vital defense work for the Nation are on notice that the Government may enforce this policy by seizing the factories of those who refuse to coerce their workers at the behest of union leaders.

Congress would have engaged in long debate on this issue, and there are many indications that it would not have approved the policy which Secretary Knox, with the aid of the NDMB, has put into effect. But the issue has never been carried to Congress. That body had previously dumped into the lap of the President broad powers to deal with the troublesome question of settling labor disputes in defense industries. Now it sees the spirit, if not the letter, of its own legislation partly nullified by executive decree. If this situation does not arouse Congress to the enactment of a constructive labor policy of its own, the cause of democracy in this country will suffer from confusion and surrender within even while it is under attack from without.

Just War

It was apparent even before Mr. Myron Taylor's denial that there was something askew about the "think piece" sent from Rome by Mr. Herbert L. Matthews. In this dispatch Pope Pius was represented as having declined a request from President Roosevelt, transmitted by Mr. Taylor, that he declare the struggle against Hitlerism to be a "just war." Despite the proverbial secrecy surrounding matters of Papal foreign policy, Mr. Matthews said he learned this on "good Vatican authority." The report did not ring true because one of the grounds given by Mr. Matthews for the Pope's refusal was "that on a strictly doctrinal theoretical basis there is no such thing as a 'just war' and the Vatican cannot, therefore, take such a stand."

Now almost all moral theologians carefully draw the distinction between "just wars" and others. A just war has been defined as one waged by lawful authority in a just cause, with proper intention and the right use of means. Thus war cannot be justly waged until all other available means of removing the wrong have been exhausted, or if the damages inflicted are out of proportion to the wrong, or if the distinction between combatants and noncombatants is not observed. Nor is any war just which does not have as its purpose the recovery and preservation of peace. It is of course an open question whether a modern war on the modern scale can fit all the conditions stipulated for a "just war." The question is being argued, not without some heat, by contemporary moralists. Certainly any war involving reprisals for injuries inflicted upon civilians or one which is directed with an idea of punic peace seems, by definition, not a just war. Yet in his telegrams to the King of the Belgians, the Queen of the Netherlands and the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg after the invasion of 1940, the Pope seems to have made an implicit acknowledgment of the justice of their cause, at least. Moreover, his encyclical of October, 1939, "Summi Pontificatus," was a condemnation of the fundamental premise of the totalitarian state. Again, last July the Pope pointedly declined Herr Hitler's gambit of a "holy crusade" against Bolshevism.

Lend-Lease

The wisdom of an investment depends upon the returns. This is the approach to the Presidential request for another six billion dollars for carrying out the purposes of the Lend-Lease Act. When the country, which kept up an irresistible pressure on Congress throughout the momentous debates last winter, insisted upon the enactment of this program, it was looking to that program to yield the defeat of Hitlerism. Nothing less would justify the investment. The people did not say "We are interested in the defeat of Hitlerism only to the extent of X billions." They called for an "all-out" effort, and that means an effort to be sustained till the object has been achieved. They believe with the President that the lend-lease program will be "a keystone in our great national security for generations to come" because it is destined to "crush the disturbers of our peace." In this respect the outlook that we shall attain our ends is measurably brighter. But much remains to be done, and our contribution has now become not only vital but also necessary to victory.

The virtually empty state of the lend-lease budget should preclude much argument over the Presidential request. In the second report it was said that "over 6¼ billions of the 7 billion dollars have been allocated." Speed on Capitol Hill is necessary to keep up the rate of allocations and to underwrite an "all-out effort" in fact. But speed is necessary for another reason. Morale, said Napoleon, is as 2 to 1 in relation to materiel, and a quick and unanimous vote on this second appropriation measure would have its own intrinsic worth in fulfilling our policy. It would increase the consternation in Berlin and Rome over our decision to participate directly in the Battle of the Atlantic. It would buoy up the peoples who are bearing the heat and burden. We can shorten the distance to the goal by the way as well as by the means of our material support.

Fortunately an example of speed-up has been afforded by the President himself. It is directed toward quickening the rate of deliveries. Less than 200 million dollars of the first 7 billion dollars in goods have got to their destination, though twice that amount has been technically delivered; i. e., at tidewater for the British to take across. The trouble has been much more than the time-lag connected with the process of manufacture. There has been a bottleneck in administration. This is now to be remedied by the delegation to Edward R. Stettinius of authority to sign allocations in the President's name. There has been another bottleneck on the high seas. This, too, will be remedied in part by the new sailing orders to our Navy to "see that they get there." Congress by doing its share in making every minute yield its 60 seconds' worth will bring that much nearer the day when we shall be able to breathe again in a freed world.

Tax Obligation

Somebody has defined the art of taxation as plucking a goose without making it squawk. If we read the temper of the people aright, there will be no squawking over the new tax bill which has just gone to the President, but only if a vigorous economy in nondefense expenditures is practiced. There is some hope of such economy in the Byrd amendment providing for a joint committee of Congress to study ways and means of slashing nondefense expenditures. There can be no doubt that the taxpayers will soon be economy-minded. If they are not now, they will be when they begin to fill out their income-tax returns. Then there will be such a pressure back of the economy committee that there is bound to be action. It is the bounden duty of the Administration in its own political interests, aside from any question of moral or fiscal obligation, to forestall the storm and anticipate the committee by paring to the bone all nonessential Federal expenditures.

NO LAMP OR STAR

We climbed the cliffs above the sea.
The village lay below.
The waves beat out their threnody,
And day began to go,

And suddenly the black night dropped.
So deep the shadows ran
We could not tell where starlight stopped
And village lights began.

I walk a darkened path tonight
Because we are apart.
No lamp or star can ever light
The shadows in my heart.

Hoover's Speech

I would like to comment on the speech of Mr. Herbert Hoover at Chicago. He states he does not want our boys to go into this war. How are we going to deliver the goods to our Allies if we do not protect these boats with our Navy? How are our Allies going to continue the fight without these goods?

Certainly Hitler created a lot of hate in these conquered countries, but with nothing to fight back with except sabotage and some shootings why expect very much of them as a body? We must also remember that one-half of the German wounded are sent back to the front after a short time and the other half are replacing the troops taken from the occupied countries and that women have been trained for years to work in the German factories. Also in order to eat, a great many people are obliged to work for the Germans in occupied countries.

In my opinion, after seeing things at first hand in Europe for years, our answer should be, "full speed ahead for our Navy and an Army fully equipped and trained in case of need." By doing this the war will end very much sooner.

If we let up now we discourage our Allies and in the end we will lose our liberty of doing business where we please. Our eagle on our embassies in Europe is looked up to with great respect by all countries in Europe except Germany, and they are afraid of it; so why discourage a just cause? They are listening to us over there even though they have to hide their radios and put heavy blankets on their doors in order to know what we are doing. I can assure you they know that America is their only salvation and is also ours in the future if we want that eagle respected as in the past. This is from a veteran of the old World War, which failed from no cause of this grand old United States. RALPH E. CONLEY.

A Bonus Idea

A small percentage of those World War veterans eligible for the bonus about five years ago failed to "put in" for payment or bond deliveries, including yours deferentially. I had intended not to collect mine till the date of original maturity—1945.

In respect to this bonus the present Goldbergian rigmarole is like this: You send in your fingerprinted notarized application. Then bonds for the amount due are sent you (although it was demonstrated that 90 per cent didn't want these and didn't keep them a week). If you wanted cash you sent these bonds in. They wanted cash. If you keep the bonds till 1945 you get 3 per cent interest.

Now why can't some bright boss in Congress hook a rider onto a bill to enable issuance of defense savings bonds for those uncollected (but collectable) bonuses? Also turn in any bonus bonds now held for any one of the three classes of savings certificates?

Simply put in the applications now and get the savings bonds delivered, direct. The saving to the Government would be not inconsiderable.

The sale of these defense bonds has been no startling success. The amount realized by cleaning up these bonus remnants would be many times what Treasury House collected here and would relieve the Government of a sizable maturity in 1945. T. W. T.

Commodity Prices

At the start of our defense program President Roosevelt promised the American Nation that commodity prices would not be permitted to skyrocket as they did in the last war. What are we doing about it?

I am one of that multitude of American husbands who accompanies his wife in her shopping for groceries. I'll admit that I do not pay much attention to the cost of articles, but repeated purchases do register.

Coffee that cost 23 cents a year ago now sells for 29, an increase of 26 per cent; cuts of meat that sold for 33 cents are now 45 cents, or 36 per cent more. Eggs have jumped from 31 cents to 55 cents, 77 per cent higher. Butter is up from 28 cents to 40 cents, an increase of 43 per cent. Every article of food costs more now than a year ago. That is, everything but bread, and I'm just waiting.

And rents, $40-a-month houses are now renting for from $60 to $80; $35 apartments are now drawing from $50 to $70 a month. Where is it all going to stop? Are we going to allow Old Man Inflation to get us again?

How many cases like the following: A house that cost $4,000 to build several years ago now rents for $70 a month. Figure it out. Over 20 per cent per year on the investment. And who pays? I'll warrant 80 per cent are national defense workers—some with a slight increase in wages, others with none.

We are doing our utmost in this defense effort and it sure takes the heart out of a man when he realizes that he is being preyed on at every turn. He knows that his salary buys less now than it did a year ago and he knows that he is the little American who is going to be taxed where it hurts.

Why don't we do something about these leaping prices instead of paying through the nose and talking about it?

AN AMERICAN.

War Participation

As one of the millions of Americans who believe that this Nation should not enter the European War now raging abroad, notwithstanding President Roosevelt's speech calling for undeclared naval warfare, I would like to comment on Mr. Lindbergh's address last Thursday dealing with the present war situation.

Mr. Lindbergh states that there are three groups working for American participation in the present war, namely: the Roosevelt Administration, various groups of intellectuals, and certain Jewish groups. With the first two groups Mr. Lindbergh is 100 per cent right. With the third group, namely the Jews I must disagree most emphatically with Mr. Lindbergh. True there are some Jewish people who are pro war. But the majority of them, in my opinion, are opposed to our taking part in this war regardless of their justified feeling against the Hitler regime. True Mr. Lindbergh made some reference to Jews who oppose this war, but it failed to offset his other remarks.

Pipe-Line Economy

The controversy between the Oil Coordinator's office and the SPAB over steel to construct pipe lines for petroleum from Texas to New York is continuing. The SPAB refused the priority for steel to construct the pipe line because it says that the steel is needed for tankers, but we believe that the need for more tankers can be reduced by extending this pipe line to be a port on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, from which point shipments of petroleum can be made to Great Britain by tanker. This will cut in two the distance from Galveston, Tex., to Great Britain, thus effecting a great saving in airplanes and warships from convoys and steel tankers.

In view of the extension of hostilities to the western shores of the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico, it is very necessary to reduce shipping in these waters. The construction of this pipe line in the valleys of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers makes possible its protection from foes from without America and transfers its protection from the Navy to the Army. Also in these valleys are located much of our coal mines and hydroelectric plants that can supply power to pump this petroleum. Power plants could be located at coal mines using slack coal and screening from the culm banks and thus greatly reduce the cost of transportation.

This pipeline should be made as large as practicable so that part of the petroleum may be used in domestic consumption. When the war is over the salvage value of this pipeline will be nearly 100 per cent, as it can neither be sunk nor given away and can be used in domestic or foreign trade. The steel saved in the construction of tankers can be used in building the pipe line. Since we are paying the bills we must conserve our financial resources, which are not unlimited, by finding the most economical as well as most efficient method for each operation.

Water Hyacinths

Having read in an out-of-town paper the story which arose in Washington of Mr. Roosevelt's constructive suggestion upon a recent voyage, after noting the presence in mass about certain coves and indentures of the pestilential water hyacinth, I want to record my admiration. From time almost immemorial, along certain coasts of Ireland, the land of my ancestry, the farmers have been accustomed to use the menhaden washed up on the shores in vast numbers as fertilizer for their lands. Fish replenishment of fertility for soils is not limited to that instance.

Water hyacinths are not fish, true enough, but this vegetable nuisance does contain the same elements of soil food which are to be found in grass cuttings from lawn mowing which agriculturists say should not be raked off, but allowed to remain; in a word, the same worth of any other vegetable substance. However, would there not be the drawback which was not present in the era of plowing under hogs, which process was likewise undoubtedly a contribution to soil fertility, namely that of turning farm lands into hyacinth gardens—for the creature is natively of land, and by adoption adapted to the water.

Drawbacks to the President's suggestion, not all of them obvious, the account I read instanced. But the suggestion was arresting and novel—as a suggestion. TULIP.

The Post Impressionist

Publicly Speaking

Ever since Dale Carnegie began influencing people two nights weekly in the ballroom at 2400 Sixteenth Street, and Mrs. Roosevelt exercised her diaphragm for Life photographers, people have gone in for public speaking with wholehearted abandon. Having heard from several sources of the great leaps of progress made by adult students at a famous school of speech on Connecticut Avenue we decided to drop by and get the lowdown on this matter of "salvaging self-esteem" as advertised in the catalogues.

We had a pleasant chat with the very charming middle-aged woman who owns the school. She told us that the first steps toward proper speaking were to free the tonal passages and relax the muscles of the throat and diaphragm. She also explained how resonance and emotional tone are drilled into the voice through certain exercises and the reading aloud of poetry.

This was all good clean fun, but we wanted to strike more at the heart of the matter. We wanted to get the other fellow's side of it. We confided this curiosity to her, and she obligingly gave us the name and address of a Mr. Stephens, one of her star pupils.

Mr. Stephens was at the office, but we found Mrs. Stephens planting petunias in her window box. She graciously dropped the steak fork with which she was working the soil and submitted to our cross-examination. "Do you feel that a public-speaking course has been beneficial to your husband?" we asked, getting to the point at once.

"Oh, yes," she agreed hastily. "It has been of great benefit to him in acquiring a poised speaking manner."

"Do you thoroughly approve of public-speaking courses in general?" we continued.

"Well," said Mrs. Stephens guardedly, "they do have their liabilities."

"What do you mean 'liabilities'?" we persisted.

"The first misgivings," said Mrs. Stephens, "came to me on the evening when I entertained a few friends at a motion picture party. When we came out of the theater I suggested that we run by the apartment and stir up something to eat. We rode out in a cab. As we stood before my door momentarily while I searched for my key, weird groans floated out to us from the living room.

"Nothing serious?" we suggested.

"No," said our hostess. "I cautiously opened the door. We filed into the apartment. And then I saw him! Mr. Stephens, I mean."

"Not injured?" we exclaimed, thoroughly alarmed.

"Oh, no," continued Mrs. Stephens. "He was lying flat on his back in the middle of the living-room rug, without a thing on but his shorts. His arms and legs were outstretched, his eyes were closed, and four volumes of the Encyclopedia Britannica were planted on his diaphragm. He was slowly drawing in his breath, lifting the volumes into the air, then slowly exhaling and crying 'Ah-ah-ah-ah,' like a man in the throes of great pain. And then 'aha-aha-aha-aha' after the fashion of the villain in an old-time melodrama."

Mrs. Stephens told us that her husband was really magnificent under the circumstances. Acted with a great deal of aplomb. Wasn't at all embarrassed. Simply opened his eyes, removed the Encyclopedia carefully from his middle, one by one, leaped to his feet, and draped a bath towel across his shoulders. Then he picked up his books and went out. "Of course," said Mrs. Stephens, with understandable pride, "my husband really looks marvelous in his shorts."

Matters went on peacefully enough for several weeks after that, she told us. There were small things, but she got used to them. Whenever they walked down the street, for instance, he was almost sure to walk along with his mouth open, his jaw hanging loosely, and swinging back and forth like a pendulum. This, he explained, limbered up his jaw so that he could speak with more ease. He liked to limber up, he said, while walking. The air was good for his lungs, and the lungs are very important to good speaking. "Then, too," she told us, "he likes to awa-awa-awa-awa out in the open where he can throw himself into it and really get the sound of it. The fact that people turn to stare at him on the street, shake their heads and cast pitying glances at me never seem to concern him in the least. Like the true artist, he is lost in his work and oblivious to the stares of the crowd."

"In what other ways does he express himself," we asked, sensing other stories to come. And then Mrs. Stephens told us about the night the Henglers came to call.

The Henglers were new neighbors making a duty call. Mr. Stephens as usual had gone back into the bedroom immediately after dinner and barred the door, preparatory to practicing a speech for the Cricket Club. Mrs. Stephens had armed herself with a basket of darning and escaped to the living room when the doorbell rang. "I took Mrs. Hengler's coat," she told us, "and as we settled ourselves on the divan there came a sudden unearthly scream from the bedroom. It was my husband. Shouting at the top of his voice, in a maniacal tone, 'Ho ho ho, ha ha ha, he he he.' Mrs. Hengler turned pale. I told her that it was only Mr. Stephens and that he often did that."

"Why didn't you explain to them," we suggested.

"I did," said Mrs. Stephens, "but I don't think they believed me."

The Henglers didn't stay long, she told us. When they rose to go, strange caterwaulings were still escaping from the bedroom, and as they reached the front door Mr. Stephens' voice rose suddenly in shrill tones of terrible anguish, "Oh, God! God! Be merciful to me, a fool!" The Henglers bolted. Mrs. Stephens said they never came again.

We thanked Mrs. Stephens for her time, and reached for our hat. At that moment the front door slammed, and we heard a man's voice in the hall, rising and falling in tones of dramatic cadence, "Oh, birdie with the yellow bill, come perch upon my window sill . . ." We blurted out a hasty g'bye to our hostess, scooped up our purse and gloves, charged past Mr. Stephens, and made for the elevators on a dead run.

Simplifying Autos

By Ernest Lindley

Economizing With Lighter Models

A CUT of 48 per cent in passenger car production for December has been announced. After months of discussion, OPM is getting under way with a campaign for "simplification."

LINDLEY

These are two more markers on the road from a peace to a war economy. The next four months are regarded by high officials as the most difficult. At their end, the goal will not yet have been attained. Not until the late spring of 1943, probably, will our output of the implements of war reach the level now regarded as necessary.

But the next four months probably will be the hardest because war production has now reached the stage where it is cutting sharply into civilian production. Shortages of materials will force shutdowns and conversions at a more rapid rate, probably, than in 1942.

THE easiest kind of lowering in living standards to take is, unquestionably, the elimination of frills and of a multitude of styles for everyday articles. Donald Nelson told the National Retail Dry Goods Association that "we are not exactly asking the American people to bear a great load if we ask them to select their winter blankets from among half a dozen sizes and colors instead of from among 30 or 40."

The materials available for civilian use will go farther, and the finished articles will cost less, if production is confined to fewer and simpler styles.

An interesting question behind the scenes in Washington is to what extent simplification will be applied to the automobile industry. Mr. Nelson has pointed out that "no one suffers much if he has only four car styles to choose between instead of having a dozen—provided that the cars which are offered are just as good."

THE December cut for passenger car output, however, ignored simplification. Roughly speaking, the cut in output of heavy high-priced cars is about the same as of light low-priced cars.

Obviously, the materials available for automobiles would make more units of transportation if production were concentrated in the lighter models. There would be savings in labor, also, and in the price to the buyer.

What the savings in metals alone would amount to has been computed by J. W. Frazer, president of Willys-Overland. As head of a company which produces only a very light passenger car, Mr. Frazer is an extremely interested party. But his figures may be accepted as correct.

UNDER the maximum schedule for the current automobile year announced in August, about 2,146,000 cars would be produced. As this schedule was distributed among different kinds of cars, their average gross weight would be 3149 pounds. It would require 3,440,000 tons of materials.

If, however, each company were to manufacture only its lightest series of cars there would be a saving of 227,000 tons of materials. Of this saving, 159,000 tons in copper, lead, nickel and other critical metals.

IF every manufacturer put out a car comparable with the lightest of the standard four-cylinder cars, the saving in materials would amount to one million tons. And the saving in gasoline consumption and the replacement would be great.

The material saved would be available either for defense or for more automobiles, or for other articles containing metals and rubber.

Savings in cost—and therefore lower prices—could be brought about also by limiting production to two or three styles: say two- and four-door sedans.

AFTER surveying Mr. Frazer's proposals, one high official said: "This is what a dictator would do."

Such stringent action has been rejected, at least temporarily, for several reasons. The lightest cars of some of the smaller companies compete with the medium-priced cars of other companies. The plight of dealers, unhappy at best, would be made worse. Some would be sentenced to extinction.

The figures indicate, however, that if the need arises automobile output can be readjusted to cut the consumption of critical materials without depriving the public of motor transportation.

Almost certainly more will be heard in the coming months of simplification in the automobile industry, and concentration on the lighter, if not the lightest, models.

Fair Enough

Union Reform

MY COLLEAGUE, Ray Clapper, has just whipped up a batch of worry for himself over the "reckless perversion," as he calls it, of free speech and criticism in this perilous time and I will say that I have felt some bother, too, and not so much over the free expressions of others as over some of my own. Some days I am frightened by my own stuff and wonder if it wouldn't be better citizenship on my part and more helpful journalism to throw in a sentimental one about the death of my dog or a tribute to some grand old man of this or that, to help ease the public blood pressure.

But when I get to thinking about this dangerous union thing, this invisible empire of the irresponsibilities which President Roosevelt has set up in our country, and I find that I am more afraid of that than of Hitler and Stalin. I know the President is a politician and I have been told by one of his more important appointees that it is absolutely impossible for a leader to make open admission of a mistake, lest he lose the confidence of the country and cause worse harm thereby than by his original error. But this man said, and he is one of the President's true-believing, kiver-to-kiver men, that the political way to get results is to keep hammering with facts, thus arousing an organized opposition or compelling the President, himself, eventually to pretend that this danger is a new development and to take the responsibility and credit for a reform.

Incidentally, my friend, Mr. Nameless, thinks exactly as I do about the character of the leadership of our unions and sees eye to eye with me the danger of uncontrolled power and it may surprise you to learn that a lot of New Dealers privately hold the same views.

SOME of the wiser and more practical and patriotic unioneers also wish someone would take some of their power away from them, because they realize that power unaccompanied by responsibility is dangerous to all concerned. But they won't say so publicly, because they simply lack the courage and the citizenship to face the inevitable storm of epithets and lies from the union fakers and the Communists in the New Deal.

Now there is another subject that scares me sometimes, Communists in the New Deal. When I accuse the New Deal of harboring Communists and permitting these evil traitors to harass Americans and undermine our form of government I am afraid I am alienating some of our people from our elected leadership. But, damn it, it is true and it is wrong and it shouldn't be. But instead of doing anything about it, our Government protects the Communists and tries to smother and discredit the Dies Committee, which, by utterances of the President and gestures of Mrs. Roosevelt, plus propaganda written by the Administration group of journalists, has been made to look like a lot of clowns and Kluxers. The Dies Committee is all right.

SO, THE only way to get results is to criticize and prove up, thus forcing the Administration to take action, or arousing an organized opposition which will toss the Administration out and institute reforms. But such criticism and proof inescapably must shake the people's confidence in their Government at a time when every heart and mind should be united against foreign perils.

I know quite a few young Americans who are under arms or will be under arms soon and facing a war and I just can't see myself at their age making such sacrifices to the end that, even if our side wins, we then settle down to a life under a lot of American Brown Shirt gangs not much different from Hitler's and certainly no more desirable just because we call them pickets or goons. I claim that a union mob should have no more standing than any other mob, but I realize that these mobs operate with the indorsement and encouragement of our Government.

FOR THAT matter, all of us are going to make great sacrifices and I, for one, am resigned to a belief that in the end I will have lost every material thing that I have worked for and acquired honestly since I was 15 years old. My neighbors and you and your neighbors face this sacrifice and whether we make it cheerfully or grudgingly, we have a right to know that the reward will be something better than Hitlerism or Communism, between which there is no choice, in our own country.

So, in clouting away at the Brown Shirts of the unions and the Communists both in unions and in the Government, I may be impairing the people's faith in their President, but all he has to do to shut me up is to give Congress permission to curtail the power of the Brown Shirts and throw out the Communists.

The Brown Shirts—ruled in many cases that I have proved, by common underworld criminals—and the Communists are my principal obsession. I have no enthusiasm to sacrifice for the privilege of being ruled by them and I am sure most real Americans feel the same way.

A Double Condition

By Mark Sullivan

Labor Unavailable; CCC Solicits

THIS COLUMN receives from friends throughout the country or by other means, occasional copies of country or small-town newspapers, and clippings from such papers. From this source comes occasional knowledge of conditions not known to persons who confine their reading to metropolitan newspapers.

A paper in a farming community, Burlington County, N. J., printed the following one day early this month:

SULLIVAN

"All the Federal Government need do in order to add $10,000 value to its supply of the stuff that's raised on the farm will be to harvest Anthony Moscinski's crops on his place on the Medford Lakes-Hammonton Road at Indian Mills.

"The farmer says he is unable to get the produce — including between 3000 and 5000 bushels of white potatoes—into his barns, because of labor shortage and the fact that his two sons are employed on defense jobs.

"'Since I cannot harvest the crops myself, I would like the Government to take them and feed the hungry,' the farmer said.

"Among other things besides the Green Mountain potatoes, now selling at $1.25 the 100-pound sack, there is unhusked corn, standing 10 to 15 feet high in the stalk; acres of cabbage, running 8 to 10 pounds to the head; tomatoes, every other kind of truck vegetable, all about to go to waste."

THAT condition is quite general throughout the country—farmers unable to harvest their crops because they cannot get labor. At Government camps and in war industries, rates of wages are paid which a farmer cannot possibly meet. Labor unions, with the sanction of the Federal Government, have pushed wages for the simplest kind of unskilled labor as high as 70 cents an hour, or $5.60 for an 8-hour day. The best that any average farmer can pay regularly is $3 to $3.50 for a 10-hour day. In some cases this column knows about in the East, farmers have sold their dairies, and themselves gone to work in defense plants, because the pay for labor is better than the returns from farming.

So much for that. But that clipping takes on a special meaning if read in connection with another, from a different newspaper, the Oswego (N. Y.) Palladium. This was printed in July, but on inquiry in Washington I am told the condition—Nationwide recruiting for CCC—continues:

"Full strength company of 150 is the aim of CCC Company 278 at Camp SP-36 in the Fair Haven Beach State Park. In a Nationwide drive for recruits every camp is encouraged to get as many boys as possible through its own efforts, supplementing the work of the selecting agencies, which will carry on as usual . . . If for instance, a prospective enrollee wishes to sign up for this camp, all he has to do is address: Commanding Officer, CCC Camp SP-36 Fair Haven, N. Y., and request that he be furnished with an application blank. When this blank is filled out and returned to the same address, the machinery will be set in motion and within a few days the applicant will find himself a member of the CCC, provided of course, that he meets the age and previous service requirements. Age limits are 17 to 23, and members are only allowed a total of two years service . . . There are still plenty of young men between the ages of 17 and 23 who are unemployed and who have had little or no training or work experience. Here is their chance to get a start!"

THIS double condition—farmers unable to get help, and the Government soliciting members for CCC—tells its own story. Such comment as is called for will occur to the reader. Probably most readers will conclude that the condition is pretty cockeyed.

There is one aspect that will only be realized upon possession of an additional fact. The cost of maintaining CCC camps this year is some 246 million dollars. This is a sizable amount, at a time when the cost of defense work is enormous, and the burden on taxpayers onerous. Might it not be good management to trim CCC, and perhaps other nondefense agencies, down to a skeleton organization and minimum cost? One says this with some reluctance, for CCC has done good work.

But, after all, this is a time when there is employment for practically anybody who wishes it, and a time when the burden on taxpayers ought not to include expensive nonessentials.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Picket Crisis

In Los Angeles an employment bureau reports that it can't supply rush orders for pickets any more. Around $3 a day has been the prevailing wage for good, forceful pickets, but it's almost impossible to get 'em at such rates now.

Jobs at good pay in the defense program have become too plentiful says this employment boss. You can get an idea how serious the crisis is from the fact that if you want to get any picketing done today it has to be done by somebody who is INTERESTED in the strike involved!

If this keeps on, things may reach a stage where you will know that a picket in front of a business house once worked there.

You will be able to look at the boys and girls parading up and down in front of the pickle plant with a feeling that they personally are acquainted with the facts in the case.

The situation looks a good deal like another grave crisis. Those itinerant employment-bureau pickets knew their stuff. They were experienced hands. They had had training. They had appeared in some of the best strikes the country has ever seen. Their feet were hardened. They had a manner.

They were strictly pro. There was nothing of the amateur about them. Their grip, their stance, their rhythm revealed the perfection that came with constant practice.

And those catch-as-catch-can pickets weren't troubled by factors and issues. They were free-minded pickets who would march up and down anywhere and just not give a damn.

And now they're scarce. The whole business is being thrown back into the hands of the people directly concerned. You may even see a striker on picket duty. You can spot him at once. He will limp now and then and seem tired. And if you walk up to him and ask, "Buddy, what's the strike all about?" he may be able to tell you.

To a Piece of Parsley

Oh, impulse from a vernal wood—
I mean, of course, some farmer's garden—
You lend a tumult to my food
That ought to make you beg my pardon.

Your tout ensemble ruffles me;
I think your usefulness is wavy;
You've not specific gravity,
And yet you get into my gravy.
Your patent preference for fish,
Your liking, too, for boiled potato,
Precludes you from my kindly wish—
Besides, you hobnob with tomato.

So, gentle sprig of green, vamoose!
Be gone, and be not superseded.
I want my meat well done, au juice,
I want my eating unimpeded.

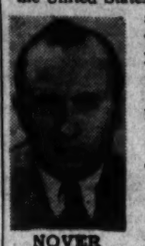
Russia At Bay

By Barnet Nover

The Nazis Cross The Dnieper

ACCORDING to a dispatch from London, only a "Niagara of war supplies poured into Russia from the United States and Great Britain can prevent the defeat of the Red armies in what is described as "the greatest battle in history."



NOVER

Since London has, from the outset, been bearish on Russia's chances of beating back the German onslaught, it is permissible to discount this pessimism to some extent. It would, however, be foolish to ignore the fact that Russia's fortunes have definitely taken a turn for the worse.

Both in the north and in the south the Germans have been making headway. Leningrad is now surrounded on three sides and under heavy siege. Kiev has practically been cut off from its hinterland in eastern Ukraine as a result of a two-pronged Nazi drive across the Dnieper which, unless halted, may result in the destruction of a sizable portion of Marshal Budenny's army and lead to the loss of the Crimea. Only in the central sector is the outlook at all encouraging for the Russians. There Marshal Timoshenko's troops have been waging a vigorous counteroffensive which has brought them within striking distance of Smolensk. But that counteroffensive has failed to force the Germans to draw in their lines in the Ukraine.

THE POSSIBILITY must now be taken into account that Russia will lose the rich western Ukraine and the Crimea and the Nazis will be placed in a position to strike at the Don Basin and the Caucasus. There is also the possibility, mentioned in the London dispatch, that through the loss of equipment and industrial resources the Russians will be forced to lay down their arms.

No such pessimism emanates from Moscow whence it is reported that in preparation for a war of indefinite duration a new defense decree has been issued broadening compulsory military training so as to include every able-bodied man and thus provide an enormous reserve army. And in view of the valorous fight which the Russians have been making, the circumstance that only a small portion of their vast land has thus far been conquered, and the existence of industrial centers far behind the present battle lines, the presumption of continued Russian resistance would seem to have much greater validity than the presumption of an early Russian collapse.

THE CRITICAL situation that now confronts the Russian forces makes it peremptory that every form of assistance that can be rushed to the Soviet union should be extended to her. The fact that three months have elapsed since the German attack began has created a good deal of dangerously wishful thinking about the state of the war. Thus, in a recent radio address, former President Herbert Hoover expressed the comforting belief that "Hitler was on his way to being crushed by the vicious forces within his regime." And since victory is certain, Mr. Hoover urged upon the United States a policy of patience, a middle road between isolation and intervention.

Mr. Hoover balks at giving aid to Russia. He is now quite reconciled, however, to rendering aid to England and her western Allies although he had previously opposed such a policy. But now as before he suffers from what the New York Herald Tribune has aptly called the "illusion of inevitability."

The ultimate defeat of Hitler may be likely; it may, given a continuation and intensification of the present American effort, even be certain; it is not inevitable. When that defeat comes it will not be the result of the hates which Hitler has engendered in every country he has conquered but primarily as the consequence of military defeat. Should Russia collapse, Hitler would still have to overcome the opposition of Great Britain, which means that he would still have to win the Battle of the Atlantic if he is to win the war. But a Russian collapse would make necessary a far greater British and American effort to defeat Germany than they and we have made up to now.

This is certainly no time to be complacent regarding the outcome of the war, no time to take the position that the victory of the Allies which the great majority of Americans hope for and pray for, will fall into our laps with little effort on our part.

OF THE THREE great fronts on which the titantic Battle of Russia is raging, the one of greatest immediate importance is that in the south. It still remains to be seen how far the present German drive into western Ukraine and the Crimea will go. It may be halted in its tracks; it may be slowed down to a snail's pace, as was the earlier drive on Moscow. It is evident that Hitler is making preparations for all eventualities.

In this connection it is well to keep a sharp eye on what is happening in Bulgaria, which, though a member of the Axis, has thus far taken no active part in the war on Russia. This week the Sofia government gave orders for the mobilization of the Bulgarian army. Reports also persist that pressure is being put on Turkey to permit the passage of Axis warships through the Dardanelles. The indications all point to the possibility that Hitler may try and supplement his land attack in the direction of the Don Valley and the Crimea with an attempt to smash Russian naval power in the Black Sea. And the latter would be close to consummation should Sevastopol, Russia's great naval base, be captured by the Nazis.

Should the Nazis become masters of the Black Sea, and that is a possibility that can no longer be discounted, the road to the Caucasus and its rich oil deposits would be open to Hitler and the war could also be carried deep into the Middle East.

The Russians have performed prodigies of valor in the three months since the struggle with Germany began. But it cannot safely be assumed that these three months of fighting, costly as they undoubtedly have been to the Third Reich, have brought Germany to the point of exhaustion, to the point where we can assume that the rising discontent in the occupied countries will alone be sufficient to beat Hitler.

The Gallup Poll

Marked Drop in Interventionist Sentiment Noted in U. S Since Soviet Conflict Started

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 18.—In the period between the outbreak of the Russian war in June and President Roosevelt's "shoot on sight" speech last week, the American public experienced the same decline in war spirit which observers have noted in England during the same period.

So far as the United States is concerned, this decline has accompanied every slackening of the Nazi war pressure against England. On the other hand, whenever Britain is receiving setbacks, whenever her chances of winning the war seem to decline, American interventionists' sentiment tends to increase. It is noteworthy that since the outbreak of the Russian war, there has been a sharp growth in the number of American voters who think Britain will eventually win the war, the figure rising from 50 per cent to 60 per cent.

Surveys by the American Institute indicate that during the first 11 weeks of the Russian war America continued to think almost in terms of the defensive, not offensive. What difference the President's speech last week made in the national attitude remains to be seen.

Up to the time of that speech, surveys showed clearly that interventionist sentiment was distinctly on the decline, as the Russians stubbornly resisted the Nazi onslaught and as air raids over Britain and British sea losses dwindled almost to the vanishing point.

The number of American voters who favored American entrance into an all-out shooting war was 24 per cent when Germany invaded Russia. By July it was 21 per cent. Just prior to the President's broadcast it had declined to 17 per cent.

Sentiments in favor of convoys likewise showed a drop, going from 56 per cent in early July to 52 per cent in the first week of September.

While less interventionist regarding Europe, the country nevertheless showed a remarkable stiffening in attitude toward Japan.

Whereas only 51 per cent of voters interviewed in July were in favor of risking war to stop Japan, by September the figure had risen to 70 per cent.

The placing of embargoes on Japan was closely in line with public sentiment. In fact, surveys show that the American people were ready to cease appeasing Japan long before the American Government was.

Surveys are now being undertaken by the Institute to measure the effect of the President's new "shoot on sight" policy on sentiment for war, for convoys and other aspects of aid to Britain.

Australia Starts The Gallup Poll

In Australia this week a public opinion poll, patterned after the American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll), is being put into operation.

Students of public opinion will be interested to learn that it will be possible to measure public opinion simultaneously on the same issues in three countries—the United States, Britain and Australia. The British Gallup Poll has been operating for nearly five years.

Jewish Groups Answer Lindbergh

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—The American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Labor Committee, denouncing Charles A. Lindbergh's Des Moines speech, asserted tonight in a joint statement that "our interests and those of our country are one and indivisible."

"He warns Jews to support his policy on the ground that any other attitude would lead to anti-Semitism," it said, adding that "we will not put even what he considers our 'interests' before those of our country—since our interests and those of our country are one and indivisible."

Texas House Asks Lindbergh To Stay Away

By the Associated Press

Austin, Tex., Sept. 18.—A resolution advising Charles A. Lindbergh that any purpose he has in opposing President Roosevelt's policies will not be served by visiting Texas was passed today by the Texas House of Representatives. Lindbergh was reported to be planning a series of speeches in Texas.

The resolution, passed by voice vote, recorded the House's opposition to recent utterances of Lindbergh.

"I think it is time this House should say to Charles A. Lindbergh that we do not appreciate his presence here," Representative Roger Q. Evans, a World War veteran, of Denison, said preceeding passage.

Representative J. K. Hileman, of Atlanta, a teacher, said he disagreed with isolationist declarations of Lindbergh, but "I'll die to defend his right to say what he wants to say."

Statement Due on Iowa Speech

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—R. Douglas Stuart, jr., national director of the America-First Committee, announced today that the organization's national committee would issue a statement within a few days on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's controversial Des Moines speech.

"The committee met in Chicago today to discuss plans for an intensified campaign in answer to the President's threat of undeclared war in violation of the Constitution," Stuart said in a statement.

Coke Price Frozen At Present Level

Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson last night issued an order freezing prices for by-products foundry and furnace coke at approximately current levels, effective October 1.

Pig iron, iron and steel scrap and semifinished and finished iron and steel products already are covered by price ceilings and last night's action was considered necessary to stabilize the iron and steel price structure.

Siberia Confident Of Repelling Japan

Invasion Expected If War in Europe Goes Badly for Soviet, Reds Admit

By Herman Habicht

Copyright By the United Press

Shanghai, Sept. 18 (Uncensored).—Russian leaders in the Far East are frankly apprehensive of an invasion by Japan in event the military situation in Europe should go badly for the U. S. S. R., but they are confident they will be able to repel it.

This correspondent, after a slow journey across Siberia from Moscow to Vladivostak, finally is able to reveal details of the Soviet Far Eastern position following his arrival in uncensored Shanghai.

It is a picture of exteme military preparedness, supported, so far as I could observe, by excellent public morale and competent leadership.

The picture shows these details, many of which I was able personally to confirm:

Moscow's three five-year plans, designed to make the Soviet Far East self-sufficient — economically, militarially and politically — now have been completed with every surface indication of success. The Russian Far East should be able to function efficiently even if European Russia should be conquered by Germany—which all Russians to whom I talked consider "an absolute impossibility."

Soviet agriculture and industry in the Far East has made unbelievable strides. Ample food and industrial production, from all I could learn, would be available even if the Far East were cut off from European Russia.

Russian defense forces east of Lake Baikal, in the area in which any new Russo-Japanese war would be fought, are said to total "at least" 40 infantry divisions, an undisclosed number of mechanized units and "plenty" of airplanes of all types. These forces do not include the well-trained and well-equipped forces of Russia's ally, Outer Mongolia, which is administered from Ulan Bator. Naval forces based on Vladivostok, according to high Russian officials, include "at least" 50 submarines, 10 destroyers, 40 torpedo boats and special patrol planes which now are operating along a 1500 mile front.

Railroad Well-Kept

The strategic Trans-Siberian Railway has been completely double-tracked and is rock-ballasted and excellently maintained all the way from Novo Sibirsk to Vladivostok. A supply-line break-down, such as occurred during the Russo-Japanese war, is most unlikely. Tunnels, bridges and viaducts all exist "in double" with emergency units far enough distant from those ordinarily used so that there should be no danger of a traffic stoppage from aerial bombing. The emergency units are extremely well camouflaged. All tunnels and bridges are guarded heavily with approaches barred by deep barbed wire entanglements for protection against parachutists.

An entirely new section of the Siberian railway, serving the new major Russian military and economic base at Komsomolsk, far to the north of the Vladivostok-Habarovsk-Blagovestchensk triangle, reportedly is nearing completion. Soviet officials, however, refused to comment on this railway or on anything having to do with the great Komsomolsk base, on which work has been proceeding night and day ever since the possibility of a Russo-Japanese war became acute following Japan's invasion of Manchuria a decade ago. Reliable informants, however, told me that Komsomolsk now is one of the strongest military-industrial centers in Asia.

Thousands of miles of new-surfaced highways have been completed for the quick movement of mechanized forces.

Air-raid precautions have been in effect throughout Siberia ever since the Russo-German conflict started. I saw a number of these drills during my journey. Informants told me that precautionary trial air alarms are held in all major cities, and at strategic points, every few days.

Outer Mongolia Enigma

The greatest secrecy is maintained about the situation in Outer Mongolia—(which lies west of Japan's base in Manchukuo and presumably would be a major theater of operations in event of a Russo-Japanese conflict.) I obtained the impression, however, that the same preparations have been completed in that country that are apparent along the trans-Siberian line.

A summary of opinion of the best informed Russians to whom I talked all the way from Moscow to Vladivostok follows:

Russia is most anxious to avoid a conflict with Japan at this time and hopes that the Russo-Japanese treaty of friendship and neutrality signed last April will be effective. It is realized, however, that if Russia should have major reverses in Europe that section of the Japanese army which long has favored war with the U. S. S. R., on the grounds that Russia is the greatest single menace to Japanese domination of East Asia, might prevail. For that reason all Siberia is "on a 100 per cent war footing 24 hours a day."

Japan is unlikely to attack during this year since the Siberian winter, during which temperatures frequently fall to 50 degrees below zero fahrenheit, will start within a fortnight or so. Russia, however, will not relax her preparedness during the winter months. Maneuvers will continue "all the time no matter how cold it gets." In this connection I was told that for years Siberian maneuvers have been carried out successfully in temperatures as cold as 40 to 50 degrees below zero fahrenheit.

Crisis Next Summer

The critical period probably will come next summer, if the Japanese should consider the outlook favorable, but Soviet preparations by that time should make all of Siberia and the maritime provinces "invincible against any attack by anybody."

If a conflict should come Russia would assume the offensive and probably would launch a huge pincers movement against the Japanese military and economic base in Manchukuo. Spearheads would drive eastward into Manchukuo from Outer Mongolia, towards Hsinking, and westward from a point north of Vladivostok toward the Manchukuoan capital. The first effort would be to gain control of the large communications system which the Japanese have developed in Manchukuo and to cut that country in two from east to west.

It was admitted that Vladivostok and Kamchatka would be vulnerable to Japanese attack, particularly in view of Nippon's vastly superior naval strength. Russians insisted, however, that Vladivostok would be defended. In passing through the port I was able to observe huge antisubmarine steel nets and other defense measures. Antiaircraft guns were clearly visible throughout the port city. Russians made a point, too, of stressing assertions that the entire coast defense system has been "vastly strengthened." Scores of airplanes maneuvered over the port and adjacent areas while I was in Vladivostok.

In connection with border defense preparations the Russians said that the entire Korean and Chinese populations of border areas—numbering tens of thousands of persons—has been moved into the interior as a precaution against possible Fifth Column activity. Only "good Russians" now are allowed to live in border areas.

Future Historians May Date War From Mukden 'Incident'

By Glenn Babb

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 18—Historians of the twenty-first century, surveying the tragic years of the middle twentieth, may debate among themselves whether the Second World War should be dated from September 18, 1931, or September 1, 1939.

This is the tenth anniversary of what the Japanese call the Mukden inicednt, which opened their conquest of Manchuria and constituted the first major blow struck by a great power at the world order established after the conflict of 1914-18.

It set in train a sequence of events that crushed liberal rule in Japan, destroyed the fabric of Pacific area stability woven at Washington ten years before, led to destruction of the League of Nations, showed the way to Mussolini in Ethiopia and to Hitler in Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland and finally brought nearly all the world to war.

The significance of the Mukden incident was that it marked the seizure of power in Japan by the military. It may be that after these ten years the wheel of history has finished a cycle—there are indications from Tokyo that the era of military domination may be nearing an end. At any rate, civilian leaders, appalled by the pass to which a decade of military adventure has brought their country, are striving to regain the reins.

These ten years have brought Japan conquests rivaling those of Adolf Hitler.

An empire of 90 million in 1931. Nippon has exercised some degree of control over the lives of some 250 million persons, an eighth of the world's population. Manchuria, Inner Mongolia, northern and central China, parts of southern China, French Indo-China have been overrun. The arms of Japan have carried her rule from the Arctic Circle nearly to the Equator and westward to the mountain ramparts of western China.

To regain such freedom the civilian leaders know they must keep the army under control. Apparently with this in view a national defense headquarters under direct command of Emperor Hirohito has been set up in Tokyo to keep a firm grip on all the land and air forces in the home territories of Nippon.

When the Japanese army struck at Mukden, China fell back on the machinery of collective security so painfully but frailly built up by the victors of 1918. She appealed to the League of Nations. The league, after 18 months of futile debate and investigation, could do no more than vote censure of Japan, which thereupon withdrew from the whole Geneva scheme of things. This failure was the league's death blow.

But this has been achieved at a terrific cost in enemity. China, unconquered, fights on. A powerful Russian army is poised on Japan's northern flank. The Netherlands East Indies and the Philippines are being armed against her. Britain has concentrated a mighty air force and strong land and naval forces in the Orient.

Most frightening of all to the Japanese is the pace at which the United States is arming and producing arms for her friends and Japan's enemies, her stiffening attitude toward Tokyo's expansionist policies, her declared determination to give all possible aid to China and Russia and to keep the sealanes open for delivery of such aid despite all opposition. Japan cries out that she is being encircled.

Therefore, the Tokyo government of Prince Fumimaro Konoye is trying to come to terms with Washington and apparently trying to find a way to regain her freedom of choice between the two groups of powers contending for world mastery. Japan seems doubtful whether she put her money on the right horse when she signed the Berlin treaty of alliance with Germany and Italy last September 27.

Historians of the future may be able to trace the influence of Japan's success in defying the dominant powers of the early 30's on the later courses of Italy and Germany. At least she showed the dictators, later to be her allies, the ease with which the League of Nations and the scheme of collective security could be flouted.

When Honjo set his Kwantung army in motion, Ethiopia still was just one of Mussolini's dreams and Hitler still was more than a year away from power. Nine years later, Japan, Germany and Italy, bound together by their common defiance of the Versailles world order and together masters of most of the old world, were to become full fledged allies with a program for setting up a new order for Europe, Africa and Asia.

Canada to Spend Half of National Income on War Effort

By John Chabot Smith

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The Dominion of Canada will spend nearly half its national income of 6 billion dollars on her war effort and aid to Britain during the fiscal year 1941-2, or more than twice as much in proportion as the United States had budgeted for this year's defense and lend-lease needs, it was learned yesterday.

This enormous expenditure for war purposes is expected to involve Canada in a much more extensive system of consumer sacrifices and economic controls during the coming year than the nation has yet experienced. Canadians will have to pull their belts in even further although they already have a several notch head start over the United States.

Semi-official figures prepared in Ottawa show Canadian war expenditures this year of $1,450,000,000 on her own part and $1,150,000,000 for aid to Britain for which no return is expected, or a total of $2,600,000,000, out of a national income estimated at under six billion dollars. The principal articles sent to England are munitions, foods, and lumber.

In the United States the national income for the fiscal year 1941-42 is estimated at $85 billion, swollen by wartime Government spending; while the Treasury Department estimate for the total of defense and lend-lease spending this year is $15,500,000,000, or less than 18 per cent of the national income.

The Canadian government has cut ordinary non-war spending by more than 10 per cent since the beginning of the war, but the surplus wheat problem created by the loss of normal markets has more than absorbed this saving.

The United States Government in contrast has succeeded in cutting non-defense expenditures in the first two and a half months of the current fiscal year by only 7.5 per cent, while the pressure in Congress for more non-defense spending has abated only slightly and fitfully.

To meet wartime needs Canada has sharply increased tax rates, particularly on personal and corporate incomes, and the increased national income has raised the yield of existing taxes. It has been estimated that total tax revenues this year will be $900,000,000 greater than the last prewar year, 1938-39, when the revenue was $602,171,000. If this estimate proves correct it will mean a 280 per cent increase in revenue over 1938-39.

Federal taxes in the United States have increased at an only slightly lower rate in this period. Total revenue in 1938-39 was $5,907,823,625, while this year's yield is expected to exceed that figure by eight billion dollars.

In addition to the increased taxation, the Canadian government has estimated the $1,250,000,000 must be borrowed from the public in the form of war savings certificates and bonds. Preliminary figures show that $711,000,000 was raised from the sale of bonds during a victory loan campaign in June.

The defense bond campaign in the United States is proportionately larger, and at the end of August a total of $1,272,093,000 had been sold in the drive which began May 1. Since Canada is officially in the war with both feet, the defense loan drive is that much more effective.

An additional problem facing Canada is the need for obtaining foreign exchange, both to prevent unfavorable capital movements and to pay for greatly increased imports from the United States. This problem has been substantially eased since the adoption of the lend-lease program in March, as Canada no longer has to pay for war materials destined for Great Britain.

The impact of the war on Canadian economic life was not felt immediately, as there was in 1939 considerable unused capacity in both labor and equipment. As this margin was absorbed, the national income rose by approximately $1,750,000,000 and tax yields increased proportionately. Gradually war production squeezed out production for consumer needs, and controls were instituted over private spending.

Women Lawyers Approve Court Consolidation Plan

The District Women's Bar Association went on record as approving consolidation of the police and municipal courts, with establishment of an intermediate court of appeal, at its first fall meeting Wednesday night at the Hotel Mayflower.

The group also adopted resolutions to endorse the candidacy of George M. Morris as next president of the American Bar Association, to cooperate with other women's organizations at the Civilian Defense mass meeting on October 14, and to aid Col. Lemuel Bolles, new director of Civilian Defense for the District.

Mrs. Ernest F. Parkinson was appointed chairman of a committee to study the police and municipal court situation. Plans for the winter program also were completed, providing for three business meetings and three informal gatherings. Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, president of the association, presided.

Guy Lombardo Finds Sweet Vindication in Trend Away From Hot Music

By Gladwin Hill
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 19.—"U. S. on Sweet Bender."

That's the theatrical magazine Billboard's way of stating that hot music is, at the moment, on the wane.

Citing the French international jabb savant, Hughes Panassie, on the theme, Billboard attributes it to the fact that the turbulent times have turned public tastes toward simple, sweet music for relief.

Whatever the reason, the development is a moral victory for a dark, handsome slick-haired young man from London, Ontario, named Guy Lombardo.

For 17 years, come hell, high water and hot music, Guy has steadfastly played sweet. Even in the recent rhumba race, he has shied away from rhumbas as a little wild.

His outfit is the foremost exponent of musical saccharinity, his familiar slogan: "The sweetest music this side of heaven."

In recent years, few have even thought of challenging this, because during the reign of swing, jam jive, boogie-woogie and general musical monkeyshines, sweetness has been a liability with which few bands care to be stigmatized.

Now maybe some of 'em will be wishing they had.

Not that Lombardo needs vindication, because he hasn't suffered or even been inconvenienced. Almost alone among bands, he has flourished playing sweet.

Not only he, but the whole Lombardo family. The Lombardo band is a family enterprise. There are four Lombardos in it—Guy, Carmen (vocals and saxophone), Lebert (drums) and Victor (clarinet). Little Sister Rose Marie also has sung with the band occasionally.

Papa Guy Lombardo, sr., and Mrs. Lombardo, who now live in Stamford, Conn., in a nice house that band profits helped build, also have more than a monetary interest in the enterprise.

It was Papa Lombardo's determination that the boys should be musicians.

A custom tailor in London, he was a frustrated musician who hummed around the house, sang over his seams and warbled out the window, and was determined that his children should give more adequate expression to the muse.

GUY LOMBARDO

So for years on end, he and Mrs. Lombardo suffered in silence night after night while the boys, closeted in separate rooms all over the house, tootled, sawed and banged away on their respective instruments. The project was not without its crises. One night papa and Guy got into an argument over tuning the A-string on his violin (which he no longer plays) and the discussion ended with the demolition of the bone of contention over Guy's south end.

When Guy was only 11, he organized his brothers and a little friend, Fred Kreitzer, jr., who had been learning the piano, into a unit that played for church socials and other coffee-and-cake affairs.

When they got through school, they worked their way across the border into Ohio, night clubs, vaudeville and the big time—never deviating from simple melodies played syrupy sweet, in metronomic time.

The band compensates for this ironclad policy with novel instrumenis and novel numbers. Its unusual boompo-boomp-boomp obbligatos that sound half-trombone, half-trumpet, come from a trick mellophone—one of those big winding horns—specially made with the bell pointing straight out instead of up.

Their tinkling passages come from a rare spinetino, a combination of a small harp and a portable typewriter, with keys which, when pressed, pull a pick across the strings.

As an introducer of new songs, the band is the answer to the song-plugger's prayer. Guy is very liberal about trying untried numbers, figuring that when one catches on, people will remember the band by it.

Once a song writer sent them a wacky number just as a gag. Guy, however, thought it had appeal, and insisted on plugging it. It became not only a hit but a national catchphrase—"Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

Carmen writes a lot of songs himself, like "Snuggled On Your Shoulder," "Boo-Hoo," and "Sailboat In the Moonlight." Once Guy heard another band playing a number called "Blue Nile" that intrigued him, and he tried to get it for the band. The author, "Joe London," turned out to be Carmen. He had though Guy wouldn't like it.

Liberties Being Safeguarded Despite Crisis, Biddle Says

By the Associated Press

Yosemite, Calif., Sept. 18.—Attorney General Francis Biddle said today he had no doubt the United States Government would maintain "our essential (constitutional) liberties" regardless of the severity of the crisis through which the Nation may have to pass.

He stated, however, it would deal "firmly yet fairly with those miserable saboteurs who make a mask of the very liberties they are seeking to destroy."

"It is of course axiomatic," Biddle said in an address before the California Bar Association, "that no liberty can be absolute. Some things permissible in ordinary times cannot be safely tolerated in a time of grave peril."

He recalled that the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, in a case arising during World War days, said "when a nation is at war many things that might be said in time of peace are such a hindrance to its effort that their utterance will not be endured as long as men fight, and no court could record them as protected by any constitutional right."

At the same time, Biddle recalled that Holmes, in another such case, said, "we do not lose our right to condemn either measures or men because the country is at war."

Biddle referred to a World War-time report of Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory that the Justice Department then was operating on the principle that the "constitutional right of free speech, free assembly and petition exist in war times as in peace time, and that the right of discussion of governmental policy and the right of political agitation are most fundamental rights in a democracy."

"Whatever contempt we may feel for the misguided malcontents who assert liberties only to destroy them, we need have no fear that government founded upon the processes and principles of our common law will cease to be just because the emergency compels it to be strong," Biddle added.

He cited a long list of historical occurrences which he said constituted precedents for the Congressional granting of emergency powers to the President. He also pointed out the constitutional provisions which make the President commander-in-chief of the armed forces, and said there were various legal grounds for regarding the President as the voice of the Nation in international affairs.

London Paper Urges British Drive in West

Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 18.—Offensive action by the British is urged in an editorial today by the Times of London, which bases its opinion on the present low ebb of German air activity over these islands—pointing out that the lull is of a most deceptive nature.

"We must strain every nerve both to sustain the Eastern Front and to develop other fronts where the enemy will have to expend his strength," the editorial says. "That conclusion is universally accepted in this country, where no feeling is more discredited than the feeling that time is necessarily on our side."

The trend toward action also was reflected in another source today when the executive committee of the Civil Service Clerical Association adopted a resolution "demanding the opening of a military campaign against the Nazis in western Europe."

Appraising the air war, the Times said:

"Inevitably we contrast our position today with that of last year. It is essential to remember that the present immunity from severe air raids is very largely due to causes other than the victory which we won in the air battle raging at this time last year.

"The absence of serious reaction to the R. A. F. offensive in the west is remarkable, in view of past German promises of immediate counters to any serious attacks."

Legion Pledges to Uphold Roosevelt in Foreign Policy

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 18.—The American Legion today elected Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. Dak., national commander in the closing session of its twenty-third national convention, in which the delegates took a strong stand for national defense and the President's foreign policies.

Stambaugh, 51-year-old lawyer, who entered the Army as a private in the 338th Field Artillery in the World War and was commissioned a second lieutenant while serving overseas, succeeded Milo J. Warner, of Toledo, Ohio, the retiring commander.

He was elected in a three-cornered race with Edward N. Scheiberling, of Albany, N. Y., and Raymond Fields, of Guthrie, Okla. His victory was assured before the roll call was completed, so at the request of his opponents, the count was halted and Stambaugh's election was declared unanimous.

"Place in Battle Lines"

"It is your will, legionnaires, that in the crisis which confronts America, the American Legion shall take its place in the battle lines forming," Stambaugh said in taking office.

"I have your orders and I take my call."

Before proceeding to the election, the delegates reiterated the organization's previously stated opposition to communism, fascism and nazism.

The delegates today refused to go on record as recommending legislation for conscription of capital, labor, industry and property as well as fighting manpower during time of national emergency or war.

Instead of the convention legislative committee's recommendation, the delegates adopted a substitute resolution stating in part:

"The full defense of America and its institutions should be the primary objective of a united American people; that our national defense effort should proceed without discrimination in employment, to the end that all citizens may avail themselves of their opportunity to contribute to and support our all-out defense effort . . .

"We reaffirm the principle of universal service as applicable equally to the armed forces, capital and labor and we call upon those elements of capital and labor who have been parties to delay, disturbance and strikes in essential industries to examine their responsibility to the nation in the light of the common sacrifice which all have to make."

Would Peg Labor Cost

The substitute also asked Congress to practice a "sacrificing economy in nondefense expenditures" and declared that if necessity exists to peg prices "the price and cost of labor should be covered in the same legislation which may cover the cost of food products, manufactured goods, or other essentials."

The Legion will meet next year in New Orleans. Detroit and San Francisco entered bids for the 1943 session.

National vice commanders elected were Charles E. Booth, Huntington, W. Va.; Thomas Sawyer, Gilbert, Ariz.; Delacey Allen, Albany, Ga.; John Sullivan, St. Albans, Vt., and V. M. Armstrong, Indianapolis, Ind. The Rev. Frederick J. Halloran, Trenton, N. J., was elected national chaplain.

Mrs. Mark W. Murrill, of Scituate, Mass., was elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Ambulance Group Needs Volunteers

The American Field Service, veteran ambulance organization, has been asked to supply 400 ambulances, completely equipped and manned, for duty with the British and Allied forces somewhere in the Middle East, the organization's New York office announced yesterday.

The unit is to be staffed entirely by American volunteers, and is represented in Washington by John P. Brown, 1911 R Street Northwest. All volunteers will be selected on the basis of an examination as to character and physical fitness, the announcement said, and only American citizens are eligible. If of draft age, they are required to obtain a release from their local boards, and must accept service for a minimum period of one year from date of leaving the United States.

Price Officials Investigate Story Of Zinc Increase

By the Associated Press

Price Administration officials said yesterday they were investigating reports that buyers of zinc had been charged prices ranging up to 16 cents a pound.

There is no formal price ceiling on zinc but under an informal agreement prices have been around 7½ cents a pound.

Aides declined to disclose what action was contemplated by Leon Henderson, price administrator, but they said that if the reports they had received were true the action of some zinc producers was definitely against the policy of the Office of Price Administration."

One Dead, Maj. Hill Injured in Crash

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 18 (AP).—Mrs. John Hoffner, 40, one of seven persons injured in a head-on collision of two automobiles near Trexlertown last night, died in an Allentown hospital today.

The condition of four of the others, including Maj. Carl B. Hill, of the Birdsboro CCC Camp, is serious. Maj. Hill, whose home is at Staunton, Va., received severe skull injuries.

Mrs. Hoffner was riding in an automobile driven by her husband, one of those injured. Maj. Hill was riding in a car with two CCC enrollees and Dr. Edwin J. Ward, of Crisfield, Md., CCC camp physician at Lancaster, Pa. He received head and face injuries.

Milk Price Rise Hits Needy Pupils

This in spite of the fact that Paul Edwards, District WPA administrator, declared last June that the city's schools have at least 15,000 youngsters who should be getting the free noonday lunches.

If Washington succeeds in obtaining a "penny-half-pint" project from the Surplus Marketing Administration, Department of Agriculture, it will end worries that some underpriviledged pupils may have to be denied milk.

Paying only 1 cent a bottle, the District could make its milk fund go more than three times as far, on the basis of the imminent 3¼-cent cost. Hence, more than three times as many needy pupils could be accommodated with free milk—and possibly the complete noonday lunch.

With volunteers preparing to assist WPA workers in preparing and serving the school meals this fall and supplies of surplus commodities adequate to stand expansion of the feeding program, lower priced milk probably would mean soup, stew and sandwiches—as well as milk—for more underfed school children than ever before.

Commissioner Mason told The Post he is hopeful that the Agriculture Department will approve and inaugurate a penny program for schools, community centers, settlement houses and other juvenile service agencies in low income neighborhoods.

The Board of Education on Wednesday appointed a special committee, headed by Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools, to determine which schools are eligible for the low-cost bottles.

Rent Decision Due Next Week

League and the Washington Taxpayers Association.

Craig S. Vincent, secretary of the Washington Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.), observed that with these organizations backing rent control, the proposition has almost solid support. Vincent said the C. I. O., originally in favor of a bill establishing a three-man rent commission, now supports legislation authorizing the President to name a rent administrator.

Vincent declared that because of high living costs in Washington "people are turning down jobs with the Government, a situation which can and will hinder defense work."

Prettyman described the new bill as simple in its operation, partly because it would permit tenants to refuse to pay rents above levels of a year ago. He contrasted the bill with the other measures which, he held, are "theoretical and in such general terms as would merely add to the present confusion."

Harry S. Wender, first vice president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, told the subcommittee that the new bill contains many of the rent-control principles indorsed by the federation.

George A. Warren appeared for the American Federation of Government Employes.

16 Nazi Planes Downed, Plant Hit in Forays

By the United Press

London, (Friday) Sept. 19.—The Air Ministry announced today that four British fighter planes attacked four German minesweepers off the Belgian coast late yesterday and sank at least two in a widespread series of raids along the continental coast.

The minesweepers were raked with cannon and machine gun fire, and two were seen to sink while another was set on fire and the fourth was left hit and listing heavily, the ministry said.

Earlier official reports said British planes sank two antiaircraft ships, blasted a power station and shot down 16 German Messerschmitts in daylight raids on shipping and objectives along the coast.

Two British Bombers Lost

Two British bombers and nine fighters were lost, but two of the fighter pilots are safe, the ministry said.

(The official Germany agency, D. N. B. claimed that 13 British Spitfires and a Handley-Page Hampden bomber were shot down while attempting to fly over occupied France. Messerschmitts also were reported to have shot down two Blenheims attacking a German steamer in the English Channel.)

The raids followed a night attack on the southwestern Germany industrial center of Karlsruhe, where targets were reported set afire.

The two antiaircraft ships sunk, together with German fighters, were escorting a supply ship off the Belgian coast when a formation of Blenheims, protected by fighters, attacked. The supply ship was damaged, the ministry said.

Target Is Hit

An attack on a power station at Rouen, in northern France, was pressed home in the face of heavy antiaircraft fire, the ministry said. Pilots reported bombs fell on the target.

Another force of Blenheims, also escorted by fighters, were reported to have attacked two motorships off the Dutch coast and damaged one of them.

Nazis Raid British Harbor Works

Berlin, Sept. 18 (U.P.)—German planes attacked harbor works in southeast England last night, the high command claimed today.

A large merchantman was bombed and heavily damaged Wednesday near the Faroe Islands between Iceland and Scotland, the communique said.

The official agency D.N.B. said five civilians were killed and nine injured in an R.A.F. raid on a small French town. Ten houses in a workers' settlement were said to have been destroyed.

New Shah Gives State His Father's Estate

Teheran, Sept. 18 (U.S.)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi today turned over to the Persian state all the possessions of his rich father, who abdicated this week under Russian and British military pressure.

(A Rome radio broadcast picked up in New York by N.B.C. asserted that Britain is planning to set up in Iran a new dynasty headed by the Aga Khan, wealthy head of an Indian sect.)

Streets Lined As Teheran Waits Invaders

By Russell Hill

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Teheran, Iran (Wednesday), Sept. 17.—Today Teheran is watching the Germans go out and the British and Russians come in.

The streets are lined with expectant crowds. There has been some fear as the ruthlessness of the Russians during the occupation 20 years ago is remembered, but the disciplined conduct of the Red troops in all the areas occupied has gone much to dispel this fear.

The Allied armies have marched on the capital from three directions. Russian armored units arrived yesterday from the west and camped just outside the city overnight. Trainloads of Red infantry arrived from the east this morning and already are moving into the outskirts of Teheran. These are the troops landed at the Caspian ports.

Finally, from the south is coming a brigade of the Indian army, including a regiment of Ghurka rifles and an armored regiment using partly American armored cars. At 2 p. m. the brigadier in command will enter the city and drive to the British Legation to see Minister Bullard.

Swede Takes Over Legation

Since he has come to make sure the Germans leave, he will ask what action he is expected to take. The answer is likely to be that the Germans have already left, for now they are preparing for departure with unaccustomed speed. Apparently the news of the troops' arrival had a salutatory effect.

I walked past the German Legation this morning and noticed that it was already flying the Swedish flag as Sweden has been charged with the representation of German interests here. Nearby I counted 20 large brown trucks which were being packed with baggage. These trucks, once sold by the Germans to the Iranian army, are now being used to take the legation's staff members and the women and children of the colony here to Erzerom, in eastern Turkey.

New Shah to Be Sworn In

An hour after the entry of the British brigadier, the new 22-year-old shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, will make his first public appearance for the ceremony of swearing in at the Majlis.

Everyone is interested to know what kind of a Shah he is going to make. Much depends on whether he chooses to adopt the ways which were taught him in Switzerland where he was educated, or whether he chooses to rule and conduct himself in the manner of his father's court. The Iranians hope that he can profit by the experience of the old Shah, as they do not desire a second abdication.

Zestful and Nutritious Meat Dish Is the Basis of Thrifty Meal Planning

A combination platter of pork shoulder and hominy, as pictured at left, is a nourishing and attractive main dish that Mrs. Charles A. Halleck, mother of twin daughter and son, suggests as food that will help to stretch the food dollar.

***

The children will come for more if a stew is properly cooked and attractively served as Mrs. R. J. Wiegand, mother of eight girls, prepares it. Vegetables, she thinks, should be arranged with shape and color in mind, as shown at right.

Food Economy Practiced By Capital Homemakers

By Martha Ellyn

The Post Food Editor

THE NEED for economy is no handicap to the clever homemaker when it comes to serving good meals. The market-wise shopper takes a second look, perhaps a third, as she walks about the market, searching for foods that will be nutritious and attractive to serve and yet not make a colossal dent in her pocketbook.

Martha Ellyn

New dents are appearing almost daily in our budgets, but the thrifty homemaker can take the dents, knowing that she is doing it for National Defense. And she has been learning since last spring, when the Nutrition Conference was called by President Roosevelt, that the leaders of the Nation consider nutrition as one of our best weapons of defense, because it is the way to good health.

Good health is important to the soldiers in training, to factory workers building defense equipment, to civilian workers contributing their aid, to growing school children and to the homemaker herself who is piloting the home.

The clever homemaker knows that delicious meals can be served at low cost when the less-demanded cuts of meat, rich in flavor and food value, are used as the basis. These economy cuts of meat can be used to keep the budget in balance. And these cuts are well suited for cooking with vegetables because both are cooked in moist heat.

Let's see how some of Washington's thrifty-minded housewives are feeding their families these days. The Post Food Editor has invaded the homes of three widely known Washington families and found how thrifty cuts of meat may be served with vegetables in a nutritious and attractive way.

Athletic Fare

Mrs. Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, 10 Rosemary Street, Chevy Chase, Md., is a homemaker whose friends know she never misses a trick when it comes to being thrifty in an attractive way. As the mother of two children, Cynthia, 10, and Arthur, jr., 30, it is necessary for Mrs. Bergman to provide meals that "stick to the ribs." Her athletically famous husband, the former director of athletics at Catholic University, is also one with a pronounced appetite, so she says it is no dainty fare that will satisfy either him or her children.

Mrs. Bergman

Mrs. Bergman is a market-wise shopper who knows when she sees a cut of brisket of beef on the meat counter that it is packed with good flavor and nutrients. Brisket of beef is one of the more attractive cuts less familiar to shoppers, and which, therefore, is often overlooked at first glance.

"Beef brisket is a meat that my family likes best when I make it into what I call a Hoosier Special," said Mrs. Bergman. "Instead of boiling the brisket with vegetables as a New England boiled dinner is made, I simmer it gently until tender."

Mrs. Bergman added that with brisket bought at 15 cents a pound, and carrots, onions, cabbage and beets selling at such reasonable prices, she could give her family a pleasing dinner at very low cost.

Here is the way this homemaker makes this thrifty, nutritious and attractive dish:

Hoosier Special

Wash 4 pounds beef brisket in cold water. Place in kettle containing water which is just at the boiling point. Cover and simmer slowly about 5 hours, or until tender. Thirty minutes before serving time add 6 medium sized carrots and 6 onions. Fifteen minutes later add 1 small head cabbage cut in quarters. Cook 12 beets separately. Serve on a large platter with the meat in the center and the vegetables arranged around it. Serves 4.

Did you ever wonder what the family of a statesman eats? Do they eat "even as you and I," or do they dine on caviar, filet mignon and crepe suzettes? I found out what the family of one Representative in Congress eats when I went on my thrift tour. It is a representative Midwestern dish, but its appeal does not diminish one iota either above or below the Mason-Dixon line.

Congressional Special

Mrs. Charles A. Halleck, wife of Representative Halleck of Indiana, comes from a section of the country where corn and hogs are important products. And from these two foods evolves a nutritious main dish. It's smart to be thrifty and it's pleasant as well, when an economy dish as tempting and satisfying as this sliced smoked pork and hominy combination which Mrs. Halleck says she often prepares for her husband and twin daughter and son, Patricia and Charles.

Mrs. Halleck

The smoked shoulder butt of pork, sometimes called a cottage roll, is a small, boneless piece made by boning the blade section of the shoulder. It is then smoked like ham or picnic shoulder. This is a small cut, weighing from two to three pounds. There is no waste. It is easy to prepare and serve. It is good hot or cold. This shoulder butt of pork, or cottage roll, may be bought cooked or uncooked. The uncooked is usually about 25 cents a pound, while the cooked is about 29 cents a pound.

Mrs. Halleck is high in her praise of this economical cut of meat and has the following to say in its favor:

"This cottage roll is a good choice for cooking with vegetables for it lends its flavor to them. Its own flavor may be enhanced by adding spices to the water in which it is cooked, or by glazing the surface, or inserting cloves, as in the surface of baked ham. It also blends well with a wide variety of food which may be served with it. Sliced shoulder and hominy is a favorite of my family."

After getting Mrs. Halleck's opinion of this cut of meat, which is a help to the thrift-minded cook, I asked her to tell me exactly how she cooks it. Here is her answer:

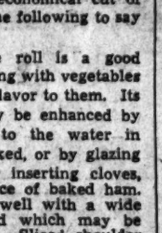
Cottage Roll

"It is very simple to prepare. Place the meat in a deep kettle and cover with water. Let simmer until done, about two hours. Spices may be added to the water in which it is cooked. Or it may be taken from the water, drained and glazed by spreading the surface with a smooth paste of brown sugar, flour, one tablespoon of water and one tablespoon vinegar.

"I serve this meat with salted and seasoned hominy in the center of my serving platter, surrounded by slices of the shoulder, and garnished with parsley."

How to Feed Ten

If you were the mother of eight lusty girls ranging in age from 3 to 17, you would no doubt be looking around as to how to feed them economically nutritionally and easily. Such is the problem of Mrs. R. J. Wiegand, 320 Seventeenth Street Southeast. Mrs. Wiegand's husband is a pattern maker at the Navy Yards and has taught all of his daughters the intricacies of tumbling. The girls are widely known in Washington for their accomplishment for they have appeared as entertainers before many organizations.



Mrs. Wiegand

School and tumbling put an edge on the girls' appetites and work does the same for their father. So, with 10 mouths to feed on a normal income, Mrs. Wiegand say she must stretch the food dollars the elastic limit.

When The Post food editor asked Mrs. Wiegand what dish she served that she considered economical, as well as nutritious, she answered "stew."

"Not just any old stew, but one that is cooked properly and served attractively. Then you can use left-overs or you can buy less-demanded cuts, such as beef chuck, selling for about 21 cents a pound, or short ribs, or lamb, or veal breast, all of which are fairly reasonably priced. These cuts, combined with various vegetables, offer an interesting way to add variety to my meals."

So if you are interested in a dish that will offer you a way to feed your family nutritionally, economically and easily, try the following method of Mrs. Wiegand's to prepare it.

The Juggler's Stew

Wipe 4 pounds of beef chuck with damp cloth and cut into one-inch pieces. Brown the meat in 6 tablespoons hot fat. Add 2 cups water. Cover and simmer for about 45 minutes. Add 12 carrots, 12 small white onions, 12 potatoes and continue to simmer. Season. Cook until the vegetables are done. This will take about 30 minute. Thicken the liquid left in the kettle and serve with stew. Arrange the stew on platter with the shape and the color of the vegetables in mind.

Brisket of beef so full of flavor and nutrients takes on new appeal when presented as pictured above. This is the way that Mrs. Arthur J. Bergman suggests for attaining captivating results with a thrifty cut of meat.

Bright Vegetable Enhances Menu

When a spot of color is needed on the menu, a dish of red cabbage will supply it. Or perhaps beets prepared with orange will be the color and flavor that will give the meal a lift. Here are two recipes adding red to the menu:

Hot Red Cabbage—Melt 2 tablespoons butter in bottom of a kettle. Add 1 medium size red cabbage (about 4 cups shredded), 2 medium size apples, chopped, ½ cup vinegar, 2 cups hot water, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons sugar. Cover and steam until apples and cabbage are tender, usually about 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 6.

Orange Beets—To 2 cups orange juice add 2 tablespoons butter blended with 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup lemon juice and ¼ cup sugar. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cook until thickened slightly and pour over cooked hot sliced beets. Serves 6 to 8.

Company Fare Achieved Through Simple Additions

For a new dessert pancake add one cup of drained chopped fruit to a standard griddle cake batter. Chopped apples, shredded pineapple, chopped dates, dried apricots or raisins are all good fall and winter combinations.

When unexpected callers drop in for afternoon coffee or tea cut slices of enriched white bread with a scalloped cookie cutter, spread with honey butter and sprinkle with a sugar-cinnamon mixture. Pop these spicy, sweet circles under the broiler for a few minutes until they are toasted to a rich, golden color.

What slices of ham are to eggs, slices of brown bread are to baked beans. The busy lady who doesn't have time to steam her own brown bread can buy it in cans or order it from her favorite bakeshop.

A delightful muffin treat for this time of year are Apple Muffins. These are easily made by adding a cupful of chopped apple to a plain muffin batter made with two cups enriched flour.

Biscuit-meat combinations are real penny savers. Upside-Down Hamburger Biscuit is an especially economical edition of this nutritious combination. Brown well-seasoned hamburger in a little fat, put it into a pan and place biscuit dough on top. Bake this time-and-money saver in a hot oven (450 F.) until the biscuit mixture is nicely browned, or bake it in a covered skillet on top of the range.

Bread Pudding time is here. For a real taste treat soak slices of enriched bread in milk until soft. Grease a deep baking dish and place slices of bread and layers of cranberry sauce alternately into it. Sprinkle layers with plump raisins and a little lemon juice. Cover with crumbs and bake. Pour foamy sauce over all when serving.

Green Peppers Add Color, Flavor To Dinner Menu

Green peppers will not be seasonal much longer. But there's still time for a few more stuffed peppers. That green pepper and rip olive taste is among favorite West Coast seasonings. Stuffed Peppers El Capitan uses the ready-chopped form of ripe olives with ground beef and rice. It's a combination to remember and here is the recipe by which to make it:

Stuffed Peppers El Capitan—Cut slices from stem ends of 6 medium-sized bell peppers and remove seeds; drop peppers into boiling were and cook about five minutes; remove from water and drain. Heat 4 tablespoons fat or oil in frying pan, add 1½ pounds of ground beef and 1½ teaspoons salt and cook and stir for about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, add 2 cups rice and 2/3 cup chopped ripe olives, and blend thoroughly. Stand peppers on end in baking pan and fill with meat mixture. Sprinkle tops with ½ cup grated American cheese, place slices that were cut from ends over tops and pour broth around peppers. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, about 1 hour or until peppers shells are tender. Serves 6.

Army Drops the Curtain On 29th's Theater Company

By the Associated Press

It looked like curtains last night for the musical revue aspirations of 200 stage-struck soldiers after their brief interlude of foot-lighted glory in Baltimore, Md.

Stern orders from the War Department shut down their fast-moving production, "Snap It Up Again," and all indications were that they wouldn't be allowed to "snap it up" any more.

The 200, members of the Twenty-ninth (National Guard) Division regularly stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md., started their show in Baltimore early this week. It contained everything from strong man acts to opera bouffe. Wednesday the adjutant general of the Army ordered it closed, basing his order on a provision of law forbidding soldiers to compete with civilians—in this case established entertainment enterprises in Baltimore.

The matter was brought yesterday to the attention of Secretary of War Stimson and he announced at a press conference that he had ordered a full investigation. Prior to a further statement from him, other officials here withheld comment, but it was generally expected that he would fully support the adjutant general's ruling.

It was expected that a report to Stimson on the matter would be made by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Twenty-ninth. Gen. Reckord came here yesterday from northern Virginia, where his troops are on maneuver.

Meanwhile, the 200 soldier-actors languished in an armory at Baltimore waiting final orders as to whether they should return to the theater or set off to join their outfit in Virginia. It was, most everybody admitted, a tough predicament for them, because they had worked hard getting the show together and, after Baltimore, they looked forward to playing in Richmond, Va., and in Washington.

But according to the view in official circles here the question was much broader than merely one of putting on a show. It was said authoritatively to cover two principal issues: First, the matter of competition; and second, the matter of having soldiers working hard at being good entertainers at a time when they were supposed to be working hard at being good soldiers.

Roosevelt Hails Chile for Devotion To Democracy

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt expressed his appreciation for the attitude of Chile toward "sound democratic processes" and continental defense, in a message to President Cerda yesterday felicitating him on the national anniversary of Chilean independence. The message said:

"On this anniversary of the independence of Chile I am happy to extend to your excellency and to the people of Chile my personal felicitations and those of the people of the United States. As the free republics of the Americas commemorate the fundamental dates of their national histories they become increasingly aware of the threats abroad in the world today to free nations and to free institutions everywhere. It has therefore been particularly heartening to me and to the people of the United States during the past year to note the unequivocal and continued evidence in Chile of a traditional devotion to sound democratic processes and of an unqualified adherence to those measures of continental defense required by the present circumstances. I am glad to have this opportunity of extending to your excellency my best wishes for your personal welfare and for the prosperity of the people of Chile."

Driver's Helper Fatally Hurt Under Wheels of Milk Truck

D. C. traffic deaths this year.... 60
Deaths this date last year..... 50
District deaths last year..... 79

A Washington youth, three weeks on the job, was killed beneath the wheels of a milk delivery truck in Alexandria yesterday. In the District, a coroner's jury absolved a policeman in the traffic death of an elderly pedestrian.

Alfred P. Murray, 19, of 4120 Gault Place Northeast, was fatally injured at 5 a. m. yesterday when run over by a milk truck on which he worked as a helper. The accident occurred in the 100 block of West Glebe Road, Alexandria.

At an inquest conducted yesterday afternoon by Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria coroner, the truck's driver, Preston M. Hardesty, 27, of 1944 U Place Southeast, testified that he had believed the youth to be standing on the side of the truck, but on stopping to make a delivery, had discovered him to be lying in the road 50 feet behind.

Alexandria's Fifth Fatality

The inquest failed to determine how Murray fell under the truck's wheels, but did find the death to be accidental. It was Alexandria's fifth traffic fatality of the year.

A native of Washington, young Murray attended Maryland Park High School at Seat Pleasant, Md. He was employed at the Indian Head (Md.) Powder Plant until three weeks ago, when he gave up that job to go to work for Chestnut Farms Dairy.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Murray; three brothers, William L. jr., William E., and Richard H.; and three sisters, Mrs. Olivia W. Cohan and the Misses Dora and Eva May. Services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the residence, with burial to follow in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Policeman Edward M. Brown, 41, of 4008 Chesapeake Street Northwest, was absolved of blame in the traffic death of John Ragan, 65, of 4903 Fifth Street Northwest, by a coroner's jury here yesterday.

Another Inquest Scheduled

Brown, who is attached to the Eighth Precinct, was bound for the precinct station when he struck Ragan at Twenty-first Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest, September 4. Ragan suffered a fractured skull and died the next morning at Emergency Hospital.

Lieut. William J. Liverman, of the Accident Prevention Unit, testified at the inquest that his investigation disclosed the victim was "dog trotting" across Constitution Avenue from the north to the south curb, not on the crosswalk.

Another traffic inquest will be held at the Morgue this morning when the death of Thomas J. Coleman, 60, of 510 Fifth Street Northwest, is investigated. Coleman was struck and killed by a streetcar in front of the new Municipal Center, Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue Northwest, last Saturday. Police said the streetcar was operated by Lloyd B. Wilbank, 25, of 327 Fourteenth Street Northeast. He will appear at the hearing.

Infant Disease 'Not Uncommon,' Dr. Ruhland Says

Outbreaks of infant diarrhea are "not uncommon" and "have been reported from time to time in this and other cities under supposedly ideal conditions," Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, told Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, yesterday.

Ruhland wrote Randolph in reply to the legislator's request for information in connection with a recent dysentery outbreak in the nursery of Sibley Hospital.

"Prompt measures were taken," Ruhland said, adding that hospital authorities "cooperated to the fullest possible degree by closing the institution to new admissions of maternity cases on August 29."

Hospital officials, Ruhland stated, have "since been working actively with a pediatric advisory committee and with members of the Health Department staff."

Meanwhile, it was learned, hospital authorities have arranged for a conference with Randolph at the Capitol today.

Convoy Arrival in Britain Gives Writer Old Home Week Feeling

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

A British port, Sept. 18.—A convoy disgorged today on the docks of this port a truly all-American cargo of everything from California warplanes to Georgia peanuts—part of 850,000 tons of supplies which, officials say, is arriving every week in England.

To a Selma, Ala., boy watching it unload it was like old home week.

"Hey you guys!" sang Arch Masterson, of Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, superintendent of plane unloading. "Watch that plane!"

The plane was a grease-smeared Douglas attack bomber from Santa Monica, Calif., which the British call a "Boston." At least a dozen others were coming off the ship.

"I have been here for three years unloading these babies," said Masterson. "They are beginning to roll now."

In the Air in Three Days

Masterson said the R. A. F. gets the planes into the air three days after he unloads them. He can unload two an hour, he said. They already have undergone test flights.

At the next wharf sweating workers were tackling food, wide-eyed and smacking their lips at what passed through their hands.

The first lot consisted of big sacks of beans from Hansen, Idaho.

"Lots o' soup there, mate," grinned a grimy docker.

There was a rumble as men rolled off tubs from Chicago stamped "Wisconsin Brand" cheese.

Another ship, its decks packed high, showed full bright brown cartons bearing the label "seedless raisins from Fresno, Calif.

At the edge of the docks lay a broken bag of Georgia peanuts. I picked one up and got ready to flip it into my mouth.

"Wait!" warned Col. J. J. Llewelly, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of war transport, "the penalty for looting is death."

Florida Citrus Fruits

An electric-driven truck whizzed by packed high with another kind of carton—"citrus fruit from Lake Wales, Fla."

Atop a big pile of boxes a wall-eyed docker rubbed his stomach and smiled. He sat on white pine boxes marked "skinned hams, Chicago."

Behind a pile of more beans stood a green, United States-made ambulance. "Gift from the people of Milford, Conn."

At still another place whistling workers lugged fire extinguishers from Brooklyn and dried apples from San Francisco.

Then was encountered the biggest pile of all: "Lard from St. Louis" and "Canned Pork, Chicago."

A whirlwind tour disclosed boxes of fiber from Wilmington, Del.; insulation material from Trenton, N. J., and tank tracks from Chicago.

The ministry of war transport said that lease-lend cargoes and other imports had been landed at the 850,000 tons weekly rate for the last ten weeks. The ministry said there had been a big speed-up due to a quicker "turn-around" of ships.

Janitor Given Life in Slaying Of Teacher

By the Associated Press

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 18.—Albert B. Lukens, 58-year-old church janitor, was convicted late today of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy in the church slaying and cremation of Miss Ruth Zwicker, 24, a music teacher.

The verdict made life imprisonment mandatory. The jury deliberated Lukens' fate nearly 29 hours.

Judge Walter B. Wanamaker immediately sentenced Lukens after overruling a motion for a new trial.

Lukens was accused by the State of fatally choking Miss Zwicker after she refused him a kiss, and of cremating her body Easter morning in the church where he worked.

State witnesses testified that on June 28 Lukens—already indicted for first degree murder—made a "third confession," admitting he choked the pretty pianist after attempting to rape her. He later was reindicted for first degree murder with intent to rape.

Capt. Hornberger's Rites Tomorrow; 30 Years in Navy

Services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Gawler's funeral home, 1750 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, for Capt. John Randolph Hornberger, Supply Corps, U. S. Navy, retired, who died Wednesday in Naval Hospital.

Capt. Hornberger, 62, retired in 1936 after 30 years service, beginning with appointment as paymaster's clerk. With his wife, Olive Louise, he made his home here at the Westchester Apartments. His body will be taken to Santa Barbara, Calif., for interment.

During his naval career, Capt. Hornberger served on many ships at sea. He had two tours of duty in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts here and was on duty there when retired at his own request. Capt. Hornberger was awarded a special letter of commendation by the Navy Department for meritorious service as first assistant to the supply officer of the gun factory at the Navy Yard here during the World War.

Two Snake Cultists Convicted After Outburst Delays Trial

By the Associated Press

Jonesville, Va., Sept. 18.—A Lee County Circuit Court jury today found guilty the Rev. Otis Burke and G. W. Givens, and acquitted three other members of a Holiness Faith healing cult on charges of unlawful wounding as the result of a snake-handling ceremony.

The jury acquitted Mrs. Murphy Smith, Frances and Eliza Delph.

Burke and Givens were sentenced to 30 days each in jail and fined $50 each. Burke immediately asked Judge George Morton for a new trial or dismissal of sentence. Judge Morton said he would hear their appeal September 26, but insisted that they employ counsel.

Two spectators were jailed during a tumultuous prayer-shouting and demonstration when Burke, who served as his own attorney, took the stand after pleading his case and giving his version of the ritual several weeks ago at which Liza Cooper was painfully bitten by a copperhead.

Burke uttered a few words of testimony before Judge George Morton and suddenly began to sway and jerk and repeatedly shout "Praise His holy name." The outburst touched off pandemonium.

The judge rapped smartly for order but the sound of his gavel was all but drowned out amid the heightening demonstration.

On rapid orders from the bench, officers bustled the man and woman out the back door of the courtroom to the jailhouse. Both continued their shouting as they were taken away. Later Mrs. Burke was released.

Montgomery's Last Gray Soldier Dies

John Benjamin Munger, of Poolesville, Md., believed to be the last soldier of the Confederacy in Montgomery County, is dead.

MR. MUNGER

The gray-bearded veteran, a familiar figure for many years at patriotic functions throughout the county, died at his home yesterday in his hundredth year. He passed his ninety-ninth birthday April 17.

For 18 months the former soldier, farmer and lumber-dealer had been confined to his home with a heart ailment. He had been unable to grub in his garden or go fishing, which were his favorite pastimes before his health began to fail.

Mr. Munger leaves six children, 11 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. The children are Misses Cora and Beulah Munger, of Poolesville; Mrs. Bessie Arrington, of Washington; Mrs. Myra Driver, of Frederick; Mrs. Effie Fox, of Poolesville, and Marvin Munger, of Rockville.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be at Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md., where in years gone by he has been the central figure at memorial services conducted by the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mr. Munger was born at Elkton, Va., the son of a farmer. At the age of 18 he volunteered as a color bearer with Company I, Tenth Virginia Infantry, a detachment of Stonewall Jackson's famed "foot cavalry."

He saw service at the battles of Manassas, Gettysburg, Chancellorsville and the Wilderness, emerging almost miraculously without being wounded. At the Battle of the Wilderness he was taken prisoner, but his bullet-riddled flag he carefully rolled up and placed between the bodies of two comrades on the field. Just before his capture the flag had been knocked from his grasp by a cannon ball.

He spent three months as a prisoner of war at Point Lookout and then was transferred to a prison at Elmira, N. Y., where he stayed a year until hostilities ended. In a memorandum left to his grandchildren, he described frightful conditions at the prison.

"We were placed in an old building, weatherboarded and stripped," he wrote. "But still, with many cracks, the cold air came in. We had only two stoves for each 100 men. We were kept in close confinement and hundreds died from lack of food and exercise."

After the war Mr. Munger engaged in the lumber business in Staunton, Va., and later operated a farm near Roanoke. He married in 1867 Miss Eliza Huffman, of Elkton, Va., who died in 1924. Mr. Munger has been a resident of Poolesville since 1916.

Silk or Wool—Each Has Its Own Type of Jewelry

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

Many women who set out to complete their fall wardrobes of tailored wools and simple silk frocks are confronted with the jewelry problem. Here are a few suggestions from jewelry buyers of local stores to aid in discriminating between the types that are suitable for wear on woolens and silks.

Double clips and pins are relegated almost entirely to the realm of the silk dress—according to buyers. Exception is made in the case of sheer and dressy woolen outfits, but for simple woolens, brilliant pins are not in taste. Diamonds, rhinestones and cut stones that sparkle and glow are quite in keeping with the silk dress, such as the one shown on this page, however.

With the tailored wool dress, the chain effect of long necklaces or choker styles is considered more appropriate this season. Pearls that wrap around the neck one or two times are just as popular as gold color metal chains. In gold, the 24- and 30-inch lengths are already favorites. While there are gold and silver chains as long as 60 inches in length, massive necklaces are not being shown for tailored wools.

As to the coordination of bracelets, necklaces and earrings, buyers say it is better to match just two of the three. Bracelets and necklaces match each other, or earrings match either one of the two. When all three are combined, such as shown on the wool dress here, the earrings usually match as to color and material, but not in style and motive. Group bracelets and earrings that follow the curve of the ear lobe are the most popular styles among women.

Plant Bulbs for Indoor Garden

PLANTED NOW—bulbs can keep your home abloom all winter!

The sweet-smelling narcissus is first to blossom; then, in a steady procession lasting until spring, come pink-or yellow flowered oxalis, the flaming amaryllis, the nodding daffodil.

You have only to know a little about your flowery guests to have success with them. The paper-white narcissus may be easily grown in a bowl of water and pebbles. Keep the lower third of the bulb in water and put the bowl in a dark cool spot until roots are an inch long.

For potted bulbs, use two parts garden soil and one part sharp sand. Cover drainage holes of flower pots with broken bits of pots, add an inch of cinders or pebbles, then soil.

Nearly all bulbs like to be planted with the tips exposed After potting, soak the mover-night in a pail of water.

Then, for your daffodil, comes an outdoor rooting period in a little pit dug in your garden. Your other bulbs can start in a cool dark spot in your house—the oxalis needing only a week, the amaryllis a longer period. It isn't ready for full light until the stem's 3 inches high.

For a perfect indoor garden you will want, too, the lovely greenery of foliage plants and perhaps an exotic little terrarium.

You can make glass gardens in any clear-glass container such as a fishbowl—and grow anything from a single perfect plant to an entire "landscape" with miniature trees, lakes and hills!

Our 40-page booklet, "Success With House Plants and Flowers," tells how to grow flowering and foliage plants, ferns, bulbs, bracket plants. Has directions for dish gardens and terrariums, including gardenia and orchid terrariums; also for growing vines, plants and bulbs in water. Pointers on watering, repotting, checking pests.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Success With House Plants and Flowers," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of the Washington Post, Home Institute, 129 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Pastel Lace Curtains

Lace curtains are coming out with lots of innovations . . . in addition to white and ecru nets, some of the new curtains are in pale blue, pale pink, pale yellow—really lovely. The designs of the new lace nets are equally versatile . . . a book of old Chinese ornaments supplied some of the motifs . . . others came out of French brocades of the early nineteenth century . . . still others were copied after museum pieces of old Brussels and Duchesse laces.

Women's Ideas Are Followed In Modern Home Designing

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

WOMEN don't build buildings—they never have done much of that sort of thing anywhere along their long path of history. Even today with women in so many of the so-called men's professions, there aren't many women architects. That doesn't mean, however, that women haven't had a tremendous influence on architects . . . from Cleopatra and Josephine Bonaparte right down to Mrs. So-and-So in the next block, most women have seen their ideas interpreted into brick and stone, into wood and tile and stucco. For most homes are built to please the ladies there's no doubt about that. Just as most furniture, most fabrics, most rugs, though made by men, are made for women. That is why we lend such an eager ear to the letters our readers write us about refurbishings . . . they're the dictators and from their wants we read the styles of the future.

Bedroom Problem

Mrs. F. J. M. Writes: "I am doing over my bedroom and need some help. The floor is pine and has been varnished or shellacked, I don't know which. It must all be sanded, but what should I do after that? The walls are plastered and tinted in yellow and I have a yellow chenille spread. The woodwork I expect to do over. What color would you have it? I am taking the varnish off the furniture—these pieces I will do over but I am puzzled about what finish to make them. The room is just 11 by 11 feet, too small to arrange so that the bed doesn't have to be moved when made up. So whatever I use on the floor must take the constant shifting of the bed legs. There are two windows that need new curtains. I'd like to have something different from ordinary blinds. I shall also need small rugs for the floor. I expect to do all the work myself except the sanding of the floor."

To Save Floors

After your floors have been sanded, a stout coat of good shellac will be about the most practical thing, especially for pine floors. However, I don't believe there is any finish on a soft wood floor that will stand up very well when you have to move the bed constantly back and forth. Good casters on the bed will be your best protection. Or else those little round glass or wooden "saucers" for furniture legs will help a lot. Some of the wooden ones have felt on the bottom to further protect against marring the floor. We'd paint the woodwork the same color as the walls or else white . . . this will make the room seem larger. You could bleach the wood of your furniture, then pickle it. Or you might paint it in white. White lace net curtains would be pretty especially with window shades made of flowered chintz that has a pattern of yellow flowers on a white ground. For the floor, why not have white string cotton mats, or else scatter rugs in flowered design.

Thermoplastics Place Stress on Feminine Form

By Ida Jean Kain

NOW THAT the use of thermoplastic dress forms makes it possible to reproduce the individual feminine figure exactly as it is, women are taking a hasty glance at their forms and are dashing out to buy better foundation garments. And I predict that many of them will go even further and take exercise seriously.

This and similar data comes to us by courtesy of the thermoplastic experts, headed by Miss Katherine Selby, who have molded thousands of the plastic forms. The plastic remains rigid at ordinary temperature, but when heated to a few degrees body temperature it is easily shaped to your lines. Your local sewing center can tell you all about it.

Although the individualized forms are designed to make dresses fit better, the final results will probably be that there are better figures to fit also. To get a good clear view of your figure faults is to want to correct them.

One of the most recurrent figure problems about the country is the raised shoulder, with the hip thrown out of alignment. This is really a posture problem resulting from the tendency to stand with too much weight on one foot. One of the first steps toward correction is the determined practice of standing with weight equally distributed.

Another common posture fault is the projecting rear hipline with a protruding stomach as the corollary. One look at yourself in this stance and you'll do something about it!

The concensus of this figure-molding staff seems to be that the women in larger cities have better figures for two reasons. They are acutely style conscious and they have easy access to exercise places. Nominations for cities leading in the number of women with lovely figures are New York and San Francisco. What's happened to Hollywood?

It is not so easy, I am assured, to make generalizations about the older women's proportions, but it's no exaggeration to say that the average waistline is from 3 to 4 inches larger than it should be, and the average hipline about 6 inches too large.

Setting Important To Feminine Beauty, On Stage and Off

Hollywood, Calif.—In the language of the theater or screen, the word "setting" is as common as "makeup" or "props," and every lovely lady of either medium is aware of its importance. Yet in the workaday world outside the theater women never give a thought to dramatizing their own coloring with the proper setting, according to Perc Westmore, Warner Brothers makeup director.

"The background for a beautiful application of powder and rouge is foundation cream," said Westmore, "but the background for the completed makeup consists of all those things with which you surround yourself.

"In other words, if you're a light and fragile blonde, don't choose interior decorations that will wash out the delicate tones of your skin and make your hair a tonal part of draperies and chairs. Achieve vivid contrast in deep blues, in rose, wine or green and other similar lush shades. Experiment with lamps, because the lights over your head are as important to you in your setting as they are to an actress before the camera. If you're a brunette, have one white chair in your living room and see if friends don't comment on your beauty when you sit in it."

The psychology of color is comparatively new in fashion, makeup and interior decorating circles, yet it's of great importance, maintains Westmore, who pointed out that Designer Orry-Kelly always uses many shades of blue when he is creating a wardrobe for Bette Davis, because Bette finds blue a soothing color. For this same reason Miss Davis has used a great deal of blue in the color scheme of her home. Blue is also the correct background tone for her own particular brand of beauty.

Modern Matrons Wear Young Styles

New York. — What is high fashion for the Miss is also high fashion for the Mrs. this season.

New York creations for women wearing size 18 and up are just as smart, just as glamorous, slenderizing and flattering as are dresses for younger and smaller figures.

The drab, often badly fiting and matronly type of dress formore mature figures is practically a museum piece now and designers in this fashion capital have tabooed forever that "middle age slump" in dresses for women.

Fine detail, good lines and especially color are important factors in making women's clothes more desirable to the wearer these days and the size 18's and up no longer have the right to complain that they can find "nothing fit to wear to a dog fight."

The Gentler Sex — By Malvina Lindsay

Time and Tide

The photograph that libeled me,
A brief five years ago,
I now discover has its points—
Though once it brought me woe.

So I release it to the press,
That print I hated so,
It's really better than my last,
Made by the studio.

Today's Social Notes

(From The Truthtown Torch.)

The rush of specialities back to town to be here for the visit next week of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor has caused an acute housing situation in Truthtown. Upper crusters are said to be sleeping four in a room in the Hotel Swank and in some instances are occupying their own garages, until they can regain possession of their homes leased for the summer.

Mrs. Roswell Clymer and Mrs. Parvenu Popinjay have both been on the scene for more than a week and are assiduously entertaining at the hotels and clubs all the purported relatives of the Duchess. To date, Mrs. Clymer has entertained 67 and Mrs. Popinjay 72 distant cousins of the Duchess.

Back to the Grind

After a summer's rest, Truthtown's career women are back on the job.

Mrs. St. John Chinchilla, bimonthly columnist for the Huntstown Bugle, who has been recuperating at Clamport, Ritz Springs and Canadian points, will resume her column in October. "I hope to budget my time," said Mrs. Chinchilla, "so I will be able also to do some war relief work."

Mrs. Cuthbert Daubler will reopen her antique shoppe next month. She expects to continue to sell automobiles, as well as real estate and marmalade as sidelines. "I may also add a line of herb sachets," she announced yesterday. Mrs. Daubler spent most of the summer at the Lucius Gilderlyly's Monte Carlo ranch in the Northwest "getting in condition" for a strenuous fall and winter.

Mrs. Artemus Whiffle, back home from a stay at a Honolulu villa, is full of pep and plans for restoring old houses. Mrs. Wiffle intends to expand her restoration activities to include old stables, barns, caves, corn bins, dog houses, tool houses, and all forms of outhouses.

Mrs. Beetle's Venture

An unusual dress shoppe will be opened this fall by Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager.

"I will have no 'simple' clothes in my shoppe, but will feature only dressy, fussy, and fancy gowns," Mrs. Beetle announced yesterday. "I am sick of reading about simple clothes, and what is more I think a lot of women are sick of wearing them. I think it is high time that people who like to be dressy had a chance. Many Truthtown dowagers tell me they never go anywhere any more because they can't find lace dresses, ostrich boas, and bird cage hats.

"My shop will also be unusual in that I shall advertise no 'figure flattering' clothes in connection with it."

The Bag Set

"I noticed Janet was still carrying her summer bag."

"Yes! And with that wool dress!"

"I think she made a very serious mistake in going to Mrs. Luker's that way."

"Yes, especially when you're judged so much by your bag."

"Well personally I think it's very tacky not to be carrying a broadcloth or suede bag by late August."

"I always start looking for mine right after the Fourth of July."

"What did you think of Elsie's bag?"

"That imitation alligator!"

"Yes."

"I bet it didn't cost a cent over $2.98."

"There really ought to be a law about making those imitation leather bags."

"I know! It's simply unfair to people who buy the $10 and $15 bags."

"Say Harriet has a good-looking suede bag."

"It's last year's."

"No!"

"Yes! Didn't you notice? It hasn't this year's silhouette. Not a bit of dressmaker detail. I can always spot a last year's bag a mile away."

"Well Grace Juniper's been carrying the same bag the last five years."

"I know. I suppose she just figures she'd have to call a moving van if she tried to change into a new one.

"I can't see why Marjorie Whiffle carries such an enormous bag when she's so short."

"She has to—on account of Ted."

"What do you mean?"

"It's the only place she can have any privacy with her stock coupons."

"Say Marie Stepp has the most stunning bag you ever saw. Pure reptile—and all fitted with matching compact, cigarette case, lipstick, perfume flacon, spare stocking container, eye makeup, electric hair curler, cocktail canteen, comb and brush, vitamin bottle——"

"Listen! WHO is that soft of oldish man we saw her with yesterday at the Monte Carlo Lounge?"

Lady Mountbatten Is Returning Here

Wife of Illustrious Commander Will Pass Three Days in Capital

By Hope Ridings Miller

Returning to Washington tomorrow for a three-day visit will be Lady Mountbatten, who will make her headquarters at the British Embassy. A number of informal parties will be given in her honor, among them a small dinner at which the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard Casey will entertain on Monday evening.

Hope Ridings Miller

Lady Mountbatten was here a few weeks ago with her husband, Capt. Lord Louis Mountbatten, who came to this country last month to take command of the British aircraft carrier Illustrious. The two have been spending some time at Newport as guests of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who is serving as hostess to their two daughters "for the duration." From Washington, Lady Mountbatten plans to start on her speaking tour through the United States as an official representative of the British Red Cross. She is president of the London division of St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and she is a certified nurse's aide, a motor corps driver and a gas rescue worker. Lord Mountbatten, as you probably know, is a cousin of King George.

Exceptionally attractive, Lady Mountbatten creates a stir wherever she goes. She and her husband have visited in this country several times and have an extensive circle of American friends. At the time of her marriage, Lady Mountbatten was considered one of Britain's greatest heiresses. She is a daughter of Lord Mount Temple and was a godchild of the late King Edward VII.

A few winters ago Lady Mountbatten spent several weeks in New York, later going on down to Mexico. Arriving in the Capital, she soon had officials of the city in a dither. It seems she had no less than 52 trunks in tow, and there was no place to put them, even in the city's grandest hotel. I understand the lady's "traveling light" this time.

Princess Martha at Hyde Park

Purely personal: I can't vouch for the fact that Senator Francis Maloney said it, because I didn't hear him—but the rumor is going the usal rounds that he's responsible for one of the best quips of the season, to-wit: "Wendell Willkie is the only man I ever saw who let defeat go to his head." . . . A note from the master of the household of H. M., the King of Norway, announces that "from September 19, 1941, the address of H. R. H. the Crown Princess of Norway will be Hyde Park, N. Y., and from September 26, Pooks Hill, Bethesda, Md." . . . In other words, Princess Martha, who has been spending the summer in Massachusetts, will be a guest at Hyde Park until September 28, when she will return to her home in Washington.

Representative and Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth, who have leased a different home in Washington ever since he has been in Congress, have finally purchased one of their own. It's the red brick house at 3257 N Street, owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. Howland Chase, who lived there until last summer.

Wigglesworths Buy Georgetown Home

Now in the throes of having some of the rooms done over, Mrs. Wigglesworth wonders when it will all be finished as she wants it. Incidentally, the house is in the row where Representative and Mrs. James Wadsworth, Mrs. McCook Knox and Mr. and Mrs. E. Cortlandt Parker also have homes.

After living in the same Washington house for 20 years, Mrs. Morris Sheppard decided sometime ago to lease it for this winter and move to the Wardman Park Hotel. The first couple who looked at the place—it's at 1814 Nineteenth Street—decided to take it. So, come October 1, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley will be moving in. Mrs. Sheppard recently returned from Canada, where she and Mrs. Ollie James spent most of the summer at the famous Bigwin Inn, about 150 miles north of Toronto. Sometime soon Mrs. Sheppard plans to be off to Texarkana, Tex., for a visit with relatives, but she'll be back in town before long.

Mrs. Borah Leaving Soon

Life these days for Mrs. William E. Borah, "Little Borah" to her many friends here, is just one party after another. She'll be off the latter part of next week for Idaho, and will go from there to Oregon and California to spend the winter. Meanwhile, her social calendar is crammed with parties. Just about everybody she knows seems to be trying to give her a farewell fete.

Speaking of parties reminds me—Miss Carolyn Nash will entertain at a dinner tomorrow evening in honor of Mme. Wessel, wife of the Swedish Military Attache, who recently returned from a visit in Stockholm . . . Miss Dolly Corbin has invited a few friends in for cocktails this afternoon . . . Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner left her California home by automobile yesterday, en route back to Washington to spend the winter . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Snowden Hill, who are still honeymooning at Lake Arrowhead, will stay there through most of next month. They will be in Washington October 29.

No Kitchen Worries For Her

Underwood & Underwood

Miss Janet Hartz (left), whose marriage to Walter Galliger will take place next week, is welcomed by her hostess, Miss Gloria Goode, who entertained for her yesterday at a kitchen shower and luncheon

One of the numerous prenuptial fetes honoring Miss Janet Hartz, whose marriage to Walter Edward Galliger will take place next month, was held yesterday when Miss Gloria Good entertained in honor of the bride-elect. The party, a luncheon-shower, was held at Wardman Park Hotel.

A hand-painted kitchen wastebasket filled with gifts and topped by a gaily decorated rolling pin formed the centerpiece of the table for the culinary table. Miniature rolling pins served as place cards and the honor guest found "Susie," a rag doll made of kitchen implements at her place.

Among the guests were Mrs. B. L. Hartz, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. Harry Duncan, who will serve as matron of honor for her sister; the bridesmaids, Miss Betty Ann Swagert, Miss Ann Swanson and Miss Patsy Kelsey, and Mrs. Mackenzie Davison, Mrs. Warren Browning, Mrs. Charles Beard, Mrs. L. J. Goode, the mother of the hostess, Miss Patsy Kyle, and Miss Mary J. Moran.

Miss Howard Gives Party

Although one of the guests of honor, Mrs. Albert Cox, could not be present because of illness, the luncheon Miss Meredith Howard had planned for yesterday for Mrs. Cox and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Francis Cox, of Shanghai, China, went off on schedule.

The party took place at Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street, where Miss Howard makes her home. Guests included Miss Virginia Howard, twin sister of the hostess, who recently arrived here from her home in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Others there were Mrs. George Allen, Mrs. John Brookes, Mrs. Harry Butcher, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Moran Drury, Mrs. Charles Hurd, Mrs. John MacComas, Mrs. Earl M. Mackintosh, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, Baroness Stackelberg, Mrs. Edmund Starling, Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mrs. Martin Voegel and Mrs. William Yeager.

Son, His Family To Be Guests Of Mrs. Ross

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, will have as her guests this week-end her son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Bradford Ross, and their small son, Bradford, jr., Lieut. Ross has been stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington, and after a brief visit here, he will go on to Fort Riley, Kansas, to attend the officers' school. His wife is the former Miss Dorothy Hardy, of Newport News, Va.

Mrs. Ross was hostess at a dinner Tuesday evening in her apartment at the Dresden. Guests of honor were Judge and Mrs. T. Blake Kennedy, of Cheyenne, Wyo., who are spending several days in Washington. Others in the company were Gen. and Mrs. John M. Jenkins, Justice Justin Miller, Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, Mrs. George Thorpe, Oscar Ewing and Miss Dorothy Tomlinson.

Miss Bielaski Entertains Group At Luncheon

Miss Ruth Bielaski, niece of Mrs. Ruth Shipley, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Westchester. It was in the nature of a farewell party, for Miss Bielaski will leave on Sunday to enroll at Smith College.

Guests included Miss Margheritta Stirling, Miss Margaret Hill, Miss Barbara Vickery, Miss Delphine Colquitt, Miss Phoebe Lewis, Miss Ann Heard, Miss Laura Mae Norris, Miss Claire Snow, Miss Nancy Mayo, Miss Catherine Hambley, Miss Frances Lee, Miss Mary McLaughlin, Miss Pat Baker, Miss Jane Badger, Miss Barbara Putski and Miss Betty Bliss.

Mrs. Schieffer Due Back From France

Mrs. Hanns Schieffer, the former Miss Jean Miles, of Washington, who has been living in France for the last five years, is expected to arrive in New York on September 22 on the Excalibur. Accompanying her will be her husband and their daughter, Johanna.

The three are expected to attend the tea which Mrs. Schieffer's mother, Mrs. Walter Miles, will give on Friday afternoon, September 26, at her home, 3907 Jocelyn Street.

Miss Weiner to Be Wed To Emanuel H. Pearl

Mrs. Hyman Wiener announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Charlotte A. Wiener, to Mr. Emanuel H. Pearl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Pearl, of Sweetwater, Tex.

Mr. Pearl is a graduate of the schools of engineering of the University of Texas and of Harvard University and is now employed as an engineer with the Government.

Rands Give Dinner For Brazilian Diplomat

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Delafield Rands entertained at a dinner party last night in honor of Rinaldo Carvalho e Silva, of the Brazilian Consulate in New York who is visiting in Washington for several days.

Mr. Silva is the son of Ambassador Silva, of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, who is now envoy to Bolivia.

Cecelia Vaught Is Betrothed To Lieut. Stabler

Mr. and Mrs. William Jordan Vaught, of Nine Pine Way, College Heights, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Cecelia Jeannette Vaught, to Lieut. Sydney Snowden Stabler, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Snowden Stabler, of University Park, Md.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Justice James B. Cullison of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma. She studied at the University of Maryland and is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity.

Lieut. Stabler is a direct descendant of the builder of Montpelier, one of the most famous of the Snowden Mansions. He was graduated from the University of Maryland, class of 1939 and is a member of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity. He is now stationed at Camp Claiborne, La.

The wedding will take place at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church the latter part of October.

Party Is Given For Ann Myers

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Myers gave a small dinner last night in honor of their daughter, Miss Ann Myers.

The guests included the Misses Jo Ann Allen, Laurel Bolgiano, Marjorie Branscombe, DeLora Fowler, Enid Heatley, Shirley Jackson, Margaret Kennard, Irene Lang and Beverly Shah.

John A. Portner To Wed Sept. 27

Mr and Mrs. Eger Donald Massey, of Raleigh, N. C., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Erveane, to John Alexander Portner on Saturday, September 27, at 11 o'clock.

The wedding will take place at Sacred Heart Cathedral. Later, there will be a reception at Colonial Pines.

Young America loves these jaunty suede berets atop their flowing manes, tilted over one eye. Hats that are the merest gesture, but a decorative one. Hats that sit gently, but surely, on the head . . . held on by a network of back-straps. $7.50.

Capital Society Helps Chilean Embassy Mark National Holiday

South American Country's Independence Is Observed at Cocktail Party

By Patricia Grady

Really swinging into top social form before the thermometer has fallen to its usual autumn level, Capital society donned its best fall bib and tucker and dropped in at the Chilean Embassy during the cocktail hours yesterday afternoon to help the Ambassador and Senora de Michels celebrate their nation's 131st Independence Day.

The Ambassador and his wife received in the small drawing room with their daughter, Christina. Senora de Michels topped her floor-length black skirt with a white lace blouse and her pretty brown-eyed daughter wore a dress she had made herself, a gay orange and blue plaid skirt with a trickily cut white metallic blouse. Both wore orchid corsages. From the receiving line, guests squeezed through the jammed hall into the drawing room and dining room, where dozens of red roses centered the table surrounded by baked hams and turkeys, large bowls of raspberry sherbet and multitudes of sandwiches and cakes. More than a sprinkling of white uniforms, worn by the officers of the Chilean army, navy and air mission, enlivened the color scheme of somber blacks and browns.

The Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, was the first to arrive and the first to leave. The Vice President and Mrs. Wallace showed that they were practicing as well as preaching the Good Neighbor policy by conversing in Spanish as they made the rounds. Mrs. Wallace looking her usual smart self in a broad-brimmed green sailor and a matching dress set off with a cluster of butterfly orchids. The Ambassador from Brazil was accompanied by Senhora Martins, whose fetching red-flowered chapeau was in the fiesta tradition. Senora de Blanco, with her husband, the newly appointed Ambassador from Uruguay, was lamenting the Washington housing shortage. For three weeks she has looked high and low for a winter menage for her family of two children without success. Mrs. Fred Britten brought with her a house guest from Philadelphia, Mrs. Frederick Gould, and Mrs. Claude Pepper was accompanied by Mrs. W. T. Edwards, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is in town for several days with her husband at the Carlton. Mrs. Cordell Hull showed off her chic new slimness—she has lost 20 pounds recenty—in a black velvet-trimmed dress, worn with a velvet hat tilted over one eye.

The Latin-American Diplomatic Corps was out in full force for the party. The Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera stopped to speak to Mrs. Thomas Burke, and the new Minister from the Dominican Republic, the son of the President of that nation, made one of his first social appearances with his wife, Senora de Troncoso. Others from the group were the Ambassador from Argentina and Senora de Espil, the Ambassador from Venezuela, Dr. Diogenes Escalante; the Minister from Nicaragua and Senora de DeBayle, the Minister from Panama and Senora de Brin, the Minister from Costa Rica and his daughter, Senorita Leda Fernandez, in a bright red velvet turban; the Minister of Bolivia and his Chilean wife, Senora de Guachalla; the Minister from El Salvador and Senora de Castro—she in a broad-brimmed brown hat which matched her dress—the Ambassador from Cuba and Senora de Concheso, and the Minister from Honduras and Senora de Caceres. The Ambassador from Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, brought with him the former President of Colombia who has been widely feted during his official visit here, and Senora de Lopez Contreras, whose large diamond earrings were the envy of every woman there.

SEEN IN ROVING: The new Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Robert Jackson . . . Mrs. Howard Vickery, with her captain-husband, wearing a leopard-trimmed beige suit with a turquoise and rust feather hat . . . Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union, who didn't need to be introduced to anybody . . . Mrs. Jesse Jones coming in by herself . . . The First Secretary of the Argentine Legation and Senora de Scilingo introducing the Argentine Minister in Panama and Senora Sudovico Loizaga to their friends . . . William Culbertson escorting his daughter, Jane . . . Count van der Straten-Ponthoz, Belgian Ambassador, Sir Ronald Campbell, British Charge d'Affairs, the Minister from Thailand, and the Greek Minister representing other than Latin-American countries . . . From the State Department a goodly crowd was there—the Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long, Mrs. Adolph Berle in a flowing lavender cape, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Livesay, Mrs. Lawrence Duggan, who said she expected her husband in later in the afternoon.

Vandegrifts Fete Group At Dinner

Brig. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, U. S. Marine Corps, and Mrs. Vandegrift entertained last evening at a dinner at the Army Navy) country club. Ranking guests were the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb and Mrs. Holcomb, and Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, whose home in Maryland is near the estate just purchased by the Holcombs.

Other guests included Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Denig, Col. and Mrs. A. H. Turnage, Col. and Mrs. Ray Robbins, Col. and Mrs. Thomas Watson, Col. and Mrs. De Witt Peck and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Peck; Col. and Mrs. Harry Schmidt and their daughter, Mrs. William Wendt, who is visiting her parents, while her husband, Lieut. Wendt, is away on duty; Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Donald Kendall, Capt. and Mrs. George Parker, Lieut. Frank Holcomb and the son of the host and hostess, Lieut. Archer Vandegrift from Quantico, Va.

On Wednesday Mrs. Vandegrift was hostess at luncheon in honor of Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, widow of Col. Cunningham. Mrs. Cunningham, who makes her home in Florida, is at present the house guest of Mrs. J. Howard Fellows here. Others at the luncheon included Mrs. Holland Smith, Mrs. David Brewster and Mrs. Samuel Harrington, all of the Marine Barracks, at Quantico.

Robert Coe In London

Robert Coe, who spent several weeks here recently waiting transportation to England, has finally arrived in London, his friends hear. Mr. Coe will be secretary of the American Embassy. He made the trip by bomber along with the Russian Ambassador, Constantine Oumansky, and Edward Page, of the State Department, who was assigned to the Moscow mission.

Mr. Coe has been on duty at the State Department here for the past three years. His home on Foxhall Road has been leased by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cushing, of New York.

Two Are Named to Fill Voters' League Posts

By Lucia Giddens

Mrs. Oscar L. Chapman, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, and Mrs. Joseph H. Ball, wife of Senator Ball, of Minnesota, were appointed yesterday to important posts in the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Chapman will head the economic welfare department, which will have a study group concentrating on the problems of rising prices. A series of radio programs on consumer problems is being planned to follow a similar series which the department conducted last winter in cooperation with the League of Women Shoppers.

New trends in taxation also will be studied by Mrs. Chapman's department.

Mrs. Ball Was A Newspaperwoman

Mrs. Ball was appointed publicity chairman by Mrs. Eugene Callaghan, president of the league. She directed publicity for the county League of Women Voters in St. Paul, Minn., two years ago. She was on the staff of the Minneapolis Journal before her marriage, and afterward wrote advertising in St. Paul, where her husband was on the staff of the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch.

Yesterday she gave a brief telephone interview about her new appointment, to the accompaniment of childish voices chattering nearby. She had promised to take the children on a picnic in Rock Creek Park, and they tried to be patient while she answered questions about the League of Women Voters. The three Ball children are Jennifer, 12; Peter, 9, and Sara, who is 1½ years old.

Has Done Research On Consumer Problems

Mrs. Chapman, in the several years that she has been active in the league here, has worked with the finance committee and compiled research material for the consumer's problems radio series last winter.

Mrs. Chapman, a native of Louisiana, went to Judson College in Alabama for a year, then graduated at Baylor College in Texas and taught Latin and English in Brownsville, Tex.

At Baylor she was president of student government in her senior year. She studied economics, as early preparation for the post to which she has just been appointed.

These two appointments yesterday completed the roster of league chairmen, but numerous subcommittees are still to be appointed for the league's busy year ahead.

Women's Bar to Join In Defense Mass Meeting

The Women's Bar Association of the District has notified Mrs. Curtis Shears, president of the United Women's Organizations of the District, of its cooperation in the mass meeting to be addressed by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, October 14, she announced yesterday.

The meeting in the Departmental Auditorium is being arranged by representatives of women's organizations, to give impetus to a unified civilian defense effort in the District.

Sorority Starts Season

Delta Chi Chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma Sorority will open its rushing season with a party Thursday at the home of Mrs. Marian Wilmer. Miss Mildred Franklin was recently installed as president of the chapter to succeed Mrs. Celia Groves.

Y. W. Doubles Saturday Night Dances for Servicemen

The Saturday night dances for service men on the roof of the Y. W. C. A. have brought such crowds that a second simultaneous party in the same building will be given to accommodate the overflow, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Elizabeth Haney, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., said yesterday, in announcing this expansion, that the question of girl strangers in the city, "Where can I have a good time and meet some men?" has been answered by these dances. Men from various branches of the service are there "in full force," returning again and again. The girls who come feel the homelike atmosphere, shyness is soon forgotten, and they, too, become regular attendants, she said.

The hostess committee, composed of Y. W. C. A. girls, Miss Haney said, has been of invaluable help in overcoming the timidity of the girls who must for the first time in their lives go unescorted to a dance in manless Washington. These newcomers see others who are faced with their same problem of loneliness and solve it by joining the gayety of the occasion.

The members of this committee are: Miss Cleo Blakely, Miss Irene Nelson, Miss Lucille Tetzloff, Miss Beatrice Fischer, Miss Majorie Davis, Miss Julia Swannick, Miss Veva Clausen, Miss Marie Toms, Miss Edna St. Clair, Miss Agnes Ainilian, Miss Dorothy Veon, Miss Gladys Bradbury, Miss Marie Zandonini, Miss Ann Schiel, Miss Helene Piliwicz, Miss Gladys Ehrman, Miss Sylvia Sabbath, Miss Ruth Ulbrich.

Miss Haney explained that there have been nine dances this summer and that after the second the problem of an overflow crowd became apparent. This, she said, has been solved the last two nights with an informal open house in Barker Hall with a juke box for music and refreshments.

The program is sponsored by the U. S. O. Committee of the Y. W. C. A. whose chairman is Mrs. Wilson Compton. The members of the committee are: Mrs. David Craig, Mrs. Eldred Dickinson, Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, Mrs. Donald Clement and Mrs. Clayton Haskell. Miss Mabel Cook is the director of U. S. O. activities.

These dances have been in charge of Mrs. Dunn who acted as general chairman and manager. Miss Flora Mitchell has been the treasurer.

The chaperones have been provided by the Panhellenic Association under the direction of Mrs. Preston B. Cavanagh, the retiring president. Mrs. Gladys Moon Jones, incoming president of Panhellenic, came to the first dance with Mrs. Kavanagh. The following have represented their organizations at the dances: Mrs. A. Floyd Rothballer, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Mrs. Richard Tatlow 3d, and Mrs. Charles Trammell, Delta Gamma; Mrs. Lewis Malkus, Chi Omega; Mrs. James A. Rolls, Gamma Phi Beta; a representative from Pi Beta Phi sent by Mrs. George C. Ober, jr.; Mrs. Ronald A. Cox, Delta Delta Delta; Mrs. Frank C. Jude, Alpha Xi Delta; Mrs. C. R. Cooper, Sigma Kappa; Miss Louisa Wilson, Alpha Omicron Pi; Mrs. Edgar Withrow and Mrs. Paul Loehler, Zeta Tau Alpha; Mrs. J. E. Sangstad, Alpha Gamma Delta; Miss Zoe MacFadden, Delta Zeta; Miss Louise Jaquette, Phi Mu; Mrs. John N. Ross, Kappa Delta; Mrs. Harry L. Lowe, jr., Theta Upsilon. Mrs. Henry C. Lipscomb and Mrs. James Heaney, Beta Sigma Omicron; Mrs. Morris M. Scheffer, Phi Omega Pi.

The Y. W. C. A. has provided a professional representative for each dance. These have been Miss Mary Bryant, Miss Mabel Charest, Miss Margaret Graves, Miss Irene Richards and Mrs. Virginia Sholar. Mrs. Ruth Brunner has now been employed as the U. S. O. recreation secretary and will have these dances as one of her duties.

Kappa Phi Epsilon to Hold Tea on Sunday

Kappa Phi Epsilon Law Sorority of Southeastern University will hold its annual reception and tea Sunday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel to welcome women students to the law school and to honor faculty members.

Dr. Arthur Anderson, of Chicago, new dean of the law school, will be among the honor guests.

At the party, from 4 to 6 p. m., Mrs. James A. Bell, wife of the president of Southeastern University, and Mrs. Simon A. Lasica, librarian of the University and faculty adviser to the sorority, will pour tea. Miss Vivian Carlson and Miss Bertha M. Holmes will alternate at the tea table.

The guests will be welcomed by the executive board of the sorority. Included in this receiving line will be Mrs. Gladys Elliott Whalley, dean; Miss Sue Arbuthnot, associate dean; Miss Gwendolyn Fowley, secretary; Miss Nina B. Lupton, treasurer; Mrs. John E. Francis, past dean; Mrs. Estelle Baldwin, past dean; Miss Lucille Brunner, program chairman; Miss Mary Emery, ways and means chairman; Miss Madeleine M. Bush, membership chairman; Mrs. Miriam Way, visiting committee chairman; Miss Mildred Chambers, sergeant-at-arms; and Mrs. Lena Carr Nead, parliamentarian.

Guests will include Dr. Bell, president of the university; the following members of the law school faculty and their wives: Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia; Representative Jennings Randolph, William R. Vallance, assistant legal adviser to the Department of State; Fred J. Eden, referee in Bankruptcy for the District; Jo V. Morgan of the Board of Tax Appeals for the District; Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Frailey; Judge Edward C. Johnson, John J. Wilson, former Assistant United States Attorney for the District; D. Roland Potter, of the board of Southeastern University; Dr. Alexander Paterson, William Olin Burtner, Dr. Ralph S. Scott, Simon Lasica, Henry Martyn Lewis, W. Cameron Burton, August H. Moran, Ross H. Snyder, Clarence LeRoy Parker, Dr. Joseph E. Keller, Albert E. Brault, Jacob Sandler, Trevor V. Roberts, Alton Denslow, Alden W. Hoage, Dr. James Simsarian, Morris Schwartz, Stanley Worth, and Charles L. Skarren, jr.

D. C. Woman To Lecture

Mrs. M. Boydston Satterfield of 5442 Thirtieth Street Northwest, will be speaker on the Founders' Day program October 4 at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, of which she is an alumna in the class of 1928.

Mrs. Satterfield will speak on Dr. Charles Duncan McIver, founder and first president of the college, whose biography she is writing.

The occasion will be the second time in the college's 49-year-history that an alumna has been chosen to give the Founders' Day address.

Mrs. Satterfield is now a "$1-a-year" research worker in the women's division of the Democratic National Committee here. She is one of several volunteer workers collecting material on the Nation's foreign policy, military and civilian defense and hemisphere solidarity, for the study programs which the women's division circulates to its units in various parts of the country.

During 1938-40 she was a member of the staff of the women's division, and in the 1940 Roosevelt campaign she was a stump speaker in New York.

Beta Sigma Omicron Alumnae Tea Tomorrow

The Washington Alumnae of Beta Sigma Omicron National Sorority will be entertained at tea tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Robert Campbell, 4545 Thirty-second Road North, Arlington.

Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, of the League of American Penwomen, will be a guest and will assist at the tea table.

Miss Beebe Downing will sing several numbers, acompanied by Miss Marjorie Hulings. Both Miss Downing and Miss Hulings are graduates of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., where they were members of Alpha Psi Chapter of the sorority.

Canadian Club To Give Garden Fete Tomorrow

The Canadian Club yesterday announced that a number of diplomats are expected to attend the garden party which the club has arranged for tomorrow afternoon at the British Embassy for the benefit of British War Relief.

The club is looking forward to welcoming the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Leighton McCarthy; Sir Ronald Campbell, who will represent the British Ambassador, Lord Halifax; the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard G. Casey; the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph Close; the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan, and the New Zealand representative, Frank Langstone.

Junior aides assisting the arrangements committee will include Mrs. Maurice P. Gurney's flower and cigarette girls—Miss Martha Brock, Mis Kathryn Brennan, Miss Edith Cavanaugh, Mrs. Stella George, Mrs. Peggy MacIntosh, Mrs. Mary Masterson, Miss Olga Furbershaw, Miss Clara Belle Townsend and Miss Betty Williams.

Mrs. John Lucker, chairman of the tea table, will be assisted by Mrs. Edwin Lawton, Miss Sheila Gardner, Miss Rhoda Brimms, Miss Barbara Clements, Miss Rhoda Simmonds, Miss Edwina Briggs, Miss Thelma Dwyer, Miss Theresa MacDonald, Miss Mona Lewis, Miss Helen Byers, Miss Dorothy King, Miss Miriam Longon, Miss Phyllis Angus, Miss Alison McBride, Miss Eunice Winegar, Miss Irene McGuire, Miss Kay Doyle, Miss Jennie Johnstone, Miss Lola Bourget, Miss Marion Thompson and Miss Margery Large.

Mrs. A. P. Lait, chairman of the ice cream booth, will be assisted by Mrs. Gerald Daley, Mrs. Richardson and Miss Joan Rooney, Miss Mary Robertson, Miss Dorothy Kirwin, Miss Janet Slattery, Miss Veronica Coyne, Miss Noella Seaborne, Miss Dana Kesteven and Miss Moira Wilson.

Tickets are on sale at the Hotel Mayflower, the Shoreham, the British relief headquarters, or they may be obtained Saturday at the embassy gates. In case of rain the fete will be held the following day.

Good Idea Fails to Work

New York, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—This burglar had an idea but suffered a mental lapse. He removed the door lock on a pharmacy, replaced it with one of his own and went in. A policeman tried the door and entered as the man was gathering up $1,000 worth of fountain pens. He had forgotten to snap the lock.

The Letter of the Law

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Eight years ago a young fellow named "Eddie" was brought before a city judge on a disorderly conduct charge and placed on probation for a year. The judge told him: "Report to No. 1 Station every day." Eddie did—every day all these years. Police today—tired of seeing him—broke the news—his probation was ended.

McNutt Cracks Down On Youth Competition

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security boss, has cracked down hard on the propaganda methods of National Youth Administration and Civilian Conservation Corps. Hereafter selection of youths for enrollment in either agency "will be limited to those eligible youths who without solicitation apply for such work." McNutt, in an interagency memo, prohibited the "solicitation of youth in person, by mail or otherwise, and the use of the radio, sound trucks, posters, newspaper and other releases." Enrollment quotas of both agencies are reported to be lagging and NYA and CCC have been competing with one another for young men to train.

Apparently the conflict between NYA and CCC was at such a point that NYA would accept a dishonorably discharged CCC enrollee. And on the other hand, CCC would accept a dishonorably discharged NYA student. McNutt put a stop to the practice by ordering that no person shall be enrolled in one agency who has been dishonorably discharged from the other.

McNutt's order is designed to save money for the Government by the training only of those youths who volunteer for training. If a proper number of youths do not volunteer, McNutt undoubtedly will shut up CCC camps and NYA projects. Both agencies are under fire from the economizers who contend their activities should be curtailed for the duration of the emergency. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, among others, has suggested the curtailment.

Another bottleneck at OPM is the shortage of elevator operators. About half the elevators are running and the excuse is that no additional operators are available . . . Dr. Walter D. Cocking who was fired as dean of the College of Education at the University of Georgia by Gov. Talmadge because he was a "furriner," (Cocking is an Iowan) has been appointed to work on post war plans in the Federal Security Agency.

Maxie, the pet alley cat at Civil Service's statistical division, had four kittens the other day. The kittens are being cared for by employes who are grateful to Maxie for clearing out the huge rats that formerly roamed around the division. The kittens have been named Joe, Dick, George and Jerry, the first names of the four local reporters who cover the commission.

The second lend-lease bill, sent to Congress yesterday by the President, carries $10,000,000 for salaries. Most of lend-lease's employes are in the War and Navy departments. Less than 100 employes are in lend-lease proper. The proposed bill also carries a rider which would prevent payment of salary to any person "who advocates, or who is a member of an organization that advocates, the overthrow of the United States by force or violence." Similar riders were carried on all 1941 appropriation acts, but this was the first time that the President and the Budget Bureau had recommended it to Congress.

National Federation of Federal Employes, the largest white collar employe union, has begun its drive toward a goal of 100,000 members and 1000 local unions. The drive will get underway here. Henry G. Nolda is campaign chairman and Irving A. Lehman is secretary. Four of NFFE's organizers have been called here to assist. They are Earl Hoage, Matilda Lindsay, Harry W. Johnson and Armand Offutt. The union also is attempting to get the salaries of Federal employes "adjusted upward" to take care of the rising living costs.

Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service will transfer 20 of its employes to Portland, Oreg., next week. Twenty-five more will go later. Of the 25 who are being transferred to Portland, 12 lived on the West Coast and are anxious to get back. Officials of the service are trying to figure out some way for the Government to pay transportation costs of the employe's dependents. BOLC paid dependents costs when it moved 300 of its employes to Baltimore.

Fund Asked For D. C. Fire Needs

Million More Sought By Commissioners To Protect Capital If Bombers Come

An additional allocation of nearly one million dollars to safeguard Washington against fires caused by enemy bombing planes was asked yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The allocation, totaling $1,446,172, was requested of the director of the budget from the President's emergency fund. Several weeks ago the Commissioners asked for $436,000, but it was pointed out yesterday that many items had not been included.

The purposes of the requested allocation are: Emergency water supply and equipment for the Fire Department, $382,350; fire alarm communications, $250,000; emergency fire-fighting equipment and apparatus, $220,000; additional personnel for the Fire Department, $207,000; training auxiliary personnel, $83,220; air-raid precaution equipment, $17,550; emergency radios for Fire Department, $13,625; water supply, protective service, $34,360; water-distribution system and equipment, $219,662, and administrative expenses, $32,280.

To Enroll 2000 More

"At the same time, the Commissioners directed Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter to start enrollment of an auxiliary fire-fighting corps of 2000 men. The Commissioners said:

"In order to be able to meet any emergency the chief engineer of the Fire Department will find it necessary to organize and train an auxiliary fire-fighting force of 2000 men. However, it must be borne in mind that it cannot be accomplished overnight; that it requires not less than 12 to 18 months before any man is able to safely perform the duties that may be assigned."

The Commissioners also asked that 105 firemen be added to the Fire Department. In justification for this added personnel, the Commissioners said that trained men must be supplemented by additional trained men as the forces of the Fire Department are not at present adequate to man the existing apparatus. These men also must inspect properties to prevent any attempts of sabotage.

Tank Wagons Asked

In the new estimate were included 15 tank wagons which can be placed on trucks to be placed throughout the city and 93 pumping units. The tank wagons are to be of 2500-gallon capacity and used in case of emergency. The pumping units will be of 700 and 500 gallons capacity and equipped with 300 feet of hose, sand bags and tools. In addition, the Commissioners asked for 300 portable hand tank pumps to extinguish small fires, and 90 one-hour oxygen-type breathing apparatus, 100 asbestos blankets and 100 asbestos suits, gloves and helmets.

Thirty thousand dollars was asked for temporary replacement of water mains in the event the city is bombed. Pipe of a type readily assembled would be used until normal underground lines could be rebuilt. Twenty guards were included in the estimate to safeguard the Washington Aqueduct. The exposed properties, the Commissioners said, include 9 miles of two parallel collecting conduits along Conduit Road, three major bridges and the Georgetown Dalecarlia and McMillan Reservoirs.

War Hazards Greater

In its earlier report, the Commissioners had asked for nine emergency air-raid horns to be installed at various fire engine stations and 18 cisterns, each with a capacity of 100,000 gallons of water to be installed at strategic points in and around the city.

In asking for the special equipment, the Commissioners told the director of the budget:

"The fire and explosion hazards in abnormal times are much greater than in peacetime and require a special method of fire fighting as well as presenting greater possibilities of widespread danger. A general fire conflagration would easily destroy the city and irreparably damage Government buildings and their contents. Saboteurs are likely to employ gas, fire, possibly accompanied by explosives, as a means of accomplishing their purpose to disrupt the normal function of industry. Therefore, the Fire Department must be equipped with special equipment to cope with any emergency that might arise."

Col. Estes Named As Commander Of Third Cavalry

The Army yesterday assigned Col. Howell M. Estes to command the Third Cavalry and the post at Fort Myer, Va. He will relieve Col. William Gordon, Fort Myer commander for the past year.

Col. Estes has been on duty in the War Department since last March, first in the Public Relations Branch and then the Office of the Chief of Cavalry. He served overseas with the Field Artillery during the World War, and from 1932 to 1936 was chief of the Central European division of military intelligence division of the General Staff.

Col. Gordon was assigned to the Third Corps area service command at Fort Myer. He is 62, above the age limit for a troop command under a recent War Department ruling.

'Spectacular,' Park Officials Call Waterway

Transformation of the old C. & O. Canal into a recreational waterway has given Washington something "more beautiful and more spectacular than we realized," Secretary Thomas S. Settle of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission said yesterday.

His statement followed an inspection tour of the remodeled canal by members of the Federal planning agency, with representatives of the Maryland-National Capital Parks and Planning Commission as their guests.

Led by Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the NCPPC, they traveled by horse-drawn barge down the canal from Great Falls to a point near Carderock, Md.

Members of the Maryland delegation included Irvin I. Main, chairman of the Maryland planning group; Dwight Galt and Richard Green, members; Lacey Shaw, Irving I. Kaplan, Robert M. Watkins, Thomas E. Hampton and A. W. Roby. The party was conducted by Donald Edward McHenry, parks naturalist.

At a morning session, the NCPPC reported that land acquisition for the Fort Reno Recreation Center is 78 per cent completed. The large play area adjoins Woodrow Wilson High School and Deal Junior High.

Norman C. Brown, purchasing officer, also announced a half-acre addition to the Payne School Playground at Fifteenth and C Streets Southeast.

The commission's two-day monthly meeting wil be continued today, with action to be taken on plans for several bridge and highway projects designed to relieve an expected traffic burden in connection with the new War Department building to be erected in nearby Arlington County.

Gas Shortage Real Threat, Ickes Asserts

The East Coast gasoline shortage, minimized by a Senate investigating committee, was described as a real threat yesterday by Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes.

Holding his first press conference in more than a month, he declared that sales restrictions will be continued, expressed gratification at the consistent decline in gasoline deliveries, and reiterated his support of a proposed 80 million dollar pipeline project.

"To take off the restrictions now and yell 'come and get it' would be stupid," Ickes told reporters.

Back only a few days from a month's vacation trip in the West, the Interior Secretary-Petroleum Coordinator withheld comment on the position of the Maloney Senate Committee that no real gasoline shortage exists.

"All I have to say about that," he declared, "is that all things are in the lap of time and time will tell the story."

Regarding the priorities board's recent refusal to release a half million tons of steel plates to build a giant pipeline which would supply New Jersey refineries, Ickes expressed doubt that he would appeal the decision to President Roosevelt.

"But if we don't get the pipeline, curtailment of consumption may go beyond 15 per cent," he said.

He asserted that compulsory rationing is difficult to administer and will be adopted "only as a last resort."

He praised as "intelligent, scrupulous and industrious," Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum coordinator, who testified in Ickes' stead at the hearings held a few weeks ago by the Maloney Senate Committee.

In a press release which he read to the assembled reporters, Ickes reported a 11.4 per cent drop in gasoline deliveries on the East Coast for the week ended September 12. The decline amounted to 13,001,430 gallons, compared with the week ended September 5.

Mason Says He Welcomes Advice

The businessmen of Washington have every right to attend the District budget hearings and will be welcomed at them, Commissioner Guy Mason told the Federation of Businessmen's Associations at a meeting in the Hay-Adams House last night.

"It's your government," he said. "You can make your demands and if they carry enough weight they will be listened to."

Condemning what he termed a "drift along" policy in the District Building, Mason said that there was a lack of coordination in the local governmental organizations which must be corrected. He cited as an example the tax office setup, which he said had now been centralized so that a citizen could transact all his tax business in one place and without undue delay.

After his talk, the session adopted a resolution to uphold the District's milk regulation standards and oppose the importation into the city of milk which is not rigidly inspected as that from the Washington milkshed. Adoption of the resolution, aimed at the Schulte Bill to allow the importation of milk from the West now pending before Congress, came after a lengthy debate and a speech by B. B. Derrick, secretary of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association.

Other action taken at the meeting included the admission of the Chevy Chase Business Association as a member organization, bringing the total of affiliates to 22.

Mrs. A. L. Cox Reported Better at Hospital

Mrs. Albert L. Cox, wife of Gen. Cox, commander of the Washington Provisional Brigade, was described as "better and getting along nicely" at Emergency Hospital last night by her physician, Dr. Fred A. J. Geier.

Mrs. Cox underwent an operation Wednesday night, after she had entered the hospital for treatment on Monday. She is expected to remain in the hospital for some time.

Detectives' Merit Setup Is Changed

Mansfield Decrees That Only the Man Making Arrest Will Be Noted in Book

Abolition of a system which "colored the records of arrest" in the Detective Bureau was ordered yesterday by Inspector Richard H. Mansfield, chief of detectives.

Prescribing a radical change in the procedure of booking prisoners, the move was described by officials as "another progressive step" in the reorganization of the Police Department's "weakest link."

Mansfield's order does away with an old-time system of rotating the names of detectives on the record of arrest book and calls for the name of only one officer on the record—the man who actually made the arrest.

Under the old system, it was explained, the Detective Bureau station clerk kept a list of the men assigned to each headquarter's squad and credit for arrests was meted out in turn.

Many times an investigator was given credit for an arrest while he was on vacation or while on day off, it was said.

Mansfield condemned the old system as "antiquated" and one not providing an accurate record of the work of each man.

In the future, the detective chief asserted, the man who makes the arrest will be the only one credited, whether he be a uniformed private in a precinct or a detective sergeant.

Mansfield stated also that under the new setup, if a suspect is booked by a squad member, the detective making the arrest would get credit and not the entire squad as previously.

It was impossible, Mansfield declared, to tell in the past who was doing the work "because a slacker was getting credit for the work of his squad whether he participated or not."

Speculation was high in the Police Department yesterday concerning the pending promotions of four captains.

The vacancies occurred when Capts. Richard H. Mansfield, Milton D. Smith and Harvey Callahan were promoted to the rank of inspector and by Capt. Floyd Truscott's acceptance of a commission in the Navy.

It is believed Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, will recommend for promotion those men at the top of the Civil Service promotion list.

These men include Lieuts. Clarence Lutz, Thirteenth Precinct; William J. Cunningham, Traffic Division; Robert Pearce, First Precinct, and Emil Desch and Walter Thomas of the Fourth Precinct, and the Detective Bureau, respectively. The latter two are tied on the rolls in fourth place.

Fireman Has Pigeon Mascot He Rescued

Fireman Willis Beall, of Truck Company No. 3, District Fire Department, has a new mascot—a pigeon.

An anonymous caller phoned the Fire Department to report that a young squab was stranded by its mother on a ledge of the Soviet Embassy on Sixteenth Street Northwest. A fire truck dashed from the station and clanked to a stop in front of the embassy. A ladder was run up alongside the building and Beall rescued the bird.

Apathy Hinted

Women's Aid In Defense Is Stressed

Arousing the enthusiasm of American women in the volunteer civilian defense program is one of the major problems confronting the Office of Civilian Defense, Miss Eloise Davison, appointed last month to head women's volunteer work for the agency, declared yesterday at her first press conference.

To arouse this interest, Miss Davison said that she was counting heavily on the work of thousands of local volunteer defense councils being set up throughout the country through State and municipal governments. Through these, and through publicity campaigns, the office is seeking to arouse interest in a wide range of volunteer jobs that include Red Cross work, air raid protection, nutrition work, public health service, and morale, educational and recreational work.

"If we can present the facts on defense needs and the jobs which women can do," she said, "I feel sure that they will respond."

During the interview, Miss Davison was asked how the program could be speeded up "without declaring war." She replied: "If Hitler would drop a bomb on this country that would do it quickest. But he's too smart to do that."

Later, her office phoned reporters who were present to ask that the remark be considered as a joke and not published.

To date, she reported, about 2800 of the local offices have been set up in towns, counties and districts to enroll volunteers, but she declared that this number was "only a scratch on the surface." How many more were needed she would not attempt to estimate, but said that the program would require "many more."

"The civilian defense program is both protective and constructive," she said. "It is designed to protect the country in time of emergency and also to build up such peacetime items as public health and education."

Rep. Mundt and Wife Recovering After Crash

Mail Rush Taxes Rail Facilities

Congress Is Asked For $500,000 to Expand Trackage At Union Station

Authorization for a $500,000 expansion of trackage facilities to handle a record volume of mail and other railroad traffic at Washington Terminal was asked of Congress yesterday.

Because of the defense boom, the volume of incoming Washington mail equals and sometimes exceeds the Christmas peak load, Bernard R. Tolson, terminal manager, told Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee.

Tolson urged Randolph, who introduced a bill authorizing the expansion, to hurry the legislation to enactment so that expansion of facilities could be completed in time for the Christmas rush, expected to exceed the all-time high of last year.

It is proposed, Tolson said, to build additional tracks, platforms and shelters immediately east of the terminal in an area bounded by Second and F Streets Northeast.

Passenger traffic at Union Station also is heavy, Tolson said, and the new facilities will enable passenger use of trackage now used for mail. The railroads and the Postoffice Department support the proposal, Tolson said.

3 Rob Gas Station Of $70 and Escape In Stolen Auto

Two gunmen held up John Gegyo, 22-year-old attendant, in a filling station at 1713 Florida Avenue Northwest at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and escaped in a stolen car with about $70.

One of the robbers thrust a pistol against Gegyo's neck and marched him downstairs while the other rifled the cash register. They escaped in an automobile driven by a third man.

Gegyo obtained the license number when the car was stopped by traffic at Eighteenth Street and Florida Avenue, but it had been reported stolen just a few minutes before.

Dr. Barnhart Quits Church Federation Job

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post's Church Editor

Dr. William R. Barnhart, yesterday resigned as executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, to resume his work as head of the religion department at Hood College, Frederick, Md.

Dr. Barnhart

His resignation was tendered at a board meeting at the Federation Building, 1751 N Street Northwest, where it was announced that Dr. Barnhart would be succeeded by Dr. Worth M. Tippy, formerly of New York and now of Washington.

Dr. Barnhart, whose resignation will take effect October 1, came to the Federation last February on leave of absence from Hood College, whose officials have asked his release to continue his duties there. He was there 11 years.

"Rosy" Future predicted

In his remarks, he predicted a fruitful future for the federation work here, and outlined a seven-point program he felt the Federation should carry out in meeting community needs.

He suggested a further development of the churches' ministry to the soldiers; furtherance of weekday religious education with employment of a religious education director; employment of an expert of religion and health; religious care for people in correctional institutions and preventive work against juvenile delinquency; employment of an expert on Christian living in the home; use of a comity or city-wide planning committee to plan for new churches and undertake rechurching in depleted areas, and use of a new form of evangelism in the city.

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, federation board president and pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, lauded Dr. Barnhart's work. He noted that Dr. Barnhart made a place for himself in local religious circles, was in great demand as a speaker, and was vitally interested in the peace movement.

Dr. Tippy Well Known

Dr. Tippy was from 1916 to 1936 executive secretary of the Department of Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches in New York, coming there from the pulpit of the Madison Avenue Methodist — now Christ Church of that city. He once held important church posts in Cleveland and Indianapolis.

Dr. Tippy

In 1937 Dr. Tippy came to Washington on the invitation of a committee of church and social agency representatives, resulting in the creation of the Department of Social Welfare of the Federation, of which the Rev. John L. Mixon became director. That department is Community Chest financed.

When the Rev. Mr. Mixon left last July to become director of the Social Welfare Department of the Los Angeles Church Federation, Dr. Tippy came here to carry on that work until a successor was found.

Dr. Tippy is a graduate of De Pauw University and was a post-graduate scholar at Cornell University. He has been a member of the staffs of the Preaching Mission in 1938, the University Christian Mission in 1939-40, and the National Christian Mission in 1940-41. Last February he conducted a social relations seminar at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spoke.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

PALL MALL TO HONOR GENERAL'S LADY. When Gen. and Mrs. F. S. Dickson return to Washington from Chicago and step into their favorite place, the Pall Mall Room, Bert Bernath and his orchestra will burst into a super-arrangement, with trimmings, of Mrs. Dickson's pet tune, "Number Ten, Lullaby Lane." They've been working on it ever since Mrs. Dickson left for Chicago a few weeks ago to undergo an operation. . . . We were pretty gratified, too, to hear that before Gen. Dickson joined his wife, he sent her every copy of Ringside Table with the appealing annotation, "Are you lonely?"

Sparty Donato, one of Washington's finest musicians has just joined Dick Koon's orchestra in the Mayflower Lounge. Besides playing his notable hot trumpet, he'll make arrangements, team up with Maestro Koons on double piano numbers.

KING COLE'S A-BUZZ. Singer Evie Knight of the King Cole Room is going to have a facial operation tomorrow. It is to remove three freckles and the last trace of her motor accident scar. . . . Radio soprano Jeanne Holmes will sub for Evie tomorrow night. . . . Guitarist Nick Adams, formerly at Mayfair, has taken the spot left vacant by Vicente de la Garza who postcards us from Camp Lee that he misses Washington in a big way.

FARMHOUSE MELODIES. O'Donnell's Farmhouse is inaugurating Saturday night dancing to the music of Ivan's six-piece orchestra. Sounds like a wonderful idea for these balmy autumn evenings. On all other nights, including Sundays, Ivan plans classics and semiclassics on the electric organ.

MEXICO'S "INDEPENDENCE DAY" was celebrated champagnefully at the Mexican Embassy with glorious Mexican songs by the Troika's Rosita Rios while Gypsy Markoff played the accordian. The Troika's midnight show was held for half an hour until the entire embassy party arrived. Rosita had been singing for them all evening but they insisted on her doing ten encores during the revue. . . . Troika's head lady, Helen Hamilton, is flying up to New York this weekend, expects to bring back some top flight talent.

PAUL KAIN,
whose star musical group will open in the Mayfair on Monday

The Shoreham's Barnee-Lowe orchestra will ride on the Fitch Bandwagon for a coast-to-coast broadcast on Sunday, September 28. This marks the first time a Washington orchestra has climbed aboard the Fitch Bandwagon.

REUNION, FAREWELL AND HELLO. You will be saying "Hello!" tomorrow in the Neptune Room to "Three Buds and Three Buddies" and Walter Liberace, piano virtuoso. The group is heralded as the most original and unusual unit ever to arrive in Neptune. Which is by way of being undiluted praise. . . . Neptune's "Reunion Night" turned out to be also a semi-farewell party for Don Baker and his Musicomics who will really say goodby to Washington this evening after a splendidly successful engagement. . . . Among the bright entertainers to appear at "Reunion Night" were that little hsow-stealer, Leslie Hare, jovial Bill Colman ("The Man Who Came to Dinner"), and Don Buckley, star singing accordianist.

UNOFFICIAL "THEATRICAL NIGHT" was celebrated the other night in the Carlton's Cosmos Room. We saw Manager Eddie Plohn, of the National Theater; Alan Dinehart, star of "Separate Rooms;" Manager Hardie Meakin, of Keith's, with Mrs. Meakin; Manager Angie Ratto, of the Palace, and cute Eileen Ritter, of the Earle.

SUPERSIZZLERS. That sentimental oldie, "My Buddy," as swung insanely by El Patio's Four Men of Rhythm. They surely gave 'Buddy" a face lift. . . . "Roses are Red, Violets are Blue," a ballad of unadulterated wackiness, being done by Don Carper and his Four in Cafe Caprice. Your face may be red, too, before it's over. . . . Ralph Cannon and Parley Eaton, of the Rainbow Room, clowning around with "I Don't Wanna Set the World on Fire" which Maestro Milton Davis says, is the fastest comer-upper in the history of pop songs. . . . "Phil, the Philuter's Ball" now being tossed around the Hi Hat by Jimmy Summerville and his Four Ms. Words fail us when we try to describe this one. . . . "Flamingo," newest triumph of the Anchor Room's Eileen George. It's beautiful but mighty sizzly, too. . . . Any bass or guitar rhythms turned out by Hugh Bartemann of Jack Shaffer's band at the Casino Royal. He's a born swingster. . . . Eileen O'Neill's plenty amusing version of "Give Me Some Skin, My Friend," at Burt's Trans-Lux.

Jack Maggio and his 14-piece band will bow into the Nightingale on Tuesday night. You've probably heard this snappy unit at Colonial Beach. This gives you tonight and tomorrow to say goodby to Rodd Raffell and his lads who are going on tour under the Glenn Miller banner.

PANORAMA AT "823." Proprietor Conrad Siebold, of restaurant "823" is beginning to look chipper again after that two-week illness. "I was going on a diet, anyway," he says complacently, "and now I don't have to." Pianist Oscar Heintze and his wife aren't bothering about layette shopping for the little newcomer they expect. A shower resulted in enough trappings for triplets. . . . "823" continues in the enviable position of being pack-jammed three times a day—for luncheon, dinner and the late supper session.

CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK. Lotus' Bill Strickland has just started his son, Bill (Ace) Strickland back to Riverside Academy at Gainesville, Ga., which the senior Strickland also attended. Young Bill is already a musician, too. He plays both trumpet and piano.

COLORFUL RIVIERA. "Neely" Vanderbilt was dancing a slippery rhumba in the Riviera the other eve. We understand he'd just finished telling the FBI about a mess of Nazi plots. . . . Jean Cavanaugh ("Miss Washington") was there, too, and lovely in pearl gray with orchids. . . . And the handsome oldster who looked like an ambassador and danced so blithely was really Leo, astrologer of the Mayfair.

The new addition to the Hunters' Lodge, now under rush construction, will almost double the spot's capacity. The crowds have been quick to find their way to the Lodge, newest suburban nitery.

PLYMOUTH PICTURE. Laczi, of the Gypsies, is now doubling on bass and cymbalon. . . . Luncheon business at the Plymouth is skyrocketing as a result of the recently introduced mid-day menu novelties. . . . Professional musicians and entertainers crowd the Plymouth on Sunday nights.

DANCE FOR IOWA. "Out in Io-way!" will be the theme tune of tomorrow's dance of the Washington All States Club in the ballroom of the Washington Hotel. For the party is in honor of Iowa . . . The dance is the next to last of the club's series of Saturday evening parties. Later in the fall there'll be All-States dances three times a week, also tea dances.

Critics' Forum Selects Books For Fall Reviews

A. J. Cronin's popular novel, "The Keys of the Kingdom," and William L. Shirer's "Berlin Diary," have been selected as the first books for review during the fall season of the Washington Critics' Forum—Catholic thought on best sellers—the Rev. John K. Cartwright, director of the forum, announced yesterday.

The Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of Catholic University, will present the first review at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, October 2, in the Mayflower Hotel. Shirer's work will be reviewed by Dr. Cartwright at the November meeting, while the subject of the December review has not been selected.

The Critics' Forum which originated in Washington last year, has been organized in many large cities throughout the country.

Schools to Enroll Jews Earlier Due To Holidays

Jewish junior and senior high school students, who will miss the opening of the District's schools on Monday because of the Jewish New Year holidays, will be able to register today and tomorrow instead, the Board of Education announced yesterday.

The principals of the various schools will be in their buildings to register them between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Friday and between 9 a. m. and 12 noon on Saturday.

Elementary school children will have to report on Wednesday, but they as well as the upper-graders will be marked as excused if they are absent on Monday and Tuesday.

The regular registration time for the schools is 9 a. m. on Monday, with new pupils reporting to the school buildings between 4 and 6 p. m. on Friday, and 8 and 10 a. m. on Saturday.

Veteran Pastor to Leave

Front Royal, Va., Sept. 18.—The Rev. H. Ward Shannon, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here since 1921, has announced his resignation, effective October 1. He has accepted the Arvonia field of the Presbyterian Church in Buckingham and Fluvanna Counties, Va., in West Hanover Presbytery.

Correspondent to Speak

I. F. Stone, correspondent for the newspaper PM, will speak on "Business As Usual," the title of his new book, at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Cooperative Bookshop, 916 Seventeenth Street Northwest.

Dodgers Go Berserk, Toss Away 6-5 Game After Amazing Rally; Cards Also Lose, 4-1

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Want to be amazed? Okay, then, listen to the story the figures can tell about the Nats since June 1. Since the first 40 games of the season, roughly, they've been playing better ball than the Indians, Tigers and Athletics. They have been playing on a par, too, with the third-place White Sox. Only two clubs in the league, the Yankees and Red Sox, have clearly outstripped the Nats since May ended.

POVICH

The strange part about it is that this was supposed to be the worst Washington club in years. But for the past three months and a half they have been a better ball club than such as Cleveland and Detroit. They're higher in the percentages than were the Washington clubs of 1939 and 1940, yet no great disgust was inspired by those teams. It seems that the Nats have been mistakenly maligned. They are a bit of all right.

Since losing two-thirds of their first 42 games, the Nats have been playing close to .500 ball. The future seems to hold more for the Nats, for example, than for the Tigers, White Sox and Indians. The rebuilding jobs to be done on those clubs bulk as a tougher task than the one that confronts Bucky Harris next season. None of them has come up with the sort of rookie talent that has found its way onto the Washington team.

Vernon Has Been Sensation

No one ball club in the league can point to two such rookie successes as First Baseman Mickey Vernon and Catcher Jake Early this season. Vernon is the envy of every manager who has been experimenting with rookie first basemen, notably Joe McCarthy. The lad from Marcus Hook, Pa., has been giving the Nats first base protection which may be the best in the league. Certainly the only other first basemen to be classed with him this year are George McQuinn, of the Browns and Dick Siebert, of the Athletics.

Vernon brought to the Nats the best throwing arm of any first baseman in the league, incidentally. He's poison to base runners when firing the ball. He's the only first baseman in the league except Siebert who is hitting .300. Only Jimmy Foxx has batted in more runs among the first basemen than Vernon, and that margin is offset by Vernon's superior fielding.

The fact is that Vernon, hitting 55 points under Cecil Travis, has batted in only three fewer runs. Of course he has, in Travis, a .358 hitter who is usually on base ahead of himself in the batting order. But Washington fans, in any vote, would probably prefer Vernon up there when there are runs to be driven home. He is one of the finest items that has happened to the Washington club in years.

Early Vastly Improved

Around the league, Jake Early has been taking on stature as one of the finer workmen among the catchers. Washington fans, remembering all too painfully Jake's excrutiating battles with pop fouls, have been slow to recognize the improvement in the strong-arm boy, but it has not escaped the managers in the league. Birdie Tebbetts, of the Tigers, himself one of the better catchers, rcently called Early the most improved backstop in the league.

Jake has another asset, and we don't mean his bat which has been exceedingly helpful or his throwing arm which has few superiors. Incidentally, Jake could always get that ball down to second base with the best catchers in the league, even when he came up as a raw kid from Charlotte. We mean he lends dash to the Nats. Off the field, he's a strong, silent man but at 3:15 he undergoes a transforma- that speaks out loud. He's the hardest worker on the club.

The Nats, in fact, have been downright lucky in their rookie catchers. Al Evans may never astound the league with his hitting and he is something less than a Ruel on pop fouls, but like Early he can fire that ball around the bases and do a workmanlike job behind the plate. The other day when he caught Dutch Leonard's knuckle ball for the first time in his life he caught a winning game that was properly understood by Leonard and every catcher who has caught the diabolical knuckle pitch.

Nats' Rookies Stand Out

On display during the past week in Washington were the rookies of the Detroit and Cleveland Clubs, which have a lot of dough to spend in contrast to the Nats. They came up with nothing to compare to the homespun kids the Nats have been bringing in for tryouts this fall. Their expensive purchases somehow looked very ordinary in comparison with Roberto Ortiz, Hillis Layne, Early Wynn and Charley Letchas who were home-grown on the Nats' skimpy farms.

Ortiz gives every evidence of providing the long-sought punch in the Nats' outfield. The big Cuban doesn't scare easily, and he slugs that ball. To Bucky Harris' great elation, he has been hitting curve balls, among others. He's been tearing the gloves of the infielders with his rocket shots through the infield. If they can tame his arm a bit and teach him to lay off fighting ground balls the Nats may have a swell outfielder.

Wynn has come back to the Nats a better pitcher than the youth who failed in training camp two years ago. He has learned about control. His fast ball was always good enough. This Lyne is sure-fire to play somewhere in the Nats' 1942 infield. He can whomp that ball. Letchas is the best rookie second baseman the Nats have brought up since 1926 when Jackie Hayes was understudying Bucky Harris. He won't hit like Layne, but he'll play a better second base. And Harris has Jack Sanford, a .330 hitter in the Southern Association, to fool around with, maybe as an outfielder. It's a pretty good rookie crop.

Pirates Win After Casey Balks in Run

Durocher Is Chased After 8th-Inning Argument; Casey Hurls 3 Wild Pitches

By Duke Moran
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh, Sept. 18.—The belligerence of the Brooklyn Dodgers in their battle for the National League pennant cost them a damaging 6-to-5 defeat today by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Durocher clan came up with another of its miraculous late-inning rallies—five priceless runs in the eighth—and then nullified this ferocious effort with an outbreak of frayed tempers, which caused Hugh Casey to throw away the game and Manager Leo (the Lip) Durocher to be chased off the field by Umpire George Magerkurth.

The whole game was the kind of a zany spectacle in which only the Dodgers ever get involved, but the eighth inning was wild beyond anyone's wildest dream.

Brooklyn bashed all five of their runs across after two were out and then Luke (Hot Potato) Hamlin came in to pitch to the Pirates in the last of the eighth. The score was 5 to 4.

DiMaggio Singles

Vince DiMaggio led off with a single and raced to second as Ducky Medwick fumbled the ball. Immediately Hugh Casey replaced Hamlin and got the next two batters out. DiMaggio went to third on a fly by Debs Garms and was held there while Pinch Hitter Maurice Van Robays grounded out.

Then trouble came in a big, nasty-tasting dose. With two strikes on Catcher Al Lopez, Casey committed a balk and Umpire Magerkurth waved DiMaggio home with the tying run.

The Dodgers, their nerves worn thin while trying to stave off the St. Louis Cardinals on a long road trip, were infuriated and Casey was the most furious of all—though Durocher and all his Dodgers joined in a mass protest, claiming Lopez had stepped out of the batter's box.

When order was temporarily restored, Casey hurled three consecutive wild pitches, far over the heads of Lopez, his own catcher, Mickey Owen, and the umpire.

Durocher Charges Out

Magerkurth, a towering, broad-shouldered man, whipped off his mask, strode out to the pitcher's mound and told Casey (he said later) that the pitcher could not "make a travesty of this ball game."

Durocher came charging right at Magerkurth's heels, protesting volubly. The fiery little manager planted himself between big, chubby Casey and the bigger umpire and for a few minutes he stood toe to toe with Magerkurth, who disclosed that the manager argued he was interfering with his pitchers and used "bitter language."

Magerkurth ordered Durocher out of the game and Umpire Tom Dunn escorted him off the field while the crowd of 9021 fans, who had cheered the Dodgers earlier, gave vent to jeers.

Lopez, who had been the first to holler "balk" at Magerkurth, walked on the first pitch after play resumed and Alf Anderson, the weak-hitting shortstop substitute for Arky Vaughan, then connected for a triple to the extreme right-field corner to bring home the winning run.

It was a roaring finish for a game

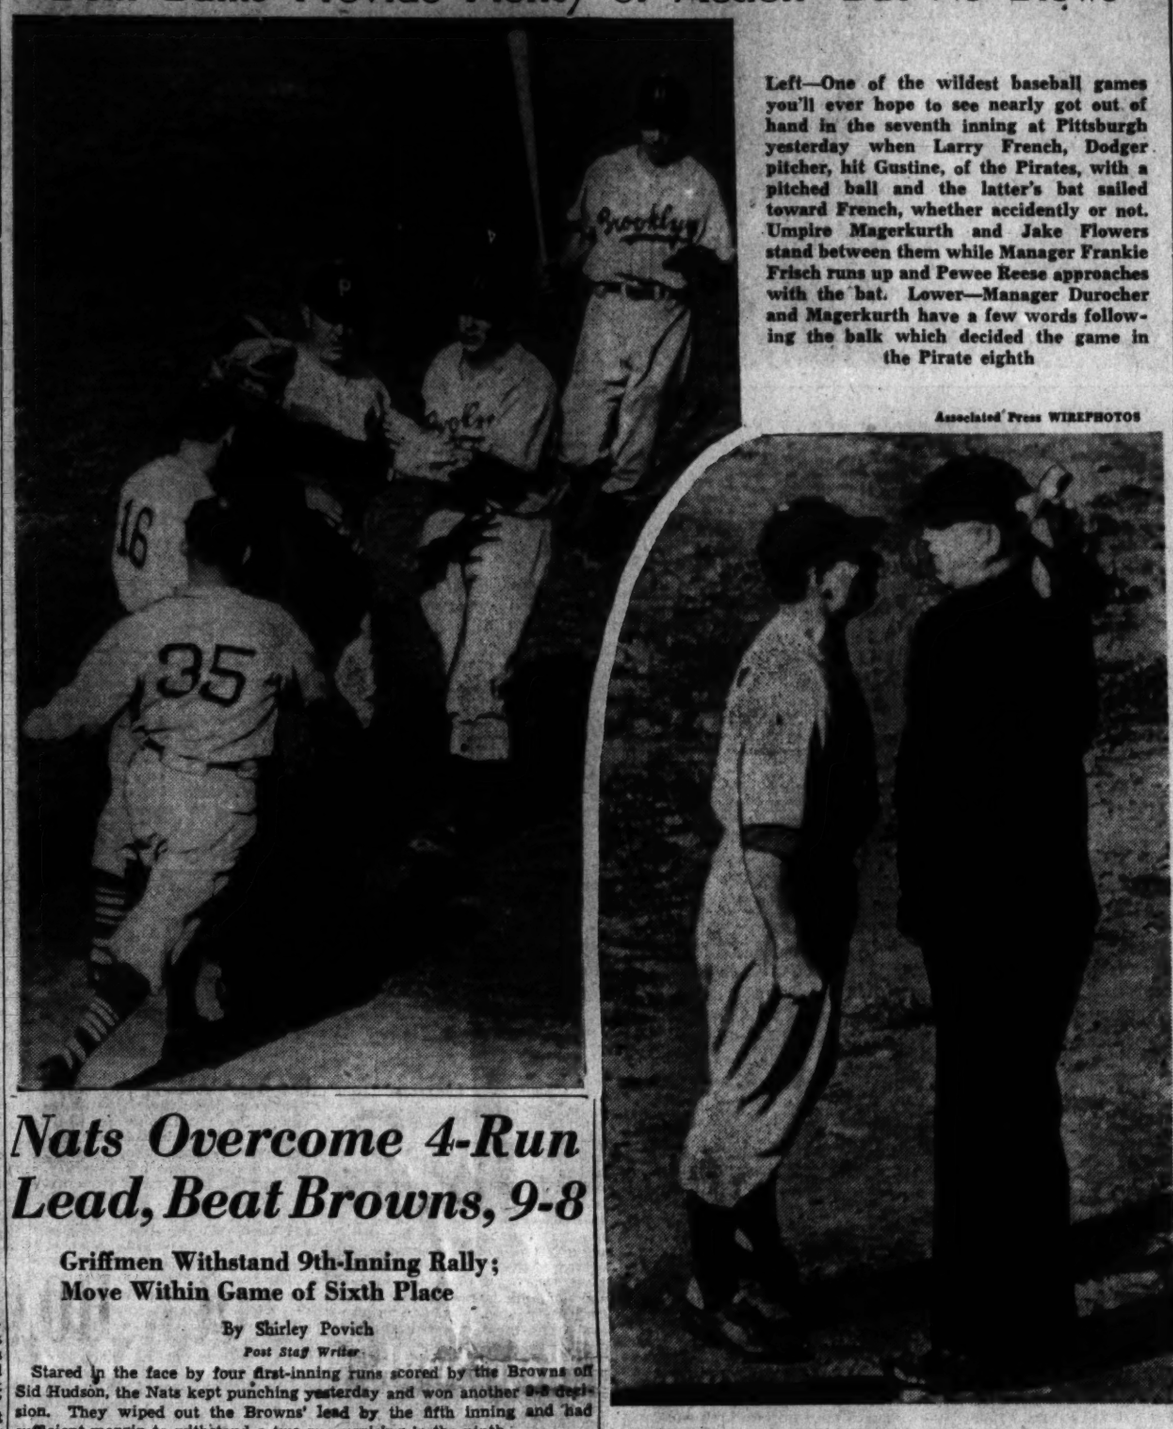
Dem Bums Provide Plenty of Action—But No Blows



Left—One of the wildest baseball games you'll ever hope to see nearly got out of hand in the seventh inning at Pittsburgh yesterday when Larry French, Dodger pitcher, hit Gustine, of the Pirates, with a pitched ball and the latter's bat sailed toward French, whether accidently or not. Umpire Magerkurth and Jake Flowers stand between them while Manager Frankie Frisch runs up and Pewee Reese approaches with the bat. Nats Overcome 4-Run Lead, Beat Browns, 9-8

Griffmen Withstand 9th-Inning Rally; Move Within Game of Sixth Place

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Stared in the face by four first-inning runs scored by the Browns off Sid Hudson, the Nats kept punching yesterday and won another 9-8 decision. They wiped out the Browns' lead by the fifth inning and had sufficient margin to withstand a two-run uprising in the ninth.

And so this morning the Nats are only a game out of sixth place, having won six of their last seven starts.

Young Walter Masterson pitched to only one batter, but he was more than a minor hero in the proceedings. With two St. Louis runs across the plate in the ninth and the tying run on third, Masterson replaced Alex Carrasquel and whipped a third strike past Pinch Hitter Johnny Lucadello for the concluding out.

The Browns gave Hudson a horrible time of it in that first inning and eventually ended up outhitting the Nats, 14 to 10, but the Washington athletes were making their blows count heavily. Cecil Travis slugged three runs across the plate with a pair of two-baggers. He hit only two two-baggers because he walked on his other three trips to the plate.

Uline to Stage Boxing Under Own Banner

Mike Jacobs will not be affiliated with the promotion of boxing at the Uline Ice Arena this winter, Lee Perrin, general manager of Uline, announced last night.

Negotiations with Jacobs having fallen through, Uline Arena will stage shows with Owner Michael Uline as promoter and Johnny Attell, former associate of Jacobs, as matchmaker.

Plans have been set for the opening show Monday night, October 13. Principals for the inaugural card will be announced shortly. Uline plans to hold bouts twice a month.

Attell stated last night that the best fighters available would be signed for Washington shows. The veteran matchmaker and manager of Al (Bummy) Davis made a special trip here from New York to attend to final details of his new job.

Attell reasserted his intention to develop local fighters for his boxing cards. The matchmaker said, "Regardless of where one promotes or makes matches, local boys should be developed and given a chance to progress. We plan also to bring in good opponents for name fighters."

Carlo Will Head Elliott High Sports

Joe Carlo, former captain and star tackle at American University, today will assume the post of director of recreation at Elliott Junior High School, it was learned yesterday.

Carlo played football at American University from 1934 until 1938, captaining the eleven in his last three seasons. He was a teammate of Stafford Cassell, present A. U. director of athletics and head coach of football.

Louisville Nine Vs. Columbus In League Final

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 18.—The champion Columbus Red Birds and the Louisville Colonels, last year's playoff winners, open their four-out-of-seven game final playoff series in the American Association here tomorrow night.

Manager Burt Shotton of Columbus named the league's top-ranking moundsman, big Johnny Grodzicki, to oppose Les Fleming in the opener.

Grodzicki turned in two of Columbus' four victories in the semifinal series with the Kansas City Blues which ended Sunday and has a record of three victories and one defeat against the Colonels this season.

Fleming, who came from the Boston Red Sox to join the Colonels fairly late in the season, has neither a win nor a loss to his credit against the Red Birds.

Louisville, which ended its semifinal playoff series with the Minneapolis Millers today with a 7-1 victory, won 14 out of 22 games with Columbus during the season.

The first two games of the final series will be played here, the next three at Louisville, and the sixth and seventh games, if needed, in Columbus. The teams will take no additional time between games for traveling.

Feller Wins 24th of Year, Beats Bosox

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 18.—Bob Feller marked up his twenty-fourth victory of the season today, snapping a Boston Red Sox victory string which had run to eight games as his Cleveland Indians battered three Boston pitchers for a 6-to-1 decision.

Jeff Heath put the game into Cleveland's victory book in the opening inning when he lofted a Dick Newsome serve into the right-field stands with two mates aboard. Ray Mark also hit for the circuit with none on in the sixth, his blow coming off Lefty Earl Johnson.

Feller was in complete charge all the way, the lone Boston run coming in the second, when Jimmy Foxx tripled to right with one away and came home on Bobby Doerr's fly to deep center. Feller held Ted Williams hitless, the willowy waller drawing one walk and going down on strikes in the eighth with Lou Finney on base.

Salvo Holds Birds to 6 Helpless Hits

Boston Scores 3 In First to Assume Permanent Lead; Demaree Hits Homer

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 18.—Opportunity pounded on the Cardinals' door today—almost broke it down, in fact—but they couldn't answer with base hits and lost a golden chance to take over the lead in the National League race.

Caught tight in a batting slump, the Redbirds managed only six safeties off Manuel Salvo, heretofore a so-so pitcher, and lost to the pesky Boston Braves, 4 to 1.

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Pirates had tumbled the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 5, and were holding them on the ground, an easy victim for the Cardinals.

A good stout bat or two would have done the trick easy, but the Cardinals had holes in the ones they were waving at Salvo. It's been that way for more than two weeks, making it a wonder the Cardinals have been able to stay up in the race. They have scored only 46 runs in their last 16 games, an average of less than three tallies a game, and their batting average over that stretch has been .207.

Score in Second

Against Salvo, the Cardinals put together Estel Crabtree's triple and Marty Marion's single for a run in the second inning, but Stan Musial's single and Johnny Mize's double just meant two men left on base in the third. The remaining two hits—singles by Jimmy Brown and Gus Mancuso—were wasted in double plays.

Morton Cooper, who throws a speed ball and a sharp curve, could have made a battle of it except for his home run pitch. He served one to Frank Demaree after two Boston singles in the opening inning. Frank's drive was his only hit of the series.

Gene Moore's home run in the sixth inning was just so much more black crape for the Cardinals.

Boston was the last Eastern club on the St. Louis schedule this season and Pittsburgh was the last stop on Brooklyn's final Western trip. The Cardinals now tackle the tough Westerners—Chicago and Pittsburgh—while Brooklyn finds supposed easier pickings with Philadelphia and the Braves.

The Dodgers, however, won't have any tea party if they run into a Boston club as tough as the one that faced the Cardinals today. The Braves played an errorless game, backed Salvo with several fielding gems and hit at just the opportune moment.

Sibby Sisti opened the game with a single but was forced at second by Johnny Cooney, Carvel Rowell popped out and the Braves' threat seemed over. But Gene Moore

Drafted Brooklyn Fan Is Granted Leave for Series

By the United Press

Camp Wheeler, Ga., Sept. 18.—For 10 long—and lean—years, Murray Waldenburg, of Brooklyn, went to see the Dodgers play at every opportunity and none cheered on the "Buma" more arduously than he. Alas, when the Dodgers finally had that big season, Waldenburg was drafted into the Army.

But Waldenburg's extended loyalty to the Dodgers today brought its reward.

A New York newspaper offered to pay all his expenses for a trip to Brooklyn for two games of the World Series, if the Dodgers win the National League pennant, and his commanding officer immediately agreed to grant him a furlough to see the contests.

"I'm a Brooklyn fan myself," Brig. Gen. John H. Hester, commandant at Camp Wheeler said, "I'll be more than happy to have Private Waldenburg see these games. In fact, I wish I were free to go with him."

Colds, Sore Throats Bother Flaherty, Other Redskins

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 18. Head Coach Ray Flaherty, Halfback Wilbur Moore and Center Bob Tichenal are confined to their beds with sore throats today and several other Redskin players have colds. Flaherty complained of a sore throat last night when he returned from radio broadcasts in Denver and this morning was unable to put the squad through its paces. Line Coach Turk Edwards took charge and supervised a routine workout.

The squad is preparing for its second and final inter-squad clash Saturday night in the local Spencer Penrose Stadium. Trainer Doc Mauro has recommended that Moore and Tichenal have their tonsils removed when the club returns to Washington next week. The change in altitude between this point and the California Coast as well as the difference in climate is believed to have caused the flare of colds.

Belmont's Feature To Roman in Upset

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 18.—Belmont Park opened its 15-day fall season today with J. E. Widener's 4-year-old, Roman, scampering home in front of eight other high-ranking sprinters in the twenty-eighth fall Highweight Handicap.

The son of Sir Gallahad III was asked to pick up top weight of 140 pounds and give as much as 38 to his rivals, but the package apparently felt like a feather, for the bay colt won by one and one-half lengths in track-record-equaling time of 1:10 for 6 furlongs. Speed to Spare, B. A. Neale's fast but faint-hearted 8-year-old gelding, was second, a half-length in front of Maxwell Howard's The Chief.

The record Roman equaled was established by Nusakan under a mere 126 pounds 12 years ago. There was one thing, however, in Roman's favor. Since the spring meeting the track has been flattened out around the far turn, making it somewhat faster. But it was a great performance, for Speed to Spare packed noly 124 pounds and The Chief 120. The favored entry of Dispose and Harvard Square, under 124 and 135 pounds, finished fifth and seventh, respectively.

The crowd of 13,184 evidently believed Handicapper John Campbell placed too much weight on Roman, for the Widener speedster was the sixth choice to win the purse of $4,500. As the result he returned $19.90 for a $2 win ticket, $10.10 to place and $7.40 to show. Speed to Spare, also an outsider, paid $8.20 and $6.60, while a $2 show ducat on the Chief was good for $9.70.

The first part of the race was run pretty much as expected. Meade broke Roman in front but before the field had gone a quarter-mile Speed to Spare was out there winging, with Dispose and Harvard Square second and third and the Widener representative in fourth place. Speed to Spare didn't quit, as usual, in the stretch but he was no match for Roman as the heavily weighted colt charged to the front to win drawing away.

Clark Griffith's Daughter Will Marry Chisox Pitcher

Thelma Griffith Weds Haynes Next Month

Miss Thelma Robertson Griffith, daughter of the president of the Washington Baseball Club, will become the bride of Pitcher Joseph Walton Haynes, of the White Sox, in early October.

Announcement of the engagement was made yesterday.

Blond Miss Griffith thus emulates her sister, Mildred, who also took a big league ball player as a husband. In 1934, Mildred became the bride of Joe Cronin, then manager of the Nats, now playing-manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Miss Griffith's romance with the tall, 23-year-old Haynes had its beginning in a Washington training camp at Orlando, Fla., three years ago, and reports that they would wed have been current for the past year.

Haynes, then a member of the Nats, was traded to the White Sox last winter. He is a native of Columbia, S. C. With the White Sox he has been used chiefly in relief roles, but is regarded as a fixture on the White Sox staff.

Until traded to Chicago, Haynes was the property of the Washington club for four years, being purchased after pitching sensational ball for the Jacksonville (Fla.) team of the Southeastern League. He was farmed to the Charlotte club of the Piedmont League, where he helped pitch that team to the pennant in 1938.

THELMA GRIFFITH

Like her sister, Mildred, Thelma Griffith has for the past few years been the secretary of the Nats' owner, supervising many of the details of the Washington club's farm system and press relations of the club.

Events for Pros, Women Golfers Mark Slackening Card

Dozen Events Are Left on Fall Slate

Bogart Will Compete In Pine Valley Play Today; American Golf Set for Sunday

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The golf schedule has let down to the extent where there will be no more of that three and four tournaments a day pace but nevertheless more than a dozen affairs remain on the fall card, most of them for the pro and women golfers.

The pros have a Maryland State Golf Association pro-amateur today at Woodholme, which was postponed from Wednesday. A pro sweepstakes, pro-amateur and amateur sweepstakes are carded over the Pikesville course.

The women have an entry closing date to keep in mind today, for Monday's Maryland State Women's Field Day at Kenwood. Entries close with Mrs. R. W. Payne at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, Adams 4484, at 1 p. m. The event will be at 18 holes medal play, with net and gross prizes.

Bogart To Play Away

Ralph Bogart, the city amateur champ, will take his talents out of town today. He will compete in the Pine Valley Invitation Tournament near Philadelphia. Wiffy Cox, the Congressional pro, abandoned plans to compete in the $7500 Henry Hurst Open, which also opens today in Philadelphia.

W. R. Stone is going ahead with plans for another American Golf demonstration Sunday while semi-final matches in the Maryland team play are carded Sunday, Indian Spring at C. C. of Maryland and Rolling Road at Bonnie View, plus a number of club championships.

Next week the women and pro golfers have Baltimore dates, the fair sex for the Maryland State Medal Play Championship Wednesday through Friday at Rolling Road and the pros, plus several amateurs, for the Baltimore Match Play Open at Green Spring Valley.

Mrs. Davy to Defend

Mrs. Myron Davy will defend her title in the Rolling Road event, with the Payne trophy as the big prize. A Class B section has been added this year as an incentive to the higher handicapped players.

The Baltimore Match Play Championship has been opened to District golfers this year for the first time and a dozen or more are expected to compete. Qualifying will be Tuesday with either 16 or 32 in the championship flight, depending upon the entries. A pro-amateur will precede the event on Monday.

Members of the United States Golf Association greens section will be here next week for a joint meeting with the Mid-Atlantic body Monday and Tuesday. Day-time meetings will be at the Arlington Turf Gardens and business meetings at the Hamilton Hotel.

After the week of September 21-27 the major local tournament calendar looks like this:

October 1-2-3—Congressional Country Club Invitation Tournament.

October 6-10—Middle Atlantic Women's Championship, Five Farms Course of the Baltimore Country Club.

October 6—Mid-Atlantic P. G. A. pro-amateur, Woodmont.

October 14—President's Plate, Women's D. C. G. A., Kenwood.

Washington-Baltimore inter-city team match set for that date has been postponed a third time.

October 10 and 24—Pro-member tournaments at Chevy Chase.

October 16—Middle Atlantic P. G. A. Championship, Country Club of Virginia in Richmond.

Kronheim Nine Plays Twin Bill on Sunday

Kronheim Liquors nine will end its season Sunday with games on widely separated fronts when it meets the District Umpires Association at 10:15 on the South Ellipse and immediately afterward leaves to play the Springs A. C. at Warrenton, Va.

Warren Reed and Lee Norman will have the pitching assignments. Players may call Randolph 4900 between 7 and 8 p. m. for further information.

Small Riot Ensues as Joe Cox Is Disqualified in Mat Match

Referee Berger Awards Bout to Fraley As Angry Fans Storm Turner's Arena Ring

A minor riot was the aftermath of the feature wrestling bout at Turner's Arena last night, in which Joe Cox was disqualified after 25 minutes of struggling with Pat Fraley.

The ruckus occurred just after Referee Casey Berger had awarded the match to Fraley. Some solid citizen more loaded with alcohol than intelligence started into the ring after Cox. Berger attempted to cool the patriot's ardor, and in less time than it takes to pronounce the name of a Russian general the joint was jumping. A number of the spectators felt their tickets entitled them to active participation in the show and they started after their money's worth. The police then stepped in and after a few minutes of vicarious thrills peace once more settled over old Hysteria Hall. Before the finish, however, an anonymous flyweight took a poke at Berger and the gendarmes had to force the belligerent's girl friend out of the melee.

Cox started the match with unnecessary roughness and progressively became more violent. Both men were propelled into the audience several times by the enthusiasm of their assaults, and toe-to-toe slugging was as prevalent as sin.

The semi-windup, a two-man team affair, was one of the funniest in recent months. Frenchy Le Chappelle paired with stubby Abie Coleman to defeat Lou Plummer and Jim Austeri. Plummer became thoroughly disgusted with the appeasement policy of his partner and voluntarily quit after 13 minutes of comedy. Then Austeri, solely on his own, was bounced around for another 60 seconds and then floored with a pair of super dropkicks. Austeri's attitude all the way was, "Let's you and them fight," and Lou got fed to the teeth with it after La Chappelle and Coleman had used him for a door mat.

Jim Henry nee the Green Hornet trounced Freddy Grobmier in 21 minutes with a slam and body press. Emil Dusek, a most unpleasant gent, took the opener from Abe Yourist in 23½ with a body press.

Montreal Beats Newark, 12-4, To Even Series

By the United Press

Newark, N. J., Sept. 18.—Amid confusion and excitement that would have done credit to any Dodger game, Brooklyn's Montreal farm club defeated the Newark Bears, 12-4, before 7,439 here tonight to even up the final round of the International League Governor's Coup series at one victory each.

The Dodgerized Royals handicapped themselves two runs when Pitcher Ed Head, who was on first base, failed to touch second, running in advance of Paul Campbell, who tripled against the distant centerfield fence with two on in the fifth.

However, the loss of the pair of tallies mattered little in the final reckoning with the Canadians lambasting four Newark pitchers who walked 13 batters, for 12 hits, including four timely extra-base blows.

Head, who had allowed only two hits and was coasting to a 6-0 lead became so befuddled that the Bears drove him from the mound and had four runs in before Steve Rachunok retired the side.

Rachunok not only let the Bears down with one hit for the rest of the way but added to the Royal's lead with a 400-foot homer with one on in the seventh. Four more Montreal runners crossed the plate in the eighth which saw Fred Frankhouse walk two men with the bases loaded and wild pitch home another.

Woody Jensen also hit a homer for the Royals with one on in the third, said blow causing the departure of Hank Borowy, Newark starter, who was reached for three runs in the first.

Jack Graham contributed three hits to the Royal's attack, including a double that made the first big inning and a triple for another run off Walter Stewart.

Swank Golf Clubs on the Way Out

There are two kinds of golf and one of them's dying.

The one picking the bed covers is the type you've always known—the big, swank, pseudo-social country club variety where the upkeep of the palatial premises is practically enormous and the membership list is kept so exclusive that members are always stifling sneezes lest some passing stranger get the mistaken impression he is being spoken to.

Cunningham

There simply aren't enough snoots still in funds to form quotas of those asylums for the horse-faced any more. It's too bad, possibly for it always struck me that the best place for them were these social concentration camps of their own selection. At least, that kept them out of the way of more attractive and more amiable people. As far as the golf went, most of them weren't much good anyhow.

Of course, it's unfair to tar them all with the same brush. Many of these institutions, especially since the depression started our financial revolution and Congress finished it, have gathered in a percentage of pretty regular people. But the rain falls on the just and the unjust contemporaneously and neither can call the game at any given time.

It's probably not exaggerating to assume that 90 per cent of the country club-golf clubs in the United States are in financial trouble and that if matters just keep traveling where they're going in the present hand-basket, they'll be given over to the owls and the echoes.

But what happens to golf, if these great landmarks go?

Probably the public courses and municipal courses take over. They're well on their ways, anyhow. The game now definitely belongs to the public, to the poor man, the working man, his wife, his girl friend and his daughter. Not all of them have been attacked by the bug, but the most eager and most successful players now, barring the pros, are from the ranks of the salaried and not the big salaried at that.

The best players of all, the pros, are without exception former caddies whose closest approach to the plush and palaver of the formal premises was the bleak caddy shack out in back. And the avowed goal of most of the big tournament amateurs, including the ladies, is to get a commercial connection where they can do it for dollars instead of for hollers.

Whether this is sensible or shocking, depends mostly upon how your daddy made his money, or more accurately, whether he did.

The capital T almost fell off The Country Club in Brookline last week when that diminutive but dynamic bride from the roaring run of the Pacific, Mrs. Elizabeth Hicks Newell, our new women's champion, gave the assembled coterie of vowel garglers a verbal candid camera shot of simple truth and commercial intent with the statement that she hoped she could win the thing and get a real shot as a pro, as it might give her young husband and herself a useful stake for their still recent marriage.

Some of the constituency turned pale, reached for a tree to lean against and began to murmur, "Oh, the pity of it." If she had to say anything such as that, it was a shame and a sin that she couldn't have waited until she at least got off the property. This . . . why this little Hessian . . . this little professional person . . . this . . . why this . . .

Well, it just happens that this little sister has a marriage to help make work, and a little moo, as the prize fighters call it, safely laid up in the bank against that always possible rainy day is pretty useful insurance, especially when the other half of the team is just out of college and hasn't had time to get further than a mechanic's portfolio in an airplane factory.

It's all in the point of view, and the new champion is typical of the practical point of view that has moved in upon an old social custom—who can say for better or for worse? The newer crowd wants golf, the game, and isn't interested in the social incidentals.

Just a place to dress and a campestrial holm o'er which to whack that cantankerous walnut covers the complete area of their need. They don't want the Saturday night dances because they know where there are better ones. The Sunday night buffet would scare 'em to death, and, as for the view from the veranda, they can get along without that, too. They always have.

I'm not saying this is right; it's just the way it is. And it's only part of the picture. The terrific increase in personal taxes, the possible increase in the cost of golf gear, the grinding bear-down on old Everett J. Yewerupp, the average golfer, from every direction, even excluding his golf club, bids fair to squeeze many a brother loose before the dues come 'round again.

We might as well get ready, folks, for there'll be some changes made.

Al Lujack's Nose Broken In Navy Test

Al Lujack, Georgetown senior end, yesterday submitted to an operation on a broken nose sustained in scrimmage with Navy Wednesday. The carving was performed at Georgetown Hospital, and Coach Jack Hagerty said last night that he expected Lujack to be back in playing shape by next week.

Meantime the Georgetown varsity, needled by Hagerty's criticism of their poor showing in the long drill with Navy, tore through the freshman yesterday in a short but snappy scrimmage at the Hilltop.

"It was murder," Hagerty said, "All the varsity fellows were out to prove that they could play better ball than they did against Navy, and the freshmen were the fall guys."

Hagerty said the Hoyas would work today on smoothing out their offense and defense before tomorrow's scrimmage with Navy, the final outside workout for the Hoyas before their opening game with Mississippi here next Friday night.

Russ Arnaud Is Lost to A. U. For Month

Russ Arnaud, 185-pound triple-threat back, was lost to American University yesterday for an indefinite period when he suffered a dislocated shoulder in intra-squad scrimmage.

Arnaud, former Washington-Lee High School ace, was considered the Eagles' most promising back, though he is a prospective freshman. Arnaud, as well as Merrill Hoover, a lineman, are not yet officially with the Eagles, pending permission to use them from the coach of a school they attended during the February term of last year. The two did not play football at the other school, but A. U. officials insist upon obtaining written permission to use them lest A. U. be acused of proselyting.

Should Arnaud be lost for a month, as feared, he would miss A. U.'s opener scheduled at home with Susquehanna October 4, and possibly the second game with Swarthmore here October 11.

Cubs Whip Giants, Gain Fifth Place

By International News Service

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The Chicago Cubs moved up into fifth place in the National League by walloping the Giants, 7 to 1.

Jake Mooty went the route for the Cubs and gave only four hits. Tom Sunkel, a rookie, was tagged with the defeat when the Cubs scored six runs on four hits and three errors in the seventh inning.

The worst error was charged to Johnny Rucker who permitted Babe Dahlgren's single to get past him, four runs counting.

Silver Spring Tops Rockville, 7 to 3

Bat throwing and near fisticuffs featured the Rockville-Silver Spring softball fracas at Washington Softball Stadium last night when Kenny Thomas, Silver Spring pitching ace, stopped Rockville and Bob Johnson cold to win going away, 7 to 3.

The winners hammered out nine hits off Buck Cornwell. Three hits were all the heavy-hitting Rockvillians could gather off Thomas. These included two triples by C. Hutchinson.

"Mayor" Ben Goldfaden's home run failed to keep Greenbelt from losing, 6 to 5, to Carr Bros. and bow out of the Metropolitan Invitational Tournament. Douglas McLaren and Cy Stewart were touched for eight hits apiece.

Tonight Carr Bros. moves into the quarter-finals by playing Census at 9 p. m. At 7:30 the Firemen cross bats with Standard Linen, each of the losers being eliminated from the series by virtue of having lost two games.

Harmon Denied 3-A

Gary, Ind., Sept. 18 (AP).—Tom Harmon, Michigan's football hero, tonight was denied a request for a 3-A draft deferment and is subject to immediate call to service provided he passes his physical examination, local draft board officials announced.

G. W. Opens Grid Season AgainstMonroe

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 18.—Eight lettermen, including a complete veteran backfield, will be handed starting assignments tomorrow afternoon, when George Washington High School's eleven opens its 1941 season against James Monroe High on the Yellow Jackets' field at Fredericksburg, Coach Al Doran announced this afternoon.

Marking opening hostilities in the annual battle for the mythical Northern Virginia "Big Three" title, contested among G. W., James Monroe and Washington and Lee, of Arlington, the contest will find the Presidents' complete crop of monogram winners in action at the starting kickoff. One newcomer and two "graduates" of last year's junior varsity eleven will complete the starting line-up.

Doran's choices for the end assignments are Letterman Billy Bell, a 160-pounder, and Paul O'Brien, a former Jayvee, who weighs 165. At tackles will be 180-pound Charlie Campbell, a newcomer to the squad, and Marshall Funkhouser, 175, a standout with last year's junior eleven. Two lettermen, Jimmy Deeton, 160, and Jim Suit, 145, are slated to start at guards, while the 170-pound veteran, Henry Grimm, will be in the pivot slot.

The starting backfield, boasting a pair of triple-threaters, includes Lettermen Leon Chisolm at quarter; Capt. Johnnie Shelton and Dalton Dove, halves, and Marty Foltz, fullback.

Doran will take four complete teams to Fredericksburg, and if all goes well, the entire squad will see action.

Annandale vs. Dodgers

The Annandale A. C. will play host to the Arlington Dodgers Sunday at 3 p. m. Hymie Inscoe will hurl for the Dodgers and either Kibler or Wooster will pitch for Annandale.

Jim Braddock Predicts Nova Victory in Bout With Louis

Late Round K. O. Is Seen By Ex-Champ

Louis Is Slipping, Nova Now at Peak, Relates Braddock; Bout Set Sept. 29

By the United Press

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 18.—Former Champion Jim Braddock predicted today that Lou Nova will wrest the heavyweight crown from Joe Louis, probably by a knockout in the thirteenth or fourteenth round.

After watching the California challenger in an impressive four-round boxing drill, the ring's "Cinderella Man" forecast flatfootedly the coronation of a new heavyweight king on the twenty-ninth.

Braddock exclaimed, "I've got to pick Nova because he's the best all-round fighter Louis ever met and because Louis is slipping fast. He's no longer the great fighter he was."

The Knockout Punch

Jersey Jim, who lost the title to Louis four years ago, declared that Nova has one of the greatest lefts he ever saw, "both for hooking and jabbing." Though Nova is not a one-punch knocker-out, this left hand will wear down the Detroit Negro and ready him for a kayo in the latter rounds, Braddock promised.

The former champion continued, "Nova at 26 is right at his peak, while Louis at 27 is somewhat burned out. Joe showed that he is on the toboggan during those fight-a-month bouts. That's why I picked Conn to lick him, and everyone knows Conn had him licked until he lost his head and got nailed in the thirteenth.

"Nova is as big and strong as Louis. He takes a punch much better than Joe. He's dead game. He's a good boxer and a fair puncher. He can hit Louis hard enough to knock him down or cut him up—with either hand. He's a good body puncher—has a fine right to the heart. He has excellent legs and, I'm sure, more stamina now than Louis for a long hard fight.

Nova Slow Target

"The one criticism experts have made of Nova is that he is a stand-up fighter and a slow target. Well, you could see in today's workout that he's no longer such an easy target. He doesn't get hit as often as before. He's improved his boxing surprisingly since the last Baer fight. Watch what Lou's left hand does to Louis."

Braddock was one of about 400 spectators who watched Nova spar four rounds with three mates—Joe Baski, Johnny Aichers and Joe Downey. Trainer Ray Arcel again had difficulty in preventing Lou from slugging it out with his partners, particularly in his two sessions with rugged Baksi. Nova, trained to fighting edge, wanted to belt instead of box. Lou, never a great showman in training, looked better today than ever before in a workout.

Former Card's Manager Uninjured in Crash

Harrisburg, Ill., Sept. 18 (AP).—Ray Blades, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals now pilot of the New Orleans Pelicans, walked away uninjured from a crash landing of his light plane at Harrisburg Airport today.

A wheel locked, spinning the craft off the runway into a ditch as Blades attempted a landing. The propeller and landing gear were damaged.

Prerace Encouragement From Missus

Bob (Shorty) McManus, one of the leading drivers of the Eastern Division of the American Automobile Association, receives encouragement from his pretty wife, one of the steadiest feminine midget fans on the circuit. Both will be on hand for tonight's seven-event card at the West Lanham speedway

Willman Heads Midget Card At Lanham

Tony Willman, who cleaned up in his midget auto debut here last week, will be in the featured role on tonight's seven-race program at the West Lanham Speedway, marking the second week's competition under the auspices of the A. A. A. First race is scheduled at 8:30.

Willman, who last week won all three events in which he was entered, including the 25-lap headliner, is the leading point scorer of the A. A. A. circuit. Among his rivals tonight will be Charlie Miller, who pressed him closely for honors last Friday and who is tied with Shorty MacAndrews for second place in the point standings. Willman has 60 points, Miller and MacAndrews 46 each.

Other leading rivals of Willman will include Dave Randolph and Johnny Jars, ranked 9 and 10, respectively in the point column, and also George Fonder, Red Redmond, John Ritter and Shorty McManus. McManus, who stands 5 feet, is one of the shortest midget drivers.

In all, 22 reputation drivers are scheduled to compete tonight, including Dee Toran, Joe Garson, Jim Forte, John Peterson, Jimmy Pierson, Harry Sheeler, Ed Wendt Hawley Kight, Elmer Sefcik, Jeep Colkiyy, Charley Breslin, Bob Ervin, Charley Creech and George Fair.

Tickets for the races are on sale at the Standard Capitol Service Center and at the A. A. A. before 6 p. m. and at the Speedway after 6.

Cavaliers Prepare For Grid Opener Against Tigers

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 18.—Virginia coaches checked details of the Cavalier squad's play in the week's final full length practice today in preparation for the football seasons opener with Hampden-Sydney here Saturday.

Johnny Neff, Charlottesville senior, and Don Niklason, Arlington, junior, likely backfield starters against the Tigers, received and returned kick offs with Bill Dudley and Eddie Bryant.

Mighty Phils Lose 101st And 102d

By International News Service

Cincinnati, Sept. 18.—Cincinnati further tightened its hold on third place today by taking a double-header from the Phillies, 5-0 and 9-2.

Ray Starr spread eight hits and Ernie Lombardi hit his tenth homer in the first game. Jim Turner had an easy road to travel in the nightcap after Frank McCormick hit a homer with two aboard in the third inning. The Phils made two errors in the opener and five more in the second game. It ran the Phils' losses for the season to 102.

Commerce Bowling Leagues Open Tonight

Both the men's and women's bowling leagues of the Department of Commerce will inaugurate activities this evening at 7 o'clock at the Lucky Strike Alleys.

Six teams representing various units of the department have been entered in the women's league. Eight teams will compete in the men's league.

Pepper Leads CatholicLeague With 152-355

Sections D and F, of the Washington Catholic League, rolling at Queen Pin, found that Jim Pepper, St. Francis Xavier, had 152-355 to spark the former loop although Henry Kaboskey, St. Peter's No. 1, totaled 357 to take best set and lead his team to high set of 1572. The St. Francis Xavier boys had 569 for high team game. In the Section F League the leaders were Henry McDermott, St. Matthew's, with 130-335, and Donald Robertson, St. Patrick's, with 129-366. St. Dominic's No. 3, and St. Joseph's No. 1, split team highs with 536 and 1579, respectively. St. Joseph's No. 3 took all three from St. Dominic's No. 1, with St. Dominic's No. 1 doing likewise with St. Peter's No. 1.

WESTERN ELECTRIC LEAGUE

The Western Electric Mixed League at Fort Davis was led by Miss Duffy's 107-285 for her Sharpshooters team, while Cheek, Whirlwinds, totaled 127 and 349, to show the way to the men. The Defenders rolled high team game of 535.

LADIES FEDERAL LEAGUE

The Ladies Federal League at Arcadia found "old-timer" Buddy Meyer, Interior No. 2, best for the game count with a 133 but Dorothy Aue, OEM No. 1, took set honors with her 345. The GPO and RFC No. 1 girls split team highs after pinfalls of 548 and 1535, respectively.

HEBREW INDEPENDENTS

The Hebrew Independent League at Penn Recreation was led by Sidney Brown, Star Liquor, with a 136 count while Sam Gordon, Flashes, took the set after totaling 360. The Congress lads won team highs after pinfalls of 595 and 1673 which included three in a row from opponents, Lopatin helping with his 364 near high set.

BROOKLAND MERCHANTS

Lee Rothgeb, Diamond Cab, and Karl Gochenour, Shadid's Restaurant, were best individuals in the Brookland Merchants League with a 147 single and 417 set, respectively. Yuengling's Beer and Cannon's Restaurant split team highs with a 635 game and 1765 set, respectively. Pioneer Laundry, Diamond Cab, University Delicatessen and DePerini won all three from Brookland Bakery, Friars Club, MPM Market and Brookland Garage in the order named.

MARITIME LEAGUE

The Maritime Mixed League at New Recreation was led by Fitzgerald, Sales, with his 128-330, but despite this his team dropped three in a row to the Analysts. The Bosun'mates were the best team, taking highs with a 555 game and a 1596 set.

C. & P. TELEPHONE

The C. & P. Telephone League brought out Skipper Woodley and Stewart, National, who found the Penn Recreation drives to their liking and each rolled a 138 high single. Bean, Woodley, took set honors with his 356. Georgia won team highs after pinfalls of 599 and 1721.

MODEL BASIN LEAGUE

The Experimental Model Basin League at the Ice Palace was led by Mintz, Material Testing, with a 151 game, while Dana Fernald, Model Makers, took set honors after a 366 pinfall. Machine Shop No. 1 was best for team totals with a 512 game and 1500 set, taking all three from Electrical Shop as well. The Officers whitewashed the Mezzanine boys.

GOVERNMENT LEAGUE

The District Government League got off last night at Brookland Recreation with Drissel, Schools, taking the lead with a 149 single and fine 425 set. The Headquarters boys won high team set with a 1736 pinfall and took three in a row from City Refuse No. 1. Purchasing, Police No. 7 and Building Inspectors whitewashed Pumping No. 2, Material and Police No. 4, respectively.

Robinson Favored To Beat Shapiro

New York, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Ray (Sugar) Robinson, unbeaten Harlem Negro lightweight, is favored at 2-1 to defeat Maxie Shapiro, of New York, in their ten-round contenders' battle tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

The winner is slated for a title shot at the victor in the Lew Jenkins-Sammy Angott bout, booked for the Garden October 31.

Robinson, only 20 years old, has won 23 straight professional fights, 19 by the kayo route. As an amateur he was unbeaten in 89 bouts. Shapiro, 26, is one of the most able scrappers ever developed on New York's East Side.

Rich Prizes To Be Offered At Farmington

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 18.—The ninth annual exhibition of the Farmington Hunt Club Horse Show, to be held on Friday and Saturday, will bring here the finest lot of entries seen in years in this section.

The lucrative prizes offered by the management have attracted exhibitors from all parts of the State. Over $1200 is being offered in money and trophies, including a $100 hunter and $100 jumper stake. In addition, $50 will be offered to any horse who equals or breaks the record of 6 feet 6½ inches set at the Columbus Horse Show at Chevy Chase last month by Black Caddy, owned by Lieut. Fred Hughes, jr.

The class for Working Hunters, to be shown at Saturday's matinee, has a total of 40 entries.

Entered in this event are five from the stables of Mrs. M. E. Whitney—The Bear, Spring Hope, Bon Nuit, Strong Tea and Cherry Bounce; Ragnarock and Gringo, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Hagin Perry, of Cobham; Highland Ace and Big Boy, from Springsbury Farm; Short Hair, Mrs. Richard Moser's bay gelding by Omar Khayyam; Pamuck, a chestnut gelding owned by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Renwick; Inly, Lucky Buck and Big Storm, from the stables of Mrs. George Watts Hill; Howard Butz's Gigolette; Red Water and Red Haste, from Marbert Farm, and W. A. Rinehart's chestnut mare, Miss Harvey.

23 Entries in Event

Second event on the opening day, that for Novice Jumpers, will have 32 entries, to be followed by the class for hunters under saddle, to be judged on conformation, quality, substance, soundness, manners, and way of going. To the winner will go the trophy offered by Mr. and Mrs. R. D. York, of Windsor.

The Open to All Jumpers will bring into competition such horses as Miss Peggy Sampson's bay mare Hezzlapoppin, by Canadian Ensign—Zaza; Miss Margaret Cotter's bay gelding Rocksie; Birthday Party and Redport, from Edgewood Farm, Cobham; Blue Eagle, Mrs. Whitney's brown gelding; Royal Irish, owned by Dr. and Mrs. J. P. McDonough; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Schlesinger's Golden Slippers; Papa John, owned by Lieut. W. B. Rand, jr.; Mrs. Polly Stokes' Freckles; Trail Bird, owned by Capt. and Mrs. J. G. Minniece, jr., and Fire Chief, a chestnut gelding from Dodsborg Farm.

There are nine entries in the class for Pairs of Hunters, performance, manners and even pace to count 85 per cent; similarity and general appearance, 15 per cent.

Badminton Courts Open in Arlington

A gymnasium at Washington-Lee High School will be available to adults for badminton six nights a week from 7 to 11 o'clock, according to an announcement by the Arlington County Recreation Department.

W. A. Richardson, director, will meet all prospective players Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. to organize badminton clubs as a part of the proposed recreation program in the county.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Camp Kennabago Lake, Me., Sept. 18.—Some time ago we advised those who cannot take the flies with their fishing to fish Maine waters during the month of September. We followed our own advice. We left Washington last Friday by train in company with Jack Nelson. In Baltimore, we were joined by Hammond J. Brown and Joseph Brooks, jr. Arriving in New York, we were joined by a group of outdoor writers from several States, completing our party. From there we traveled by rail to Farmington, Me. It was on this trip that George Robey, of Columbus, Ohio, missed his train during a change in Portland. George arrived in camp 36 hours late . . . without his duffle or tackle, which also became lost on the way up. It was not until today that his duffle was located in the B. & O. baggage room in New York. George is quite a figure around camp in his borrowed fishing togs.

JACK BELL

We find the big salmon are not out of the deep lake waters. In a few more days they are expected to show up on the shallow sand bars, ready to take a fly. However, these beauties, the brook trout, are now in shallows in large numbers. Every member of the party is catching many trout of 1 to 1¾ pounds, all of which are returned to the waters unharmed.

Herb Welch, noted angler and former world's champion fly-caster, of Haines Landing on Mooselookmeguntic Lake, joined our party. Today, Herb lived up to his reputation by catching a beautiful male trout in all its glorious late season colors. A trout in the late season just before spawning time takes on the most brilliant colors, which must be seen to be fully appreciated. Several trout weighing two to three pounds have been caught by members of our party.

Some of the finest and most prolific of trout and salmon waters are within 12 miles of Camp Kennabago, such as Little Kennabago and stream, Flatiron, Saddleback, Loon and Rangeley Lakes, all of which are being fished by various members of the camp.

J. Lewis York, one of Maine's pioneer conservationists and camp owners, also owns and operates York's Log Village on Loon Lake, which is on the way into Kennabago Lake. Loon Lake camp caters more to the vacationist, while Kennabago caters to the angler. It is to be noted that sportsmen here have set a tradition that only fish that are to be mounted are taken away from Kennabago.

Today Inland Fish and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie flew in with his famed flying warden pilot Bill Turgeon, and his son George, jr., wrestling champion at Cornell, to greet our group.

We are encamped here on Kennabago amid a most beautiful setting of wild woodland and mountains rising to more than 4000 feet, all now just about in the height of fall coloring, contrasting with the evergreens. The nights are quite chilly, with skies so clear one feels as though he could reach up and touch the stars. As we write this, we look out of the window and see the northern lights cutting across the sky.

Huge New B-19 Superbomber

The Army's huge new B-19 superbomber is world's largest. Its 212-foot wingspread can carry 125 men—climb almost 3 miles—fly non-stop nearly 8,000. Truly, B-19 stands out among today's great aircraft. And so too does Old Jordan stand out among bourbons—standard for those who know their bourbon best.

Among Bourbon Whiskies It's OLD JORDAN

Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey

Still made the Old-Fashioned "Slow" Way!

MEN who know bourbon know what it takes to achieve the delicious extra-smooth, extra-rich taste of Old Jordan Straight Bourbon Whiskey. We stick to the old methods that take more time, more care—the "slow" way we started 100 years ago. We still buy premium grains. Use more of them to a gallon. Simmer our mash slowly. That's how we get such extra smoothness, extra richness. Yes, Old Jordan costs more to make, but not to drink! So treat yourself to the extra pleasure of Old Jordan.

Night Glow Captures Mt. Pleasant Purse at Havre de Grace

Big Stakes, Favorite, Is Fourth

Blue Twink Finishes Second; Boreale Is Third; Winner Pays $11.40 Price

By Clocker Mike

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 18.—Dixiana's Night Glow was the star here today in the Mount Pleasant Purse and with her victory she helped shatter the hopes of those who had depended on W. C. McGrath's Big Stakes being a starter in Saturday's Potomac Handicap. Although ineligible herself, Night Glow left Big Stakes some four lengths behind as she scored a photo decision over Circle M. Ranch's Blue Twink. Sterling Clark's Boreale was a fast closing third.

The ideal racing weather drew a crowd of 7,500 to witness the sport conducted over a lightning fast track and they made Big Stakes a slight favorite over Stolen Tryst. Neither of their choices could get a share of the purse as they finished in the fifth and fourth spot, respectively. Blue Twink took a long early lead under W. E. Snyder with everything else in the race just sitting and waiting for the speed horse to come back to them. However, Blue Twink was not coming back today so they had to set sail for him.

Stolen Tryst stole through on the rail entering the stretch but as in her previous start over this oval she was all out and the advantage did her little good. Night Glow and Boreale began moving together and this gave Ken McCombs, aboard the winner, a decided edge. Boreale was forced to move on the outside of the winner and but for this fact she no doubt would have taken the top money.

The winner paid $11.40 for each $2. In the day's opener, Rencourt was graduated from the maiden ranks after outfooting the others in a field of 12 juveniles. The 2-year-old returned a $5 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GINO BEAU, $4.70, $4.20, $3.30; FOLD UNDER, $73.50, $36.40; HRESHECOMES, $11.80.

GINO BEAU improved his position gradually, reached the leader at the eighth pole and was going away while running easily. FOLD UNDER moved to the front gradually, but could not resist the winner. HERESHECOMES came from out of the clouds to be third. BRIGHT ARC forced the pace for a half and tired.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:36½. Winner, E. Talbert's b. m. (7), by High Cloud—Sarah Ginger. Trained by P. C. Stephenson. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAECLOUD, $3.90, $3.30, $2.80; MISS FIX IT, $6.80, $3.80; BUSY FINGERS, $3.00.

MAECLOUD went around the leader after being unable to get through on the rail and was going away in the last sixteenth. MISS FIX IT went to the front while running easily, held on gamely, but was not good enough. BUSY FINGERS came well in the last eighth. PHARA FROST came from far off the pace to be going well at the end.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1500; handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:06½. Winner, Dixiana's br. f. (3), by Pharamond II—Red Sunset. Trained by C. Porter. Value to winner, $1000; second, $350; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NIGHT GLOW, $11.40, $7.10, $4.20; BLUE TWINK, $8.90, $5.30; BOREALE, $7.50.

NIGHT GLOW, off in front, was steadied along when outrun, came to the outside in the stretch and was up in the concluding strides. BLUE TWINK held a long lead early, held on well until the last sixteenth and was just nipped. BOREALE was allowed to settle into his best stride, moved with the winner and closed well. STOLEN TRYST weakened after chasing the leader for five-eighths. BIG STAKES could not better his position.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1100; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but SUN PHANTOM. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:35½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEGENDA, $5.70, $3.70, $3.30; TODDLE ON, $6.40, $5.20; ASTER LADY, $7.20.

LEGENDA moved to the front approaching the half-mile pole, was rated along while setting the pace and drew out gradually in the final quarter. TODDLE ON appeared dangerous entering the stretch, but was allowed to drift out. ASTER LADY came around from the start and showed a good race. ZOSTERA could not better her position. SUN PHANTOM stood in the gate at the start and had no chance.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:06½. Winner, J. Tuccie's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEVENA, $21.60, $6.90, $4.30; GUERRILLA, $3.70, $2.80; RHODIUM, $3.00.

LEVENA held a slight lead early, opened a good margin when asked, but just lasted to beat GUERRILLA. The latter was hard held while following the pace and would have won in another jump. RHODIUM saved ground while moving and was going best at the end. SUN LARK lost much ground and tired.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:35. Off at 5:35½. Winner, J. Y. Christmas' b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLEANING TIME, $4.30, $3.90, $3.50; GIGGLE LEE, $9.70, $7.20; YANKEE LAD, $9.80.

CLEANING TIME moved up on the outside after a half to take command, opened a long lead entering the stretch and was all out to win. GIGGLE LEE came from next to the last and would have won in another jump. YANKEE LAD lacked speed early and closed with a burst of speed. RUN BY could make up no ground. CUSTER closed well. CRIMSON LANCER got to the top and then weakened.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

As long as we started out talking about disqualification, I think it only right to say something about the race Wednesday. First of all, without being sarcastic, I would like to know where the stewards were when Star Chance bothered Sir Reg throughout the last three-sixteenths of a mile in the above-mentioned race. He carried Sir Reg out while running like a wild horse and then McCombs was standing straight up in the stirrups, swinging his whip any where it may fall. I don't doubt that McCombs did his best to keep his mount straight but it still stands that he was unable to do so and was the cause of Sir Reg not getting up for first money. In my humble opinion, if ever there should have been a disqualification, that was the spot for it. Around the finish line they were laying as much as 2-1 that the number would be taken down. During the course of Wednesday's card, A. Smith, who finished second on Bill's Rita, canceled his remaining mounts due to having injured his leg when the 2-year-old hit the fence. The stewards announced that Jockey G. Cardoza had been suspended for five days for crowding at the first turn aboard Miss Identify in the opening race. Starter Jim Milton fined Jockey F. Farrell $100 for lack of respect for him while at the gate. Crispin Oglebay's Mischief Afoot, a 2-year-old, was the first double winner at the meeting. He was ridden by Al Shelhamer and he would like to say that "Shelly" is riding as good now as he has in a long while. our candidates for Saturday's $10,000 Added Potomac Handicap, were given their final speed trials yesterday morning. The moves by these candidates follow: Boston Man breezed a mile in 1:42 2-5; Cape Cod breezed eight panels in 1:43; My Bill was driving to turn in his five-eighths trial in 1:00 2-5 and Market Wise, probable favorite in the week-end fixture, went a handy half in 0:48 2-5 and went out the five-eighths in 1:01. It is very doubtful as to whether on not Trainer Max Hirsch will ship Sheriff Culkin here to fulfill his engagement in the stake. Another rider was added to the local colony when Jockey A. Craig got in. It is reported from New York that Jockey Ralph Eccard was up and about after an appendectomy operation.

BILL.

First race — NEWFOUNDLAND has been on the reserve list several times but has not started at the meeting. Has tranied very well since reaching here and is fit. JEZRA could make it tough on the top one if in good form. CONNIE JEAN has a fair record and deserves a call.

Second race—If there ever was a bad race, this is it. SAN STEFANA has some good races and that's more than can be said for most of the field. VALDINA RAY has poor races but has worked very well here. STOP LOSS is cheap but best races have been over this strip.

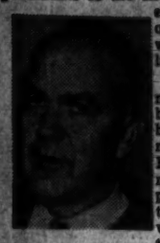
Third race—SIR MOWLEE has been going over a distance of ground lately but still retains his early foot. Should be able to handle a field like this. DULIE has a good race here and is fairly consistent. CHALDAR is dropping down the class ladder and may be dangerous.

Fourth race—REHEARSAL has a little too much class for these sprinters so I am forced to string along. JOANNY was a winner in clever fashion last out and cannot be overlooked. CRACK FAVOR is from a good stable and should go well if bet on.

Fifth race—EQUIPET made her last start in the Eastern Shore Handicap and was a little over her head there. She has trained well enough before, and after that effort, to be a winner if able to break in. HOME WOLF is a fast one and will be tough to beat. VISITING NUR

Folger Named Vice President By I.B.A.Board

John Clifford Folger, of the Washington firm of Folger, Nolan & Co., has been named one of two new vice presidents of the Investment Bankers Association of America, it was announcedt last night.



MR. FOLGER

The appointment was made by the I. B. A. board and announced by Emmett F. Connoly, retiring president. At the same time it was revealed that the next president of the I. B. A. will be John S. Fleek, partner in the Cleveland investment banking firm of Hayden, Miller & Co.

Officers of the association are nominated by the board of governors and elected at the annual convention, which this year is to be held at Hollywood, Fla., November 30 to December 5. Selections of the board in previous years always have been approved at the convention.

In addition to Mr. Folger, the board named Jay N. Whipple, of Chicago, for a vice presidency. Completing the regular ticket are three other vice presidents presently holding that office. They are Edward H. Hilliard, Louisville; John K. Starkweather, New York, and John O. Stubbs, Boston.

Mr. Folger has been active in civic affairs here and was a section leader in the past Community Chest campaign. He is a trustee of the Chest and a board member of Garfield Hospital. A graduate of Washington State University, he has resided here for the past 11 years. He is a director of the Washington Bond Club and of the Mayflower Hotel and a member of the Chevy Chase and Metropolitan Clubs. Earlier this year he appeared before the Securities and Exchange Commission to oppose the competitive bidding plan.

The new president, Mr. Fleek, will also become chairman of the association's public information committee and in this capacity will serve as a full-time executive of the association, taking a leave of absence from his own business. He is at present a vice president of the association.

Mr. Fleek has been in the investment business in Cleveland with his present firm since 1821 and a partner of the firm since 1927. He was previously in the wholesale grocery business in Newark, Ohio, with Fleek & Son Co., an establishment founded by his grandfather in 1861. He was born in Newark, August 29, 1893, educated at Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard, receiving an A.B. degree from the college in 1915 and returning after the 1914-1918 war and a number of years in business in Newark to obtain a M. B. A. degree, cum laude, from the graduate school of business.

Lynx Pelts Soar 25% in New York

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Fur traders in the Manhattan Canyon called Twenty-third Street explained today what made wildcats wild.

It was a sudden jump of 25 per cent in the value of their pelts, sending prices as high as $15.75 a skin.

On that basis, a strong man who could lift his weight in wildcats (with animal removal) would be able to pick up pelts valued at $2,362.50.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—This week's downward drift of wheat prices was halted today, when the market rallied briskly in the final hour, scoring net gains of ⅝ to 1⅜ cents, compared with yesterday's finish. Wheat and other grains had displayed more weakness early in the session, due to profit-taking and hedging sales, as well as another sharp break in soybean prices, but after noon selling diminished and buying to cover previous short sales disclosed the market was oversold. The President's request for additional land-lease funds, including appropriations for purchase of agricultural commodities, stimulated some late buying. Mills and other commercial interests were reported in the market.

Soybeans, which tumbled 4 to 5½ cents at one stage, rallied later with grains and closed at net losses of only 1½ to 3 cents. However, this was the sixth consecutive session of lower prices, and at the day's low, May delivery of beans, at 1.77¾, was off 24¼ from last week's all-time peak. May futures closed at 1.80⅛@1.80¼.

Closing wheat prices were 1.22⅛@1.22⅝ for December and 1.26¼ for May. Corn finished ¼ off to ⅝ up, December 83¼@83¾, May 88⅜; oats ⅝ off to ⅛ up; rye ⅛ off to ⅛ up, and lard unchanged to 3 lower.

Bank Idle Cash Up 140 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Lendable excess reserves of banks increased 140 million dollars to a total of five million dollars in the week ended September 16.

The Federal Reserve Board said the increase was due primarily to Treasury spending for defense, quarterly public debt interest and other purposes. Idle funds of banks generally have been declining in recent months.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended September 17 member bank reserves increased 170 million dollars. Additions to member bank reserves arose from a decrease of 122 million dollars in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks and incerases of 61 million dollars in reserve bank credit, eight million dollars in gold stock and three million dollars in Treasury currency, offset in part by increases of 11 million dollars in Treasury cash, ten million dollars in money in circulation and three million in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves on September 17 were estimated to be approximately $5,250,000,000, an increase of 140 million dollars."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended September 17, 1941, were as follows:

Non-Defense Steel Orders Fall Off

Cleveland, Sept. 18 (AP).—New orders for steel products are falling off under application of strict priorities, and "one important midwest mill reports a drop of almost 30 per cent within the past few days," Daily Metal Trade reported today.

While nondefense steel demand is taking a nose dive, specifications for defense tonnage are expanding, the trade publication said, adding:

"However, swollen defense needs are not sufficient to offset the drop in civilian requirements and it is likely the huge steel mill order backlogs will begin to shrink noticeably shortly."

Member Firm Profits Small In First Half

Member firms of the stock exchange, in the aggregate, made a small profit from all types of operations during the first half of 1941, according to compilations made from data submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was learned yesterday. However, a majority of individual firms lost money, and firms that depended primarily upon security commission business were deeply in the red, the data revealed.

Reports were received from 561 of the 569 firms that were in business on June 30. Excluding the two large odd-lot houses, which were heavy losers, 299 firms lost $5,292,000, 14 firms broke even and 246 firms showed a net gain of $6,682,000, leaving a total net profit of $1,390,000.

A Deceptive Profit

Even this small "industry" profit, however, is deceptive, as many firm partners received no salaries or very reduced salaries, and the interest return on firm capital was at the rate of only 3.2 per cent. The data does not reflect income taxes.

Exchange member firms that actually received more of their income from noncommission activities (distributions, underwritings, etc.) than from exchange commissions did a lot better than firms which received 50 per cent or more of their income from commissions. Of 136 firms for which brokerage fees represented less than half of total income, 42 lost $851,000, three houses broke even and 91 had a total net profit of $4,906,000. These 136 houses showed an aggregate net profit of $4,055,000.

The vast majority of member firms (423 out of 561) received more than 50 per cent of gross income from exchange commissions. These houses were in the red to the amount of $2,665,000. Of the total of 423 firms, 237 lost $4,441,000, 11 broke even and 185 gained $1,776,000.

Breakdown of Income

A breakdown of income and expense items of the 559 firms shows that net commissions on stocks and bonds amounted to $27,472,000 during the first six months of 1941, or 40.9 per cent of total income. Net commodity commissions amounted to $4,721,000, or 7 per cent of income; underwriting and distributing profits to $13,069,000, or 19.5 per cent; interest on customers' accounts to $8,372,000, or 12.5 per cent, and profits from trading and dealer operations to $7,529,000, or 11.2 per cent.

Operating expenses of these member firms totaled $52,811,000, leaving a total of $14,319,000 to pay partners' salaries and interest on invested capital. Actual payments to partners in the six months totaled $7,606,000. Excluding inactive partners, the average payments received by the remaining 2,661 active partners amounted to $4,200 on a yearly basis. From this data it is evident that many partners received no salary at all, but data on how many were remunerated was not collected.

Grocers Hear Report On Newspaper Ads

Philadelphia, Sept. 18 (AP).—Newspaper advertisements of retail grocery stores are read regularly by 65 per cent of the Nation's housewives, L. O. Heideman, of Chicago, told the fifth annual convention of the Super Market Institute.

Heideman, vice president of A. C. Nielson Co., said his report, based on a survey by his firm, showed "regular reading of advertising is more prevalent among the low-income families."

"Thirty-nine per cent of the families read the advertisements exclusively in newspapers; 35 per cent read newspapers and other forms of advertising."

Iron Ore Consumption Reaches New Record

Cleveland, Sept. 18 (AP).—Consumption of Lake Superior iron ore during August reached a new high of 6,534,424 gross tons, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported today. This tops by 36,982 tons the previous monthly record of 6,497,442 tons set in July this year and compares with 5,700,743 tons in August, 1940.

Wholesale Commodity Index Continues Rise

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday the general level of wholesale commodity prices had increased .7 per cent for the week ended September 13.

The change raised the bureau's index of wholesale prices to 91.6 per cent of the 1926 average. A year ago the index stood at 77.9.

Profit Taking Cripples Stock Advance After Leaders Set New Highs on Move

New York, Sept. 18.—Profit cashing on Wednesday's brisk rally crippled the stock market today after many leaders had sprinted into new high ground for the year with gains of fractions to a point or so at the opening.

While there were few weak issues, there were enough fractional losers at the close to put the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down .1 of a point at 44. The composite jumped .5 of a point in the preceding session, best upturn since July 21.

Dealings, fast in the first hour, slackened later but transfers for the full proceedings totaled 790,865 shares. The turnover of the day before was 886,560, largest since July 29.

A slight turn for the worse in the German-Russian battle bulletins received the principal blame for the day's moderate setback. Business developments, including increased dividends and satisfactory earnings statements, tended to prop sentiment. Helpful also was the fact the tax bill was out of the way. Cheering were predictions that Federal price controls might be relaxed here and there in order to offset higher unit costs of some manufacturers due to curtailed output caused by defense shifts.

A les sthan seasonal increase in last week's freight loadings was undisturbing to the carriers. Most of which kept to a narrow area. The shipments aggregate of 116,212 cars was a new top since 1930.

Shares on the losing side included United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, Kennecutt, DuPont, Union Carbide, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft J. I. Case, United States Rubber and New York Shipbuilding.

Dow Chemical was an isolated soft spot, dropping 2¼ points in the wake of the announcement new common stock would be issued for subscription by present shareholders.

Consolidated Aircraft, strong performer recently, managed to hold a gain of ⅝. American & Foreign Power preferred was up 2 at a new 1941 high. Emerging with modest improvement was Woolworth, Chesapeake & Ohio, Texas Corporation and Westinghouse.

In an irregular Curb, American Gas was given a lift along with Lake Shore, Niagara Hudson Power and Singer Manufacturing declines were posted for Bell Aircraft, Republic Aviation, Humble Oil and Phoenix Securities. Volume here was around 151,000 shares versus 174,000 Wednesday.

Gains of fractions to more than a point in a selected group of rails and foreign issues helped the bond market keep an even course today.

Trading was moderately active at $7,359,850, par value, compared with $7,653,975 on Wednesday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails gained .3 of a point at 61.9, and the ten utilities added .2 of a point at 102.0. The other groups showed only minor changes.

Well up in front of the advancing contingent were Hudson Coal, 5s at 40⅞; Warren Bros. 6s at 77½! Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s at 85, and Northern Pacific, 4s at 70⅝. A half dozen issues of the Erie Railroad and its affiliates rose 1 to more than 2 points on fairly heavy turnover.

Foreign issues displaying climbing power included Poland 4½, Prague 7½s, Yokohama 6s, Oriental Development 6s, Antwerp 5s, Norway 4s, Argentine 4s and Canada 4s. Belgium 6s and Japan 6½s were lower.

United States Governments were quiet but maintained a steady undertone on both the stock exchange and over the counter.

Defense Bond Questionnaire

A—To make it as easy as possible for Americans everywhere to buy these stamps, which, as everyone knows, may be exchanged at many postoffices and banks for defense savings bonds.

A—The Treasury's Retail Advisory Committee, of which Benjamin H. Namm, of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, is chairman. Officers of 13 other great national retail organizations comprise the committee.

Note—To buy defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank or savings and loan association, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also, stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

Rail Loadings At 11-Year Top During Week

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 913,952 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 116,212 cars, or 14.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 109,687 cars, or 13.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 113,521 cars, or 14.2 per cent, compared with 1939.

Loadings were the highest for 1941 and the highest since the week ended November 2, 1930 when they totaled 934,715 cars. The previous high this year was 912,720 cars in the week ended August 30.

Atlanta, Sept. 18 (AP).—Railroad freight agents said today there would be no car shortage in the next three months despite a prediction by the Southeast shippers' advisory board that loadings would increase 11.4 per cent.

In a joint meeting to forecast commodity shipments in the last quarter of the year and arrange for prompt handling, representatves of 22 shipping industries and 25 railroads agreed that enough cars are available to give uninterrupted service.

Freight loading increases of 20 to 25 per cent were predicted for cement, coal and coke, crushed stone, sand and gravel, furniture and pulp paper products. Only cotton shippers foresaw a decrease in the next three months under last year's corresponding period.

Engineering Awards Decrease in Week

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Heavy engineering construction awards this week, totaling $120,315,000, were 14 per cent smaller than the previous week and .4 of 1 per cent less than the corresponding week of 1940, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Increased industrial construction boosted private awards 37 per cent above the week before, but the total was 22 per cent less than a year ago.

Public construction was 20 per cent smaller than the previous week, but 6 per cent greater than a year ago.

Machine Firm Votes First Cash Dividend

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Directors of E. W. Bliss Co., makers of munitions and metal working machinery, today declared a special dividend of $1 a common share—the first cash distribution since a 25-cent payment made July 1, 1931. A 2 per cent stock dividend was paid January 2, 1932.

The special dividend is payable October 31 to holders of record October 15.

Brokers' Loans Fall 109 Million in Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $336,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, a decrease of $109,000,000 from the previous week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $295,000,000.

Tool Industry Sets Shipments' Record

Cleveland, Sept. 18 (AP).—August machine tool shipments totaled $64,300,000, highest on record in the defense-busy industry, the National Machine Tool Builders' Association estimated today. These compared with $57,900,000 in the vacation month of July, $63,000,000 in June and $40,800,000 for August, 1940.

Eversharp, Inc., Cited

The Federal Trade Commission said yesterday it had issued a complaint charging Eversharp, Inc., of Chicago, with misrepresenting in advertising that its pencils are "guaranteed forever." The complaint contends, the commission said, that the company does not make a "genuine guarantee without limitation."

Year-Old Inter-American Coffee Pact Sours; Competition Ended but Price Chaos Still Exists

Rio de Janeiro (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Some coffee men are beginning to look on the year-old Inter-American coffee convention, originally designed to avert disastrous competition for coffee sales to the United States, as a Frankenstein monster.

The coffee agreement was adopted last November 28 when prices were plunging as a result of lost European markets. It divided among 14 Central and South American producers the United States annual consumption of 15,545,000 sacks of coffee.

The coffee growers' and exporters' plaint now is that such an agreement, in ending competition, should also have fixed prices.

Brazil and Colombia, which between them were given 80 per cent of all United States coffee business, have attempted to fix prices. They weren't afraid of losing business, because the coffee agreement guaranteed them a market.

There was a loophole. The coffee convention last month hiked quotas a flat 20 per cent for August and September—the new quota season begins October 1.

Brazil and Colombia between them have 12 votes in the convention, the United States has 12, and the other 12 coffee-growing countries have 1 each.

It was to the advantage of the minor growers to hike the quota, they felt, because the price minimums set by Brazil and Colombia tended to make buyers hunt other sources of supply and the little nations had coffee for sale. Today coffee exports from Brazil are negligible, although speculators are storing coffee in hopes the United States will be forced to buy at the higher price levels.

The quotas for the year beginning October 1 will decide that. If they are reduced to the old allotment, Brazilians believe they can make their minimum prices stick. If the quota is continued on the 20 per cent larger basis, or boosted further, Brazil and Colombia may be forced to cut prices or lose their markets.

Observers here are shy about predicting. Many feel the quota increase will be continued; a few feel the United States will "pay in the emergency."

She is the principal provider of other strategic materials and is the biggest Western Hemisphere customer of the United States. And, since 50 per cent of Brazil's economy is based on coffee, a slump in sales would be serious to Brazil and cut her purchasing power.

The amount of sales Brazil and Colombia might lose through continuation of the higher quota would not be large—about 800,000 bags out of the 14,800,000 they are allotted under the present increase, coffee experts estimated.

But many feel that it will be large enough to kill the minimum prices order in fear of further quota boosts.

None predict complete abandonment of the quota allotment plan, because most seem to think the minimum prices will be dropped in the face of a possible return to the coffee chaos of 1939 and 1940.

Quota Change Likely, Coffee Prices Surge

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Coffee traders undertook heavy covering operations today on the news the Inter-American Coffee Board would consider rescinding the 20 per cent quota increase and, despite profit-taking which caused a late reaction, Santos futures ended 6 to 10 points higher on sale of 21,250 bags; Rio closed unchanged to 6 lower on sale of 1,000 bags.

A. I. B. Class Hears Young At Graduation

Prizes and certificates were awarded to the graduating class of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at annual commencement exercises last night at the Willard Hotel. Featured speaker was John Russell Young, chairman of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia., who gave a brief inspirational address.

Reilly Also Speaks

Other speakers included John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank and first vice president of the District Bankers Association; John M. Christie, assistant cashier of the Riggs National Bank and president of Washington chapter, and Wilbur M. Baughman, of the Federal Trade Commission, who represented the faculty.

Cash prizes were awarded to those graduates who attained the highest averages for the required courses for the standard and prestandard certificates. Mr. Christie made the following awards:

In the standard certificate group, first prize to Miss Helen V. Dolan, board of governors of the Federal Reserve System; second prize to Joseph Loughran, Riggs National Bank, and third price to Frank H. Weaver, the City Bank.

In the prestandard group, first prize to David E. Rozelle, Security Savings & Commercial Bank; second prize to James C. Foster, National Savings & Trust Co., and third prize to Fred Harriman, McLachlen Banking Corporation.

Standard course, the highest grade prize to Miss Helen V. Dolan, board of governors of the Federal Reserve System. The name of Joseph Loughran, Riggs National Bank, will be engraved on the W. W. Spaid Memorial for having attained highest averages in the prestandard and standard courses.

Week's Clearings Set 4-Year High

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Bank clearings for 23 leading United States cities for the week ended Wednesday totaled $7,350,476,000, the largest for any week since March, 1937, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Excluding New York City, clearings for the remaining 22 were the biggest for any week since July, 1930.

The 23-city aggregate in the latest period represented a rise of $1,660,674,000 or 29.2 per cent over the preceding week and a gain of 32.6 per cent over the $5,541,494,000 for the like week of 1940.

Pacific Sinking Raises Risk Rate Question

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Depredations of a German raider in the Pacific raised the question in New York marine insurance circles today of whether war risk insurance rates would be boosted.

American underwriters, it was learned, lost about two million dollars when the Kota Nopan, a Dutch vessel, was sunk recently while carrying a cargo to the United States from the Netherlands East Indies.

Insurance men say they are afraid the raider sank at least two other ships headed for the United States from the Far East.

Bank of England Elects

The Associated Press index of wholesale spot prices of 35 commodities declined to 93.16 per cent of the 1926 average from 93.31 per cent the previous day.

Sugar Shipments Gain Million Tons In Eight Months

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that refined sugar delivered to the American market under its control program by manufacturers and importers, exclusive of mainland cane mills, totaled 5,528,233 short tons, raw value, during the first eight months of this year.

Deliveries during the corresponding period last year totaled 4,423,592 short tons. Complete figures were not available on deliveries of mainland cane mills.

The August deliveries totaled 819,203 short tons compared with 644,574 in the like month last year. The eight-month deliveries included 3,741,842 short tons from refiners, 1,356,398 from beet processors and 429,993 from importers.

Refiners held stocks of 768,498 short tons on August 31 compared with 934,005 on the corresponding date last year.

Industry Index In August Sets Record at 161%

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that new record highs in American industrial production were reached in August and early September as factories raced to meet defense deliveries schedules.

The board said that in August production was rated at the record high index figure of 161 per cent of the 1935-1939 average.

"Industrial activity increased in August and the first half of September," the board said.

The July index was 160 and in August, 1940, it was 124. The index is adjusted to take care of seasonal differences between months.

In August, the board explained, "there were sharp further advances in the machinery, aircraft, shipbuilding and railroad equipment industries.

"Lumber production also increased, while furniture production which had been unusually large in July, showed less than the customary seasonal rise in August. Output of steel and non-ferrous metals continued at near-capacity rates."

Automobile production declined because some plants closed to change over to new models. Cotton and silk mills showed some reduction, but rayon output remained at peak levels. Some output was higher, but was not up to the usual seasonal gain. Rubber consumption decreased because of governmental restrictions.

Crude petroleum production set a record high, and other mineral output was unusually large.

Japanese Helping Defense Stamp Sale

This bit of news arrived yesterday by courtesy of the National Retail Dry Goods Association:

"In Honolulu, Hawaii, interest in 'Retailers for Defense' week is so widespread and enthusiastic that Japanese and Chinese merchants are actvicly participating in the sale of defense savings stamps."

The Japanese Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu, said the N. R. D. G. A., lined up 1000 Japanese firms to aid in selling the United States defense stamps.

Ship Merger Approved

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Stockholders of U. S. Lines, Inc., today approved the proposed merger of the company into U. S. Lines Co. Approval also was given to proposals to vote the junior preference stock of U. S. Lines Co. in favor of the purchase of certain assets of International Mercantile Marine Co.

Don't worry about rent, BUILD NOW! Come in, see how our plan can make you forget about rent increases. The smooth operation of this plan will make you wonder why you haven't owned your home before now.

Belligerence Of Dodgers Brings 6-5 Loss

For seven innings Tobacco Johnny Lanning, a pitcher who has known his share of hard luck this season, pitched grand ball. He allowed only two singles and one of inese was a grounder that took a terrible hop and hit Second Baseman Stu Martin in the face, knocking him out.

In the meantime the Pirates piled into their old jinx, fat, 40-year-old Freddie Fitzsimmons, for four runs on a burst of five hits in the fourth.

Elbie Fletcher opened with a single and sped to third when Ed Stewart's smash took a bad bounce past Dolph Camilli for a double. Then Di Maggio slammed a single to center to score both and he himself reached second on the throw in. He moved on to third as Garms grounded out and came home on a single by Martin. Fitzsimmons threw out Lopez, but Anderson beat out a hit to deep short and Martin slid safely across the plate as Camilli threw wild.

Fitzsimmons was removed for a pinchhitter in the next inning and escaped being charged with the loss, thus maintaining unbroken his string of 13 victories over the Pirates in the last three seasons.

French Charges Batter

Lefty Larry French, a one-time Pirate, went to the mound for the Dodgers in Fitz' place and furnished the fans with a little interlude in the seventh. He hit Frank Gustine on the arm with a pitch and Gustine threw, or let slip, his bat straight at the pitcher. French came marching menacingly toward the Pirate, but Magerkurth placed his big bulk in the way and prevented an outbreak at that time.

Thus the two foes came fighting up to the eighth inning, with Lanning looking stronger as the game wore along.

He got the first two batters out in the eighth, one of them being Pinchhitter Augie Galan, who had broken up yesterday's struggle in the ninth. But the Dodgers weren't down. Dixie Walker caromed a double into left field and scored on a single by Billy Herman. Pete Reiser singled and Camilli singled, scoring Herman and placing Reiser on third.

Truett (Rip) Sewell came on duty and Medwick greeted him on his first pitch with a looping single to center, scoring Reiser and sending Camilli racing to third. Then Cookie Lavagetto topped off the cannonade with a double to left for two more runs.

In the ninth, however, Sewell set the Dodgers down in order, and received credit for the victory.

Durocher Wild

After the game several Dodgers crowded about Magerkurth under the grand stand and, he said, resumed "vile personal abuse." Eddie Stewart, scrappy little umpire who helped handle the game, broke up the gathering.

Bill Klem, veteran umpire in chief, witnessed the game from the grand stand and said he was making a personal investigation. Magerkurth telephoned a full report to President Ford Frick, of the National League, and then started a lengthy written report.

Record Enrollment Expected by D. C. Area Colleges

Despite inroads of the draft on last year's college populations, record numbers of students are indicated this year by registrations this week at universities in the Washington area.

A schedule of registration days at local colleges follows:

George Washington University—Upperclassmen today and tomorrow. American University—Former students tomorrow and Monday. Freshmen will register on Tuesday.

Wilson Teachers College will register freshmen on Monday and upperclassmen Tuesday and Wednesday. Catholic University—All students Monday and Tuesday. Maryland University—Upperclassmen today and tomorrow. Freshmen registered yesterday and Wednesday.

Georgetown University—School of arts and sciences will register sophomores and juniors Monday and seniors Wednesday. The school of medicine and dentistry, upperclassmen today. The school for foreign service is still taking late registrations, it was said.

250,000 to Get Jobs in 4 Months

Copyright by New York Times

More than 250,000 workers will be required within the next four months in a group of 9000 plants manufacturing vital defense materials, Paul V. McNutt, the Federal Security administrator, announced yesterday. In all, approximately 272,800 anticipated hirings have been reported to the board by employers, more than one-half of these workers to be taken into the airplane and shipbuilding industries.

Conversation Piece at Dinner

New York, Sept. 18.—We had dinner at Toots Shor's the other night with Mrs. Lou Gehrig, Christy Walsh and the Jimmy Youngs. Jimmy Young is the Button-Bright I. N. S. correspondent who was tossed into a Japanese sneezer for telling the truth. Mrs. Young is a good-looking black-haired girl who ably did Jimmy's work while he was in cold storage, whenever she wasn't raising hell with the authorities. You know Walsh, and, of course, the gentle widow of the late great first baseman.

CONSIDINE

Eleanor Gehrig was just back from Hollywood. The script which she and Paul Gallico fashioned around the most poignant story in baseball history is now completed. It was tough on her. What she had to say about her work out there will be of interest to you:

Gehrig A la Gallico

"Paul's done a wonderful script," she said. "He was just the right person . . . wonderful writer, a great one for blending the facts with the right kind of fictional flavoring. And he knew Lou. What he's done is what I wanted done. This may not be a great movie. You can never tell. But I know a lot of hard work will go into it . . . Real sincere work. It won't be trite, I know that. The hero won't spit tobacco juice, hit the home run and win the girl. I have an idea that it might be a shock to a lot of people when it comes out. For this won't be a picture about the Lou of the record books. This will be a picture about Lou, himself, and what he was like, what he thought about . . .

"That's why I hope Gary Cooper can do it. What does it matter if he isn't the ball player Lou was? Who is? The important thing is capturing the spirit of Lou, and I don't know anyone who could do it as well. I don't know Cooper well, of course, but he has a lot of Lou's manner, and Lou's way of expressing himself, and Lou's outlook.

I didn't go out there on one of those ballyhoo trips. To start with, I didn't want to go at all. But when I finally did, I worked. I had an office next to Gallico's. We'd begin working every morning at ten and keep at it until four. I guess you'd call it a long interview. I'd ramble on and Paul'd take notes. We both felt that the place to end the story would be at the Yankee Stadium, you know, on that July Fourth Gehrig Day . . . Mr. Goldwyn thinks so, too. That's what first interested him in the picture—seeing the newsreels of Gehrig Day."

Jimmy Young said, "my wife and I met you and Lou in Tokyo, Mrs. Gehrig. That was 1934 when Connie Mack brought his all-star team out there. What a trip that was! I've been around the Far East a long time, and I know that there's never been a demonstration, and never a reception, compared to the one the Japanese people gave those ball players.

Roughing It in the Japanese Manner

"You wives didn't make the trip up to Asahigawa for that game, did you? What a place! It's about as far north as you can go in Japan, without landing in Siberia. There's only one bathtub in the whole town, and only one European bed. Of course, 'the honorable Mr. Ruth' got first crack at both. He got into the bathtub and darn near all the water went out of the tub in a big wave. He got into bed, too, but he couldn't take it. It was a relic from the Russo-Japanese war. It had been captured off some Russian admiral's battleship, and had gotten pretty lumpy in the meantime. Everybody darn near froze, for it snowed out the first game. And there wasn't much to eat except raw fish and bean curds."

"I'll never forget how gentle those people were," Mrs. Gehrig said. "The way they stood in the streets by the hour, to watch the players go by. The way they turned out for games as if every game was a World Series contest. And the polite way they clapped, instead of cheered, and the way they bowed to the umpires and never thought of protesting a decision. How did they become what they've become?"

"I guess I covered the best-dressed ball game of all time," the foreign correspondent laughed. "It was in Dairen in 1928. There were 20,000 spectators, mostly men. Every fan there appeared in striped trousers, morning coat and a derby—except the members of the diplomatic and consular set. They wore top hats. It was the craziest thing I ever saw. You see, Prince Kuni, the Emperor's father-in-law, announced the night before that he would attend the game. So everybody had to dress."

"Wasn't there some trouble about us after we left Japan?" Mrs. Gehrig asked Young.

"Yeah . . . there was. Some gang tried to assassinate the Japanese newspaper publisher who brought the American team over there. They claimed that you all had put evil thoughts into the minds of the Japanese They claimed you had taken their minds off the war in China, so they tried to rub out the responsible party. I picked him up out of the gutter, where they left him."

Community Chest Drive Leaders To Meet Today

Leaders of the forthcoming Community Chest drive will gather for their first precampaign meeting at 11:30 a. m. today in the board room of the American Security & Trust Building.

In calling the meeting of the campaign committee, Chairman J. Clifford Folger announced that "both assets and liabilities must be carefully weighed" in preparing the vast volunteer organization to do a bigger job under "new and trying circumstances" of this "boom town."

A series of Chest-sponsored radio quiz programs, to be heard Fridays at 7:30 p. m. over WINX, will begin tonight. A quiz master will attempt to stump Washington experts in social welfare with questions of "What would you do?" in various situations involving people's troubles.

Capt. Stetson, Hat Heir, Dies in Plane

Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept. 18.—Capt. Stuart Carlisle Stetson, 36, grandson of John B. Stetson, the hat manufacture, was killed today in the collision of two planes on a runway of the United States Naval Air Station Field.

Capt. Stetson, reserve officer in the United States Marine Corps, had been stationed here since August 1 as an aviation instructor.

His home was in Elkins Park, Pa., Philadelphia suburb. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stetson, jr.; his wife, the former Miss Anne Denny, of Jenkintown, Pa.; a son and a daughter survive.

George A. Gay, Former Sailor, Now Heads G.A.R.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 18 (AP).—A 93-year-old ex-sailor, George A. Gay, of Nashua, N. H., today was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Gay, who succeeds William Nixon, of Jewell, Kans., served in the Civil War with the Atlantic blockade fleet of the Union forces.

Thomas Ridenour, of Crestline, Ohio., the G. A. R. chief of staff, was chosen senior vice commander in chief by the 83 delegates voting.

John S. Dumser, of Oakland, Calif., was selected as junior vice commander in chief, while the veterans reelected Dr. Edward H. Cowan, of Crawfordsville, Ind., as surgeon general and the Rev. Joshua C. Pearce, of Denver, Colo., as chaplain in chief.

The ladies of the G. A. R. elected Miss Ethelyn Smith, of Omaha, president.

District Deprived Of Another House Legislative Day

The District which has been deprived, for one reason or another, of every regular legislative day in the House since July 14, was denied another District Day yesterday.

House leaders of both parties agreed that no legislation will be taken up before September 29, the next District Day. The decision was taken after Representative Thill (Republican), of Wisconsin, objected to Majority Leader McCormack's unanimous-consent request for a series of three-day recesses.

Nats Overcome 4-Run Lead, Beat Browns game's most important blow, though. As a precautionary measure, with the Nats leading, 7-6, and the bases full in the eighth, Cramer crashed the Nats' fifth two-bagger of the game into right field to give Carrasquel the three-run lead that he needed so painfully in the ninth.

Until that ninth, Carrasquel was doing a competent job of it in keeping the Nats in the ball game after Hudson had given up five runs in the first three innings. He surrendered only one run from the third through the eighth. He had two out in the ninth when his troubles started.

Bob Muncrief, pitching like a base ingrate, tossed off his 4-0 lead by the fifth inning when he was finally shelled from the box when the Nats came up with four big runs. However, it was a pitching experiment by Rookie Manager Luke Sewell in the eighth that cost his club the ball game. He introduced a young left-hander named Clarence Iotta, from the Northeast Arkansas League, and Iotta was not one iota of help to the Browns. He filled the bases before getting anybody out, and Cramer's double did the damage.

The Browns lashed out with four hits against Hudson in the opening inning to get their 4-0 lead, and they picked up another run in the third with the help of Cullenbine's double. Hudson was wild and behind on the count throughout his short stay on the mound.

The Nats picked up a run in the second inning on a walk to Travis, Vernon's single and Ortiz' long fly, and in the third they cut the Browns' lead to 5-3, after Pinchhitter Buddy Byer walked. Layne also drew a walk, Travis got a run home with a double against the right-field wall and Ortiz got another run home on a cheap hit—a ground ball that hopped so high Third Baseman Cliff lost it in the sun, honest.

Carrasquel gave up a run in the fourth that upped the Browns' lead to 6-3, and it was all beginning to look very futile for the Nats when they suddenly crashed through Muncrief in the fifth. Heffner muffed Cramer's grounder as a starter, Layne sliced a double to left, Travis whipped one to right and two runs were home. Travis scored from third on Artiz' grounder to Berardino whose throw to the plate was high, and a bit later Jake Early doubled to the wall in right for the fourth run of the inning.

A superb fielding play by Jimmy Bloodworth on Ferrell's grounder in the fifth saved a St. Louis run after Grace had tripled and in the eighth, after Ferrell tripled into the leftfield corner with one out, Vernon made a clever play on McQuinn's grounder to hold the runner on third.

Young Iotta got in trouble in the eighth by walking Evans, whereupon Bloodworth moved him to third with a single to right. Carrasquel beat out a hit to Berardino that merely filled the bases and a bit later Cramer slammed his important two-bagger that moved the Nats' lead to 9-6.

All of a sudden in the ninth the Browns got tough with two out. Cullenbine doubled to right and so did Grace. Berardino beat out a hit to Travis and when Ferrell singled for the fourth straight hit Carrasquel got the hook and Masterson the job. With the tying run on third, Masterson got rid of Lucadello on strikes, which made the 5000 ladies' day customers happy.

singled and Demaree broke his batting drought with a home run.

Crabtree's triple hit the edge of the right-field pavilion roof and the Cardinals argued it was a home run, although the ball had bounded back into the playing field. After some umpire indecision and an inspection trip to the pavilion, the triple ruling stood. Salvo bluffed Crabtree back to third on Frank Crespi's tap to the mound, but Marion banged his scoring hit for the tally.

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

THAT'S STRANGE! I COULDA SWORN I JUST SAW MYSELF GO INTO THE HOUSE—— BUT IT COULDN'TA BEEN ME—I'M STANDING RIGHT HERE!
I BETTER FORGET ABOUT TESTING MY DISGUISE ON GWEN. HERE COMES THE BUS——AND I'VE GOT TO LOOK FOR SOAPY GINCHLE!
THIS IS AS FAR AS THE BUS GOES! COOTS JUNCTION IS TWO MILES DOWN THAT ROAD!
THANK YOU!
WHAT'S COME OVER, ODD, GRANDMA?
GIMME AN ASH TRAY! I AIN'T GONNA STAMP THIS CIGAR OUT ON THE RUG—I GOT MY NEW SHOES ON!

JOE PALOOKA — Step on It — BY HAM FISHER

EASY--- RIGHT DOWN TO THE WORKIN' PRESS.
PAL'OOKA TOOK A COUNT OF FOUR AND GOT TO HIS FEET---BUT AS DILL RUSHED IN FOR A QUICK FINISH THE BELL RANG--THIS WAS THE SEVENTH FOLKS AND IT LOOKS BAD FOR THE ARMY --- HEY-IS THIS THE LAST ROUND OF TH' SEMI-FINAL?
NO. THIS IS THE SEVENTH ROUND OF THE MAIN BOUT.
HOLY SMOKES! HOLY SMOKES--
STEP ON IT!
THERE'S SOMETHING GOING ON IN THE BACK FOLKS-MUST BE A FIGHT AMONG SOME OF THE FANS---POLICE AND M.P.'S ARE COMING DOWN THE AISLES---THERE'S THE BELL FOR THE EIGHTH--

WINNIE WINKLE — Mistaken Identity — BY BRANNER

WHAT'S THE IDEA-PUSHING ME OUT IN TH' KITCHEN AN' LEAVIN' WINNIE ALONE TO ENTERTAIN MR. MANLEY?
GOSH, MAW, GIVE HIM A CHANCE! JUST THINK-A BANK PRESIDENT FOR A SON-IN-LAW!
WHY, YOU OLD FOOL--WINNIE'S STILL MARRIED TO BILL AND DAN'S JUST A GOOD FRIEND WHO'S TRYING TO HELP WINNIE IN HER HOUR OF NEED!
OH, YEAH? LET'S LISTEN TO THEM AN' I'LL PROVE IT TO YOU--
YOU'RE THE MOST ADORABLE GIRL I'VE EVER MET-LET ME TAKE YOU IN MY ARMS, MY PET--
-YOU'RE THE SWEETEST, THING-KITCHY-KITCHY-KOO--

SUPERMAN — Reunion — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

THE DEATH OF SLAG HAS FREED LOIS FROM HER TRANCE....
WH-WHERE AM I? AND CLARK?? WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO HIM?
STREAKING BACK IN THRU THE WINDOW OF THE LOCKED ROOM IN SLAG'S HIDEAWAY, SUPERMAN SWIFTLY DONS HIS OUTER GARMENTS ONCE MORE.
FOOTSTEPS APPROACHING THE DOOR! I MAY STILL HAVE TIME TO PUT THE TORN WINDOW BACK IN PLACE!
FINDING THE KEY IN THE DOOR, LOIS UNLOCKS IT....
AT HIS SECRET HEADQUARTERS, RALPH ROLAND FUMES LIKE A CAGED TIGER....
BEATEN BY SUPERMAN AGAIN! CHARLIE, I WANT YOU TO SEND OUT A CALL TO THE REMAINING MEMBERS OF "THE SCIENTISTS OF SUDDEN DEATH"! THEY'RE TO ASSEMBLE HERE AT ONCE!
RIGHT, BOSS!

The Post Radio Highlights

7 p. m., WRC—The Cities Service Concert: Lucille Manners sings "Il Bacio," by Arditi, and "Annie Laurie;" Ross Graham offers the Tosti song, "Parted," and the orchestra, under Frank Black, plays Lecuona's "Andalucia," Moszkowski's "Malaguena" and "Serenade," by Kress.

7 p. m., WJSV—Frances Starr plays the mother role she made famous on Broadway in the radio adaptation of "Claudia and David."

8 p. m., WJSV—It's back to the slums for Sylvia Sidney, who has a knack for playing poor, downtrodden girl roles. Tonight she is heard in "Angels With Dirty Faces" over the Philip Morris Playhouse.

9:30 p. m., WMAL—A medley from "Madama Butterfly," arranged for four pianos, is played by the First Piano Quartet.

Listen! with Glynn
If you happen to be a Ginny Simms fan, and it's to be supposed that a great many of you are—she being a vocalist of great popular repute—we presume you'll be both pleased and displeased by the fact that she has a new radio program of her own which you'll hear over WJSV and CBS at 8:55 tonight.
Reason for the pleasure will be that you'll be hearing Ginny, and reason for the displeasure will be that you'll be hearing Ginny for only 5 minutes. For that's the length of the program—from 8:55 to 9 p. m. It's probably the shortest full-length musical program on record. And that's all; don't ask us to explain it. Ginny, who's a pert part of Kay Kyser's band, will be singing from Hollywood and will be heard at the same time every Friday night.
There are a couple of other changes in WJSV's schedule tonight which you should know about. "First Nighter," the dramatic series which has proved its worth by remaining on CBS for six or seven years, switches from a Tuesday night spot. And you'll be hearing it in the period immediately preceding Ginny Simms. Tonight's original play, starring, of course, Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne, is titled "Husband Below Deck" and is a comedy-romance about a couple who decided to take separate vacations, but wound up on the same cruise boat. "Hollywood Premiers" is to be heard a half-hour later than usual, at 9 p. m.

Contract Bridge

Here is a brilliant squeeze play developed by Jacoby on today's hand to win his bid at seven clubs.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

♠ A 4 3
♡ A K Q 4
◇ 9
♣ 9 7 6 3 2

♠ K 9 8 6 — ♡ 7 3 — ◇ K Q J — ♣ 10 8 5 2

♠ J 7 5 2 — ♡ J 10 9 8 — ◇ 7 6 4 3 — ♣ 4

♠ Q 10 — ♡ 6 5 2 — ◇ A — ♣ A K Q J 10 8 5

Jacoby

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	4 ◇	6 ♣	Pass
7 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ◇

A plain Vienna Coup—that is, the cashing of a high card, establishing the next ranking card of the suit in the adversary's hand later to squeeze him of it—was inadequate for the success of this contract. Ossie had to transpose the pressure from one opponent's hand to the other by first forcing out the high card and promoting a card of lesser value in the hand of the opposite defender. With the important cards held by the player he desired, he could go ahead and execute the squeeze.

From the bidding, Ossie placed West with the king of spades, the only missing high card of any importance except for the diamond suit, else he wouldn't have such a strong vulnerable overcall.

West opened with the diamond king, which declarer won with his singleton ace. He saw that his contract was easy if the adverse hearts broke 3-3, as dummy's fourth heart would provide a discard for a losing spade. An uneven distribution of hearts was expected, however, because of West's long diamond suit, so Jacobuy decided to try another plan.

The fourth heart or a second spade might be made by a squeeze, declarer reasoned, but not by the ordinary play of the Vienna coup cashing the ace of hearts. In that case East, having four hearts, couldn't be squeezed, as with his partner holding the spade king East could throw off his spades and protect his hearts. If East also had control of the spade suit as well as hearts, he could be squeezed.

Jacoby saw that his only chance of making the slam was for West to have the spade king and East the spade jack and four hearts, in which case he could transfer control of the spade suit from West to East. He, therefore, drew the one outstanding trump and then laid down the queen of spades. West was forced to cover and South won with dummy's ace. All the trumps but one were played out, leaving this situation:

♠ 4 — ♡ A K Q 4 — ◇ None — ♣ None

♠ 9 8 7 — ♡ None — ◇ Q J — ♣ None

♠ J — ♡ J 10 9 — ◇ None — ♣ None

♠ 10 — ♡ 6 5 2 — ◇ None — ♣ 5

The lead of the last trump squeezed East, who could not hold both his high spade and his heart protection. If he threw a heart, dummy's four hearts won; if a spade, Jacoby made the spade ten and three top hearts.

Britons Tell Of Voluntary Labor Pacts

A delegation of British industrialists and labor leaders arrived in Washington yesterday to get their bearings before starting on a tour of the United States. They came over at the invitation of OPM to study American industrial methods and relationships.

With William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, bosses of OPM, looking on, the Britons held a press conference yesterday afternoon. They were asked about the British arrangement whereby labor foregoes the right to strike and management the right to fire.

Will Lawther, president of the Mine Workers Federation of Great Britain, spoke up to say that the coal miners had voluntarily entered into this agreement, hoping thereby to "stick it into Hitler."

Would Be 'Treason'

"To strike during wartime," Britain's John L. Lewis said, "would be nothing less than treason."

The other labor leaders and the industrialists nodded in agreement. What, the delegation was asked later, did Britain think of the labor picture in the United States?

"That is generally the process of variation," he said, laughing.

Gained in Influence

Lawther agreed that British labor had gained great influence in the government since the outbreak of the war.

"Will British labor be able to hold on to those gains?" he was asked.

"If they don't," he said, grinning, "there will be trouble."

Lawther disclosed that the Trade Union League in Britain had invited Russian trade unions to form an Anglo-Russian trade council. Not only that, he said, but his miners' federation had contributed 75,000 pounds to the Russian miners.

"This," he said, "was for medical supplies and also in appreciation of what the Russian miners gave us in the general strike of 1926, which was a million pounds."

Backs Any Hitler Foe

He said that British labor was for anybody who was against Hitler.

J. S. Turner, a coal operator, sat next to Lawther at the press conference, and answered some of the questions. He said that the British were confident the Russians would be able to hold out. Asked why Britain had not opened a "second front" to help the Russians, he said:

"Everybody is desirous of striking at Germany as quickly and as often as possible. We are all united behind Mr. Churchill and we trust him to do the right thing at the right time."

Turner said that his wife was active in the Bundles for Britain organization back home. He said she had asked him to appeal to Americans to attach their names and addresses to bundles so that the recipients could write them letters of appreciation.

Osteopath Gets Two Years in Flogging Case

By the Associated Press

Bolivar, Mo., Sept. 18.—A Polk County jury decreed two years in prison today for Dr. Robert Murrell for his part in the cat o' nine tails flogging of an Ozark guide once accused of raping the 35-year-old osteopath's fiancee.

The jury convicted Dr. Murrell of felonious assault. He had pleaded innocent by reason of temporary insanity.

Miss Aldythea Keeth, 26, was convicted in June of common assault and fined $100. Miss Hilda Rhoads, 25, Dr. Murrell's fiancee, will be tried next month on a felonious assault charge.

In his argument today, Vane Thurlo, of the prosecution staff, termed Miss Rhoads "the Cleopatra of the Ozarks."

Witnesses at the trials of Dr. Murrell and Miss Keeth testified the Eldon, Mo., osteopath invited Max Caldwell, 23, to the Lakeside cabin of the two school teachers for a drink last May 1, then kept a pistol pointed at the guide while the young women lashed him.

Dr. Murrell's trial was brought here on a change of venue. His $5000 bond was continued pending a motion for new trial.

NEW HELP FOR RUNDOWN FOLKS

Who "Feel Old" From Need of Iron & Vitamin B1

A large number of people do not get enough iron to make red blood; and they also fail to get enough vital Vitamin B1.

As a result, these folks are in poor health. They have too little energy or appetite. They sleep restlessly and often develop certain types of nervousness and neuritis. Their shortage of Vitamin B1 indirectly may affect the glands, stomach, intestines and other organs.

Men and women can now obtain extra iron and extra Vitamin B1 by taking delicious "ENRICH," a new diet-aid which is helping thousands who formerly felt played out and tired from insufficient iron and Vitamin B1. Just to show you how much iron and Vitamin B1 is in ENRICH read this:—You would have to eat 3½ pounds of beefsteak or 7 lbs. of spinach every day to get ONE OUNCE OF ENRICH. And besides you would have to eat ¼ pound baker's yeast every day to get the same Vitamin B1 now obtained daily from ENRICH. ENRICH tastes good and often produces an amazing improvement in a short time. Costs but a few cents a day; contains no alcohol or stimulant drugs. Does not blacken teeth. Gives satisfaction or money refunded.

Wickard Calls For Gigantic Food Stocks

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said today that quotas for American food distribution next year include the beginning of food stock piles to feed European people after the war.

"Our influence at the peace table will be greatly strengthened if we are able to provide plenty of food," the Secretary told a regional gathering of 400 agricultural officials. 'I feel strongly the necessity of our having these stock piles.

"Will Write the Peace"

"Food will win the war and write the peace."

In all probability, Wickard asserted, "the United States will emerge from the war the world's strongest nation. . . . At the conference table, we will hold the best hand. If we don't play it right, it's our own fault."

The wheat stock pile, he said, has grown to a two-year supply and stored cotton represents a one-year supply, "but we don't have the desired stock piles of many other products, and we want to start building them."

The agricultural officials came from 12 States to aid the Government's drive for huge increases in next year's food production.

Milk and Meat Deficiency

Milk and meat are the two chief shortages under the lend-lease program, Wickard said. Since there was no time for large increases in the number of dairy cows, chickens and pigs, the Government program called for greater milk production from existing cows, more eggs from hens, and better fattening of hogs.

The 400 State and county agricultural agents at the meeting here will talk over production goals with Wickard, then go home to canvass every farmer in each county. With the aid of State agricultural colleges, farmers will be shown how they can make more money by increasing the products needed under the defense program.

Next year's production goal is 2 per cent over this year's all-time record.

1938 'Purge' Wasn't in Vain, Roosevelt Says in Magazine

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt's personal explanation of his participation in some primary campaigns in 1938—an act criticized in some quarters as a "purge"—is that his chief interest was to continue the Democratic Party "as the liberal, forward-looking, progressive party in the United States."

Writing in the current issue of Collier's Magazine, the President said today in his third article of a series that he was not interested in personalities, or in particular measures, but in "seeing to it that the Democratic Party and the Republican Party should not be merely tweedledum and tweedledee to each other."

Says His Name Was Misused

"The primary campaigns in which I actively spoke," he said, "consisted of one Congressional campaign in my own home State (New York), one Senatorial campaign in my other home State of Georgia, one in Kentucky . . . and one Senatorial campaign in the State of Maryland, where I was accompanied by the chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"It must be remembered, also, that in some of these States, and in some other States, a definite misuse was being made of my name by one candidate or the other, falsely claiming that I favored his election. Under such circumstances I exercised my clear right to speak out in the interest of truth."

"Struggle Not in Vain".

Asserting that in these primary speeches he made it clear he was not trying to dictate to the people of any State as to how they should vote, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"What I was trying to do was to impress upon them the necessity of voting for liberal candidates—if they wanted a continuation of the liberal kind of government which they had had since 1933.

"Looking back on the domestic issues of 1937 and 1938, there is much satisfaction in realizing that the American people, as a whole, were not taken in by the bitter accusations and dire predictions of those who cried 'dictatorship,' 'imminent bankruptcy,' or 'strangulation of business.'

"The political struggle of 1938 had not been in vain. Liberalism in government was still triumphant."

Constitutional Rule Periled, Martin Warns

By the United Press

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 18.—The end of constitutional government in the United States is threatened by the "death sentence" passed on small business and the "reckless spending of money for nondefense needs," Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., warned tonight before a Republican rally here.

The Republican leader in the House of Representatives asserted that the "balanced constitutional government of a strong executive, an independent legislative branch and a free judiciary threatens soon to be only a memory" and "private enterprise is faced with grave danger of extinction."

Strongly criticizing what he called the "virtual death sentence" which has been passed on small business, Martin declared that large industries have been permitted to operate on a 50 per cent basis, dividing output between defense and civilian business, but "no such consideration has been given to the little man."

"Without powerful influence he is shoved off the road and allowed to close down or find something to do which will not require anything that might be needed for defense," the Republican Party leader said. "We do not improve the morale of a nation by depriving millions of employment and delivering a knockout blow to hundreds of small towns and villages."

"The planners of the new era for America are aware of what will come with the destruction of small enterprises," Martin said. "One of them has frankly stated he would like to see 80 concerns do all the business of this country, for as he remarked, it would be easy then for those in charge of the Government to take over industry completely."

Asserting that the end of the war will be the signal to begin "a drive to persuade the people of this country to put all the rest of the world on American relief rolls," Martin said the United States itself will face problems that "threaten to destroy the American way of life."

Cut in WPA Workers At School Is Opposed

Need of additional WPA workers at the Deanwood school to serve lunches to students was expressed last night at a meeting of the Eastland Gardens Civic Association.

E. F. Harris, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, opposed the curtailment of WPA workers at the school. He said that the workers serve lunches to about 200 students daily and it is imperative that they be retained.

Draft Board Rules Still Apply To Over-Age Registration

Although deferred by law from actual military training, Selective Service registrants who are more than 28 must still conform to orders from their local boards, William E. Leahy, District Selective Service director, warned yesterday.

While the recently adopted amendment to the Selective Service Act precludes induction of those men who were 28 years of age or older on July 1, 1941, these registrants must fill out and return questionnaires at the request of local boards, Leahy pointed out. Any registrant who fails to do so, he said, may be considered as a delinquent and be liable to fine or imprisonment or both.

It is intended, he added, that hereafter registrants who are deferred by reason of age will continue to be classified in the same manner as other registrants, except that they will be given no physical examination. Also, those overage registrants who are being classified for the first time, and are not eligible for Class 2, 3 or 4 deferments, will be classed as 1-H.

Those of such registrants placed in Class 1 or 4-E before becoming entitled to age deferment, will be classed as 1-H or 4-E-H upon reaching the age limit, he said.
